Women as Physicians. To the Editor of The Press : SIR: "I lace aux dames" is an injunction not merely of gallantry, but, in many domestic relations, of lecency and common sense. Especially should room be made in the field of medical practice for educated and sympathetic women. The vanity of our sex may deny to the physically weaker one the power of profound reasoning, or the talent of great and original discovery; but how many of the able practitioners of the healing art of the superior sex are renowned as deep thinkers, or discoverers of new laws or unknown facts of science? What do they know but what they have been taught by their pro-fessors and books or have picked up empirically in the practice of their profession? Will any one doubt that, if women are permitted the same opportunities, they will make an equally sagacious and advantageous use of them? There is, therefore, no natural inaptitude that shuts out woman from the honors and usefulness of medical art. Nay, more : in all time she has shown a peculiar readiness and adaptation in that direction. No man is naturally a doctor; but every woman is by right divine a nurse. She stands at the physician's side: his most efficient executive, his trusted lieutenant in his attack upon the citadel of illness. Now, it has ever been deemed that an unquestionable passport to promotion to a higher grade of service is to be found in fidelity, skill, and success, in the discharge of lower and preparatory duty. How unjust it is that Woman only should be an exception to this rule of right! With ample intelligence, a delicate expertness, patience, and tenderness inexhaustible, a heroism that no danger can in labors most operous and offensive, she exhibits m isoors most operous, and operative, she exhibits every qualification for bigher trust that could be demanded. Indeed, if a competitive test upon the basis of similar qualification could be established, by which to try male medical candidates for diplomas and degrees, how many of the now successful aspirants could abide the ordeal? Must women, then, forever fight on as privates in the ranks, without hope o winning a commission in the great warfare waged The enlargement of woman's sphere of work is one of the most pressing social problems of this age. The solution may be remote, but is inevitable. We may promote it by a liberal and just acknowledgment of her shilities and claims to aid in the divine task of assuaging the ills of physical humanity. To this effice, especially, does woman seem summoned by our moral sense of fitness, and by the holy voice I am, sir, very respectfully,
A FRIEND OF WOMAN. Tobacco for the Soldiers. To the Editor of The Press: Sin: Allow me to make known to the benevolent readers of The Press a want that exists almost universally smorg the wounded soldiers here in the hospitals—that is the want of tobacco. As soon as they become convalencent, that intense longing, so well understood by those addicted to the use of cco, returns, and increases as health returns, until, as soldiers have told me, "the days are awful long without it." The true American soldier seldom begs, and least of all for a luxury. So they must forego this gratification, unless some one is thoughtful enough to bestow unasked. Notwithstanding the soldier's delicacy as regards begging, there is one place in the city where he has not the least hesitancy to ask—the Sanitary Commission. Then the question is, cannot some (or all) of our patriotic citizens each contribute a little—a paper of smoking tobacco, or a " plug" of cavendish, cigars, or pipes—and, although most of it will soon "and in amoke," the gratitude of the recipients will not be so evanescent, and surely their sacrifices for the country commend them to almost every indulgence. Then send donations of the article in question to the Sanitary Commission, 1307 Chestnut street, where it will find its way into the hands of the sol dier. I am respectfully yours, A. W. M. Philadelphia, August 17, 1863.

AN ARKANSAS LOVE LETTER.—The following tender and poetical epistle is from an Arkansas girl to her "lovyer" in the Confederate army. It was picked up by one of our solders on a battle-field at the West, where the rebels had been defeated, and is a genuine production. It is rendered doubly interesting from the fact that one does not perceive that it runs into poetry till after a little study, and the surprise when the rhyming word is dissovered is very pleasant. It is no wonder the Southern solders are unfitted for fighting and are always defeated now-adays, if they receive letters of this kind to any great extent:

The Substitute Brokers.—There is in every community a class of adventurous men who are never known to follow any particular pursuit, or to belong to any honorable trade or profession. They are of that kind possessing the ubiquitous quality of being "always about." With no mode of living they live, and with no future prospects revel in present success. They dress well and feed well; patronize fashionable resorts, and are never suspected of being in reduced circumstances. They are always "on the make," and continually realizing in themselves how much truth there is in the old proverb, "that it is an ill wind which blows no one good." The ereatures of circumstances, they so mould and shape circumstances as that they shall be profited, even at other people's expense. At one time they are quack doctors or showmen; again turning up as horse-jockeys or gamblers. Yesterday they were small-try politicians, or petifoggyng lawyers; to-day they are substitute brokers. Last week they were pedlets of small wares, or vendors of newspapers on railroad cars; now they are in the insurance business, soliciting patronage, or looking after the claims of discharged soldiers, at a nominal per centage. At the watering-places you find these industrious idlers, attracting attention by the gaiety of their attire, and the originality of their genius. They improvise horse races which don't come off, and turn an honest penny by getting up masked dances and sack runnings. On the promenace none hold their heads higher, or look with more contempt upon the lesser humanity. Their way of existence is mysterious, and one finds a difficulty in reconciling the fast that the less work a men is guilty of, the better off he becomes in the world. The substitute broker is a new player upon the every-day stage. He is a man of parts and ingenity; a shrewd fellow, that is to say "smart." He has a keen eye and a ready tongue, affable in manners, and not devoid of an open, generous heart. His feelings are tender, and he is filled with compassion fo THE SUBSTITUTE BROKERS.—There is in

INQUEST AND VERDICT.—Coroner Conrad, vesterday, held an inquest upon the body of Mr. E. A. Marshel, of Carlisle, Pa. It seems that he had recently arrived in Philadelphia, in search of a substitute. While standing with a few friends on Delaware avenue, near Market street, on Monday afternoon, a loaded wagon approached slowly.
The party stepped aside to let the wagon pass. Mr.
Mafshal, however, did not get far enough out of the way. The hub of the front wheel struck bim, and he was thrown. The hind wheel passed over him, from the effects of which he died shortly, after admission into the Pennsylvania Hospital. The coroner made a most searching investigation into all the facts and circumstances attending the death of the unfortunate man. The jury rendered a verdict of acidental death. The driver of the wagon, being under arreat, was at once discharged from custody.

United States District Court-Judge Cad-The court met yesterday morning, but there was no business ready for the petit jurors, and they were discharged until this morning. Court of Oyer and Terminer and Quarter Sessions—Judge Ludlow.

The court was in session yesterday, and heard a number of soldiers habeas corpus cases. Four minors were discharged. In one case the hearing was continued until Saturday, in order to allow the parents of the boy to produce further proof of his minority, the evidence offered not being clear enough to satisfy the court on this point.

Another case was interesting on account of its movelty: Jacob Rowland, the relator, was drafted last year, in Chester county, to serve nine months, movelty: Jacob Rowland, the relator, was drafted last year, in Chester county, to serve nine months, but the examining physician gave him a verbal exemption, on account of physical disability. He never presented himself, therefore, at the camp for drafted men, but remained at home. The term for which he was drafted has now expired, and some friend of his told him it was necessary that he should have a written discharge from the service of the United States, and he accordingly came to this city and surrendered himself to the provost guard as a deserter, and they held him as such. The writ of habeas corpus was then sued out, and the court, yesterday morning, ordered his discharge, but only from the custody of the provost guard, not from the service of the United States.

THE POLICE.

many of the "Charlies," as they were then called, were fast asleep in their boxes at the street corners, instead of being abroad watching, with guardian case, the properly and the lives of the sleeping inhabitants of Philadelphia.

Mr. Gilpin used to resort to many expedients to keep his men faithful to their work. Stormy nights of rain, hall, wind, or snow, were generally selected by him to proneed on an adventure. This fact became proverbial; so much so, that on such nights, the men used to say to each other, las they were about diverging from the several station-houses of the old city proper, "Look out for Charlie, tonight!"

Mr. Gilpin, however, was shrewd, very energetic and firm, and every way entitled to the confidence which the community then reposed in him. He was not to be outwitted in any manner, shape, or form, and therefore, on one bright moonlight-night in autumn, he went forth on a self-imposed mission. He was 20 completely disguised that he could not have known himself if half a dozen mirrors were before or all around him. His powers of minickry were excellent. He could talk with the sweet German accent or the rich Irish brogue so that his nearest friend would not recognize him.

On the night in question, he appeared as a Berks county Dutchman, remarkable in those days for want of common rense. He had a gray wilg on an huge whiskers to match; an overcoat with cape, pretty well floured like a miller. He affected to be decidedly intoxicated. The first favorable opportunity afforded his Honor on the night in question, was a police officer leaning against an old oil-lamp post, at Seventh and Arch streets.

The gentleman from Berks county staggered up against him, exclashing, "Vat's that you means, to dreat a shentleman ven he cooms yrom Perks county—I reports you to der mayor,"

"Yer'e a little drunk the night," responded the reports you to der mayor."

Tere a little drunk the night," responded the "Charlie."
"Oharlie."
"I'm a shentlemans vrom Perks county, mit mine money ash I spend mit my vriends, vat I carries in mine bocket."
"And where be you going, old man, at this time in the morning?" said the police.
"To der Pulls Head, on Market street."
"An ye have money about ye, a'int ye afeered of getting robbed?" getting robbed?"
"Yere's der Pulls Head?" said the stranger.
"I'll take ye there for a five."
"For five tollars?" responded the Dutchman. "Vy,
I giffs you mine bocket-pook if you finds der Pulls At this moment the book containing five hundred dollars in counterfeit notes was handed to the officer.

On taking it, he exclaimed, "I put ye into me breast pocket for safe keeping."

The two started away, the Dutchman staggering pretty freely, and mumbling out something in Berks county dialect that the officer did not understand.

county dialect that the officer did not understand.

At the next street corner another officer was met, and the Dutchman was handed over to him by his fellow-official, who directed that he should be taken to the Bull's Head tavern; that he was a poor Pennsylvania Dutchman, caught out late, and had no money; that somebody had robbed him.

The second officer treated the stranger very well. While going along he read him a sound lecture on the evils of intemperance, and the risk that strangers from the country always run when they come to the city and get drunk. He finally landed him safely at the Bull's Head. The Dutchman felt for some money to reward the officer, but the latter refused to take a cent. Telling the night watch of the Bull's Head that he had better put the Dutchman to bed, he took his departure and resumed his official business. business.

The next morning, at 10 o'clock, there was a scene in the private office of Mayor Gilpin. Officer in the private omce of mayor Gripm. Officers was sent for.

"Did you see anything of an intoxicated German, about two o'clock this morning."

"I saw siveral men as was intoxicated, sur, and one on 'em was purty Dutch, your Honor."

"Why didn't you arrest them? You are aware of the order?" responded the Mayor.

"Well, sur," said the officer, "as to the matter o' that, they were just doin' nothin', at all, at all."

"Didn't you take one of them to the Bull's Head Hotel, on Market street?"

"I did not, sur." otel; on manage second if I did not, sur."
"I did not, sur."
"Were you not at the Bull's Head yourself?"
"Indade, plaze yer honor, I niver go off me

"Indade, plaze yer honor, I niver go off me 'bate."

"You are sure you didn't go to the Bull's Head?"

"As I have a sowl to be saved, I didn't."

"You didn't ask anybody for a 'five?"

The officer did not seem to comprehend the Mayor, who repeated the question.

"Come, out with it; did you 'strip' a Dutchman?" Strip, means to take all his money.

The officer was rather dumb-founded. He then remembered that he handed over an intoxicated Dutchman to a fellow-officer.

Officer No. 2 was called in. The Mayor intimated very strongly that he had taken all the money from the Dutchman.

This was indignantly denied. Officer No. 1 was then charged with doing the same thing. He, too, denied the accusation.

"Did not you nut it into your breast positet for then charged with doing the same thing. He, too, denied the accusation.

"Did not you put it into your breast-pocket for safe-keeping?" said the Mayor, looking at officer. No. 1 with a most penetrating gaze.

The officer turned pale; he stuttered and stammered; he equivocated, he was gone.

"Where's the five hundred dollars," demanded the Mayor, who now scoke less in parable form. the Mayor, who now spoke less in parable form "I—I was the drunken Dutchman; I was one of .—. was the grunken Dutchman; I was one of the peaceable, drunken men, that staggered against you at the lamp post."
"Come, give me the five hundred dollars—dis-gorge—where is the money!"
"At home, sir," said the downcast officer.
"Who has it!" "Who has it?"
"It is in me trunk, sur."
A messenger was sent to the officer's residence.
The book with the $500 was recovered; the officer was promptly dismissed.
Officer number two was promoted, and from that day to this he has ever had a firm friend in the person of Mr. Oharles Gilpin, who could appreciate an honest man as heartily as despise a dishonest one.

Concealed Deadly Weapon.

The young men known to the police as "Bugiers" were arraigned yesterday morning at the Union-street station, on the charge of disorderly conduct.

It seems that late on Monday night, or, rather, early yesterday morning, the defendants were engaged in tearing out a house in Griscom street, formerly Green's court. The furniture was pretty well amashed, and the destruction of other things, was about to follow. Police officers hastened to the scene, and arrested three of the parties and conducted them to the lock-up. Certain residents in the neighborhood said they would appear against them. They did not appear. On the person of one of the defendants was found a dirk knife. The charge of carrying a concealed deadly weapon was preferred against him. The accused gave the name of James Wilson. He was ordered to enter bail in the sum of $600 to answer at court. The other parties were bound over to be of future good behavior.

Before Mr. Recorder Eneu. " False Pretences.

David Sink was arraigned before the Recorder, yesterday afternoon, on the charge of obtaining money under false pretences. It seems that he had agreed to go as a substitute for Bernard R. Haffer, a drafted man. At the provost marshal's office he swore that he was over 20 years of age. Just about this time the father of the lad appeared with an officer of the United States court, having a writ of habeas corpus, demanding that the said boy be brought before Judge Cadwalader peremptorily.

The writ was responded to at once, and the case was heard before the Judge. The father swore the lad was only 17 years of age. The lad was therefore discharged.

Mr. Coffey, the United States District Attorney, immediately proceeded to the office of Recorder Eneu, and entered a charge against the enthusiastic youth, of obtaining money under false pretences, and making the United States Government lose a man. On this charge the defendant was committed to prison to await his trial.

A YER'S COMPOUND EXTRACT
SARSAPARILLA—No one remedy is more needed in this country than a reliable Alterative, but the sich have been so outrageously cheated by the worthless preparations of Sarsaparilla abroad that they are disgusted eyes with the name. Yet the drug cannot be blamed for the impositions from which they have suffered. Most of the so-called Sarsaparillas in the market contain little of the virtues of Sarsaparilla or anything else. They are mere slope—inert and worthless, while a concentrated extract of the active variety of Sarsaparilla compounded with Dock. Stillingia, lodine, etc., is, as it ever will be, a powerful alterative and an effectual remedy. Such is Ayer's Extract of Sarsaparilla, as its truly wonderful cures of the great variety of complaints which require an alterative medicine have abundantly shown. Do not, therefore, diseard this invaluable medicine, because you have been imposed upon by something pretending to be Sarsaparilla. For minute particulars of the diseases it cures, we refer you to Ayer's american Almanac, which the agent below named will furnish gratin to all who call for it.

Dear Sir.: During the night of May 19, 1863, our Greery and Provision Store, at North Second and Willey streets, took fire at about 2 o'clock A. M., and as the store was a two-story wood building it burnt rapidly, and before the fire-engines could act upon the fire, our whole stock of goods, including much combustible material, and amounting to over $2,000, were wholly destroyed. We had one of your No. Il Chilled Iron Safes, which was in the hottest part of the fire, and it came out of the fire not in the least injured, except the melting off of the name, plate and paint. The contents inside were not affected in the least, and we consider the Safej inst as good a protection against fire now as before, and shall use it hereafter with increased confidence. The lost works as perfectly as before the fire.

Yours truly, Momanus & Choff.

Attention to the above certificate is particularly re-

Late 429 North SECOND Street.

Attention to the above certificate is particularly requested, as it is the first trial of LILLIE'S SAFES in an accidental fire in Philadelphia.

I would say to all parties who want a Fire and Burgiar-proof Safe that LILLIE'S WROUGHT ABD CHILLED IR'N SAFES are much the cheapest and the only real Fire and Burgiar-proof Safes now made; and to those who want simply a Fire-proof, I would sagards.

LILLIE'S WROUGHT IRON SAFE's fully equal respects to any of the most-approved makers.

I also am receiving daily in exchange for Lille's wrought and Chillied Iron Safes other Safes, and keep sonstantly on hand a general assortment of HRERING'S.

EVAN'S WATSON'S, and other makers, many of them almost new, which I offer at, and even below, ancien prices.
All parties interested are particularly requested to axamine the Safes above described at my depôt.
