Mr. Justice Woodard and His Record.

MR. CHARLES J. BIDDLE, colonel of volunteers, having declined to be nominated for the Democratic State Convention, has determined to serve that committee with a more official zeal than he ever manifested in behalf of his country. He not only has the care of the Democratic party upon his hands, but intends to pay attention to the discipline of the National Union party. He has made up his mind that the loyal speakers shall go far and no farther, and that he will not be content with a mere display of the talents of the National Union party. The Congress at Frankfurt.

The balance of power is an ideal which European statesmen have never been able to apprehend. A revolution made possible by a narrow coalition of new and old members is continually necessary to restore it. It involves so many questions of territory and population, is dependent so much upon incalculable elements, such as the death of a king or the rise of a great mind, that it is never established, but it is almost sure to be disturbed. It is, in fact, a dream. Europe adjusts itself by laws of necessity, and the distribution of power is generally the result of legislative, international conferences, or treaties.

Wanted—An Aristocracy!

MR. MATTHEW ARNOLD, a distinguished English gentleman, author of some poems above the average merit, and Professor of Poetry at Oxford, has lately written a brief treatise to show that Englishmen want, giving it the title, "The Englishman's Boy." It is a brilliant, elegant, practical, and direct treatise. It strikes upon the public with a force which is not to be compared with that of any other treatise of the kind. VERY ORTHODOX AND PERTINENT is the address of Wayne McVigrah, the chairman of the United States Central Committee, printed in these columns yesterday.

He has not read a stronger statement of the issues involved in the war, and the duties devolved upon the citizen in the coming election. It is brief, eloquent, practical, and direct. It strikes upon the public with a force which is not to be compared with that of any other treatise of the kind.
