FOREIGN MISCELLANY

From the London Athensum, August 5]

The speculations concerning "La Marsellaise," put forth by M. Fetis in a late number of the Gazette Musicale, ran as follows: Rouget de Pisle, Captain of the Engineers, and employed as such at Strasbourg in 1792, composed a song called "The War Song," the verses of which, originally, sung to an opers air then in vogue, came to Paris and fell into the hands of a good musician, known by the name of Navoigille, though the real name was Julien. He was a composer and violinist of some celebrity, born at Givet (Mehul's birthplace), in 1746, want to study music at Paris, where, says M. Fetis, "a happy acident procured him the acquaintance of a noble Venetian, who took a fancy to him, gave him a home and the name by which he is known." Later, Monsigny made him enter the service of the Duke of Orleans. After this prince's death Navoigille acquired an honorable reputation as a conductor by presiding over the concerts of the Loge Olympique, for which Haydin had written six symphonies. He opened agratuitous school for violiniats, the most remarkable product of which was Alexandre. Boucher, the eccentric patriarch, who died the other day in extreme old age and want, and who is recollected, not merely as the wooder player who in his time set Europe on fire, but also from his remarkable resemblance to Napoleon. At a later period Navoirille entered the service of Louis Bonaparte, when King of Holland; subsequently returned to Paris, and died there in 1811. He wrote some works for the theatre, "L'Heroine Suisse" among the number; also, sonatas, duos, and trios, for the violin. In 1817 M. Fetis bought two collections of Revolutionary and Republican music—the first, popular tunes, printed in separate sheets, like our ballads; the second, "set pieces," composed by Gossed, Catel, Leeuer, Cherutbini, for the fetts of the Champ de Mars and the Temples of Reason. In the first M. Fetis bought two collections of Revolutionary and the subnoress of 'Lee Deux Jaloux' and "La Serenade." He came frequentl AN EASTERN ROMANCE.—"Died, on the 1st inst, at Abingdon. House, Kensington, the widow of the late Maharajah Runjeet Singh, of the Sikhs, and mother of the present Maharajah Dhuleep Singh." In these few and formal words the death of a Princess has been chronicled, whose words once shock kingdoms and made war or peace. Chuuda Kour, although the wife of the Maharajah of the Punjaub, was not, if report speaks true, very nobly born. One version of her birth makes her father a dog-keeper in the service of Runjeet; but at any rate, the was selected as one of his harem, and came to be its mistress. From that time, if she could have written the history of her marvellous life, blood, and not ink, would have been the fitting medium to have used. Kurruck Singh succeeded Rusjeet, and he was despatched with acetate of lead and corrosive sublimate mingled in a curry. Nos Mehal Singh followed Kurruck on the throne; but as he passed upon his elephant under an arch, after his coronation, it was contrived that the masonty should fall and orush him. The widow of Kurruck still stood in the way, and her chamborwomen were bribed to heat her brains out with a stone as they stood behind her, braiding and perfunding her hair. Shere Singh, a son of the murdered Princess, yet Dlocked the path to the throne against Chunda Kour's child, and he, too, was despatched by an adroit practice, and four slugs were discharged into his heart. Thus at last the crown of the Funjaub was won, and placed upon the infant head of Dhuleep Singh; his mother, the Princess now dead, employing the influence thus obtained to rect in license. Sometimes, however, she was obliged to be the spectatress of murder, and not its accomplice, as when the troops at Lahore bayoneted her brother, the Princes Jewahir, as he reviewed them, sprinkling her robe and that of her son with his blood. But she replaced her brother with a lover, Lail Singh, and in conjunction with him bediancy and to the second Sikh war, and reduced the part of the English oflicers at the first named pl SHERIFF'S SALES.—BY VIRTUE OF ial5-ti laise" are so distinctly traced as to arrest (almost beyond disproof) every one who has a perception of style. We cannot turn saide from this argument against the theory of M. Fetis, unless we are to assume that Citizen Navoigille wrote all the so-called melodies of Roguet de l'Isle. Further and lastly, there is less in a printed name (especially as concerns music) than our lexicographer thinks. How long was a tune by Reissiger issued, edition after edition, as "Weber's last waltz" There was a melody called "Pestal" published some years ago as the music of a condemned amateur, written on the eve of his execution, but afterwards claimed by a living composer. The names of Beethoven and Schubert have been again and again confused on the title pages of Yienna waltzes. Instances of this kind could be multiplied by the score; the case is merely worth dwelling on as showing once again how an ingenious and laborious critic can be seduced by the fancy that he has made a discovery, and as illustrating the caution which ought to accompany every step of musical research. A NOTARY'S NOSE.—"Le Nez d'un Notaire" is the name of a new novel, of the sensation order, by the celebrated Parisian novelist, M. Edmond About. The hero is a highly respectable Parisian notary (of the Faubourg St. Germain), young, rich, and well-looking, with a handsome Roman nose, surmounted with spectacles, on account of short sight. At one of the evening receptions in the green room of the Imperial Opera, where the young ladies of the corps de build highly estimate him, he quarrels with the Secretary of the Turkish legation, who invites him to the duello, in which his nose is sut off by a Damascene blade, and is run away with by a tomeat (witness of the combat), from whom it is not recovered; though M. L'Ambert, the notary, runs after his nose, in the cat's mouth, for over three miles, accompanied in the race by the Turk and three others of the same race, a marquis, and a stookbroker—spectators of the combat. The nose irretrievably lost, surgical science is called in to provide a substitute. For two thousand france ($400) a poor water-carrier allows as, much flesh to be cut out of his left arm to provide a new nose for the notary. The new handle to his face is Grecian instead of Roman, and improves the notary's aspect. Time goes on, but the nose becomes ruddy—the water carrier, from whose arm it was taken, having spent his 2,000 francs in hard living. He reforms, and the nose again flourishes. Twelve months later, the handsome Greek nose is found to be limp—the water carrier is dying from want of food, and is nourished back into health, which reators the notary's nasal feature. At last, the notary who is a lady-killer, resolves to marry, but on the morning of his intended nuptials, awakes—noseless? The lady, who, at first, had heroically resolved to wed the notary, nose or no nose, cannot carry out this purpose when she sees what a sad spectacle he is. Haven, many of our readers will find an interest the deeper and sadder for their knowledge that it chronicles the departure from earth of one of its most gifted and lovely daughters—known to a multitude of readers as "Cousin Alice."

Mrs. Haven was yet in the prime of life, not having completed her thirty-sixth year. For more than half of her days she has been achieving her reputation as a pure and charming writer for the young, and has won for herself a place among the poets of the land by not a few lotty and enduring lyrics.

Admirable and highly cherished as her fame in the world of letters will be, this is, however, the least-excellence of her now sacred memory. The grown of her character was her truly unselfish and unsparing consecration to the highest good of others, not only of those who had natural claims upon her, but of all who came within the reach of her hand and her influence. au22-6t 1886 WALKUT Street. FIRE FIRE FIRE PHILADELPHIA May 30, 1852,

M. C. Sadler, Esq., Agent for Lillie's Safes.

DEAR SIR: During the night of May 19, 1863, our Greery and Provision Store, at North Second and Willew streets, took fire at about 2 o'clock A. M., and as the store was a two-story wood building it burnt rapidly, and before the fire-engines could act upon the fire, our whole stock of goods, including much combustible material, and amounting to over $2.000, were wholly destroyed. We had one of your No. 11 Chillied Iron Safes, which was in the hottest part of the fire, and dit came out of the fire not in the least injured, except the melting of of the name, plate and paint. The contents inside were not affected in the least, and we consider the Eafe just as good a protection against fire now as before, and shall use it hereafter with increased confidence. The lost works as perfectly as before the fire.

Yours truly, McMANUS & CROFT, Late 4-39 North SECOND Street.

Attention to the above certificate is particularly re-COAL. OAL-SUGAR LOAF, BEAVER Mesdow, and Spring Mountain Lehigh Goal, and best Locust Mountain from Schaylkili; prepared Spressly for family uss. Depot. N. W. corner of Right and WILLOW Streets. Office, No. 112 South SECOND Street. [and J. W. LUPON 260] Late 439 North SECOND Street.

Attention to the above certificate is particularly requested, as it is the first trial of LILLIE'S SAFES in as accidential fire in Philadelphia.

I would say to all parties who want a Fire and Eurglar-proof Safes hat LILLIE'S WROUGHT AND CHILLED IR'N SAFES are much the chaspest and the only real Fire and Burglar-proof Safes now made; and to those who want simply a Fire-proof, I would say that LILLIE'S WROUGHT IRON SAFE is tully equal in all respects to any of the most-approved makers, and is sold at fully one-thrid less price.

I also am receiving daily in exchange for Lillie's Wrought and Chilled Iron Safes other Safes, and keep sonstantly on hand a general assortment of HERRING'S, EVANS & WATSON'S, and other makers, many of them almost new, which I offer at, and even below, suction prices.

All parties interested are particularly requested to examine the Safes above described at my depot.
