The author, whose publucing such a work, writes with a terseness and clearness that have rarely been surpassed. Every ateam engineer will benefit by the knowledge here communicated, but marine engineers will more especially reap the advantage. The results of experiments as to the comparative heating qualities of tuminous—are of special importance. But the whole colume is practical; there is little apeculation in it; but there are numerous facts. Of course, no private individual would incur the cost, even if he happened to possess the opportunities, of making the investigations which Mr. Isherwood has made. He was employed by the Navy Department, and this first volume of his labors is equally creditable to Ticknor & Fields, of Boston, so rarely publish an unreadable book, that we take up a volume bearing their imprint with calm confidence in its merit. To-day we have to notice a batch of five of their ications, any and all of which may be obtained at J. B. Lippincott's, Market street, and at T. B. Peterson's, Chestnut street. We lead off with Methods of Study in Natural History," by L. Agassiz, consisting, in the first instance, of lectures delivered at the Lowell Institute, in Boston, then prepared for the Atlantic Monthly, and now collected into a 12mo. volume of 319 pages. Of the sixteen chapters which it contains, all but the concluding one appeared in the magazine. Never before has "Freedom and War. Discourses on Topics conneoted with the Times; by Henry Ward Beecher," is a volume of 445 pages. There are eighteen of these discourses (which is the genteel substitute for the old-fashioned word sermons), and only the first eight were revised by Mr. Beecher, and that hastily. Nevertheless, the book is a good one, and will be widely read. Mr. Beccher is as much a sensation preacher as Miss Braddon is a sensation novelist— neither of them can be dull. In these discourses we have been pleased at noticing many bold truths, for-Nathaniel Hawthorne ranks, here and in England, among the best prose writers in our common language. After far too long a delay, he has put forth a new volume—"Our Old Home; a series of English Sketches." During the Presidency of Franklin Pierce, the consulate at Liverpool was occupied by Mr. Hawthorne. The book opens with his consular experiences, and thence takes the reader to Leamington Spa, to Warwick town and castle, to the home of Shakspeare, to Lichfield and Uttoxeter, to Old Boston, to Oxford, to the land of Burns, to Greenwich, up the Thames, by scenes famous in song and story; to public dinners in Liverpool and London, and to some haunts of English poverty. The only part of this agreeable volume at all out of keeping is the literal puff direct of that de mented Miss Bacon who wrote a ponderous work to prove that Shakspeare's plays were written by Francis Bacon, Baron Verulam, and Viscount St. Alban's. The book is a charming one, giving a better view of England than has appeared since Washington Irving published the Sketch Book. In his account of a civic banquet at Liverpool, in honor of the Judges of Assize, Mr. Hawthorne met "one old gentleman, whose character I never could make out, clad in black breeches and silk stockings, and wearing a rapier at his side." Any one could have told him that, at an Assize feast, this must have been the high sheriff of the county, attired in a cour lume, "The Amber Gods," and six other stories most of which, if not all, first appeared in the Atlantic Monthly. The first of these is more ambitious than successful, almost a tale of "Much Ado about Nothing." We find a palpable and feeble imitation of Poe's minuteness of detail in the very sketchy tale, "In a Cellar." Far better are "Circumstance," "Desert Sands," and "Midsummer The young lady who has assumed the nom de plume of "Gail Hamilton," favored the world, not long ago, with a delightful volume called "Country Living and Country Thinking." She has now published a companion volume (chiefly her latest con-tributions to the Atlantic Monthly), entitled "Gala Days," which relates her adventures and thoughts of home-travel, and also contains several brilliant essays on various subjects. In "Gala Days" there and deal of good writing-vigorous, clear, and original. For the writer's just verdict on the thorough uncomfortableness and undesirability (what murdering sequipedalians) of Saratoga, their author merits a wreath of laurel. Her general idea of over-dressed want of enjoyment at watering places is sensible and correct. We wonder how New England will receive this sentence on her sons, and daughters, haish tones: "But woe is me for the voices, male and female, that you so often hear in New England the harsh, strident voices; the monotonous, oranky, yankey, filing, rasping voices, without modulation, all rise and no fall, a monotonous discord; no soul, no feeling—and no counterfeit of it; loud, positive, angular, and awful." If a Northern writer had said half of this, what a clamor against him would rise in and from "the hub of creation." But a fair New England writer and Boston publishers print it, and there is no offence. This new book by Gail Hamilton is extremely captivating. The only thing in it that raises our special wonder, is the author's high eulogium on the namby-pamby verses of Mr. Co-ventry Patmore. His "Angel in the House," if poetry, is of the homeliest description-drugget-as compared with the moire antique of Tennyson, Long--The Mercer county Whig says: "Hon. Napoleon and Rosecraps. VOTERS INCREASING.—No less than eight volumes inclinating.—No less than eight bundred persons were naturalized in this city on Saturday. This fact was announced at the Demogratic Club Room on Saturday night, by Mr. J. Ross Snowden, Prothenotary of the Supreme Coart, who at the same time claimed that they represented, nearly all of them, Demogratic votes. Mr. Snowden was very confident, in consequence, that at the next election the city will go Democratic. A letter dated from near Chattanooga thus refers to some of the recent exploits of General Rosecrans:

Prate of Napoleon crossing the Alps! This army has already over-topped them four times 300 miles from its base, and at the very nucleus of the enemy's railroads, where he could readily huri reinforcements, if he had not nearly expended his ponderous projectiles of that description. The historian quaintity takes Napoleon from his pictorial charger, and transfers him to the back of an unromantic mule.
Our generals have gone up some of these mountains leading their horses—invariably, if they were seduced into "short cuts." On that over-rated ascent, Napoleon had heavy details dragging up his artillery and baggage. Here we have had no details—the whole command put its shoulder to the wheels.
Division trainsfand batteries were habed along by an undivided division of infantry, every man finding plenty of extra duty in that line.

Lookout mountains are twelve miles across and two miles in ascent, by a road which rises one foot for every two passed over. How much worse are the Alps! Loose, huge, and rugged stones obstruct the road; where there are no stones, there are roots and stumps. Frees hem in and nerrow it; where there are none, there are destrustive precipices, inviting the clumay army vehicles to a speedly descent. If you could have seen these slow and Atlas-like labors, you too would call Napoleon's passage the exploit of a pigmy. If you could have seen a gun dragging its slow length up this mountain-side, with a dozen panting horses hitched to it, and a cloud of men tugging at the wheels; if you could have seen the extremely inextroable confusion of spasmodic wagons and struggling takus; of shouting and aweat-dripping soldiers; of dead horses and wrecked wheels thrown over the bank; of dust knee-deep, and rooks knee-high jumbled together, and called a road, you might exclaim with me, that saide from the historical sanctivy of the feat, the "barely practicable" Alpine achievement of Napoleon will not look well beside the quadruple passage of some of the recent exploits of General Rose LEGAL INTELLIGENCE. The usual Saturday business was transacted in the courts on Saturday, and nothing of public in-terest transpired. Interfering with an Assessor.

Florence McCarty, the Superintendent of Franklin Square, was arraigned on Saturday, on the charge; of interfering with Mr. Charles Heritage, one of the assessors of the Sixth ward, in the discharge of his. official duties. It is alleged that the defendant insisted en having the name of a man placed on the extra assessment list, although the individual did not live in the ward. Mr. Heritage at once refused to consent to any such glaring fraud, whereupon Florence became quire uppoarious. The assessor was very much interfered with, and was compelled to call in the services of Officer Armstrong, to have the objectionable individual removed from the room. On being taken into custody, it is also alleged that he assaulted the officer. He was ordered to find bail in the sum of $1,500, to answer at court. The Fashions.

A New Crincline.—The London correspondent of the Beliast (Ireland) News Letter says: A tradesman in Piccadilly has made an astounding discovery. As a benefactor to mankind, the result of his researches entitles him to take rank with Copernicus, Galileo, Hunter, Newton, Fulton, Watt, Stephenson, Davy, or any (or all) the philosophers who have surrounded their names with a nimbus of glory. This distinguished person has met the want of the age. He has discovered a crinoline which won't get into excentric or unbecoming angles when ladies get into omnibuses or press through crowds. The article in question is called the "Ondina, or waved jupon," and the inventor thus describes its wonderful properties: "It does away with the unsightly results of the ordinary hoops; and so perfect are the wave-like bands, that a lady may ascend a steep stair, lean against a table, throw herself into an armchair, pass to her stall at the opera, or occupy a fourth seat in a carriage, without inconvenience to herself or others, or provoking the rude remarks of the observers, besides removing or modifying in an important degree all those peculiarities tending to destroy the modesty of Englishwomen," is itself a magnificent achievement, for which the inventor deserves a statue in Trafaigar Square, and a monument in the Sohe Bazzar!

PHILADRLPHIA, Oct. 3, 1863.
The week closed on an active and somewhat excited gold market, rumors and counter-rumors playing indiscriminately with the figure which at the opening of to-day's transaction was 142%, but rose to 133%, and content of the counter of inued rather steady until the close. Money is in fair de-nand, but borrowers have a very an easy time at moderate rates, say 5,60 F cent.

Government, State, and City loans are all steady, and the report from the office of Jay Cooke, Esq., Government agent for the sale of the five-twenties, show an INDEX TO THE LONDON TIMES FOR 1862.—The Index contains a complete list of all the topics discussed in the London Times newspaper. It is an octavo volume with two columns on a page. Nearly eleven columns are required to catalogue the subjects under the general head America, and by America is meant the United States. Not nearly as much space is given to any other topic. France stands next, but it is disposed of in leas than seven columns. Italy takes a little over five. India has only three, about a quarter as much as America. Ireland requires five columns, still not half so much as America.

Lancashire, with its year of distress, occupies two columns. was bid for canden and Amboy sixes at 108½; the old at 103%; Camden and Amboy sixes, 1875, sold at 102½; Himira chattel fives at 79; Reading sixes were firm; North Pennsylvania sixes sold at 96; Wyoming Valley Canal sold at 65, the sixes at 99; Union Canal olumns. If we look at the topics discussed in the leading articles, we find the same disproportion between America and other nations. Over three columns are required to refer to the leaders on American affairs, while over twenty-four columns are needed to refer to all the other topics discussed in the leading articles. One leader in every nine, therefore, is devoted to us. One-half a column, less one-sixth of the space we occupied, was given to France. These facts show, in a very striking manner, how deeply our affairs have interested England.—Providence Journal. sives at 231/2: Delaware Division sold at 411/2: Philadelphia Bank at 1244.

Saturday was a remarkable one in the epoch of the military history of the city of Brotherly Love; the parade of the black regiment made its mark upon the page. The atmosphere was clear, and thus unclouded, the sun looked down upon the scene as if smiling an approval. This regiment is the second raised in this city, but in the line is recorded as the "Sixth Regiment United States colored troops," Colonel Ames.

Four companies of the 8th Regiment, without arms, under command of Captain Fribley, also paraded, bringing up the rear of the 6th—the entire line under command of Colonel Wagner. After arriving at Fourth and Master streets, from the camp at Chelten Hills, the regiment proceeded through the city by the following route: down Fourth to Brown, up Brown to Sixth, down Sixth to Arch, up Arch to Twentieth, down Twentieth to Chestnut, down Chestnut to Eighteenth, down Eighteenth to Walnut, down Walnut to Seventeenth to Walnut, down Walnut to Dock, down Dock to Second, down Second to Washington, down Washington to Refreshment Saloons, and thence to Third and Master.

The men of the 6th Regiment were fully equipped with musikets and bright bayonets, and nothing white about them, save their dress-parade gloves. The men of the 6th Regiment, of course, giving greater steadiness and precision to their marching.

A full drum corps accompanied the detachment.

OPENING OF AN ORGAN.—An immense number of people assembled yesterday morning in and around the Church of the Annunciation, at the corner of Tenth and Dickerson streets, Flist ward, on the ocasion of the opening of the immense, beautiful, and powerful organ, made by the colebrated Krauffof Philadelphia. The instrument is sixteen feet wide, eighteen feet deep, and twenty-seven feet high. It has all the stops necessary for an organ of its size. The clarionets, the flutes, the trumpets, and the melodion are spoken of as exceedingly superior in tone. It is arranged for solos and choruses, and has great compass, from the fine, delicate warbling of a canary bird to the deepest kind of double bass. There is an interesting incident connected with this instrument. Its case is made of heart Carolina pine, free of a single knot. This was constructed previous to the breaking out of the rebellion for an organ intended for a large church in the South. The rebellion, however, disarranged the business, and Mr. Knauff very happily used the case for the present organ. There were many people around the church, all within hearing of the great instrument. Even above its diapason string the clear vocal notes of Miss Richings could be heard, according sweetly with the harmonious octaves of the organ. Mr. Michael M. Cross presided, and, under his skilful touch, "one blast of wind to many a row of pipes the sound-board breathed" in multifarous tones. Boston and New York manufacturers have claimed a superiority for their instruments; the one in the Church of the Annunciation is a model for them, so far as tone is concerned; indeed, we may add beauty of construction. On this occasion an admirable address was delivered by the Rt. Rev. Dr. Moriarty. The entire proceedings were characterized with that great solemnity and sacredness incident to the Roman Catholic Church.6,417 00 54, 151 00 one and the corresponding time of 1862 as follows: The New York Evening Post of to-day says:

Railroad shares are irregular and excited but there is no great activity; in consequence of the bulls and the bears being equally uncertain as to the effects on the course of prices which will result from the pretent and prospective movements of Mr. Chase.

It is, however, believed in well-informed quarters, that no new loan will, at present, be put on the market similar to the recent fity-million loan, and that the issue of a small amount of additional currency may safely be adopted, and will probably be required in addition to the five-twenties and the new five per cent, legal-tender treasny notes.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1st, 1863. PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1st, 1863. REMOVAL.—JOHN C. BAKER, Wholesale Druggist, has removed to 718 MARKET Street. Particular attention is asked to JOHS C. BAKER & GO.'S COD-LIVER OIL. Having increased facilities in this new establishment for manufacturing and bottling, and the avails of fifteen years' experience in the business, this brand of Oil has advantages over all others, and recommends itself. Constant supplies are obtained from the fisheries, fresh, pure, and sweet, and receive the most careful personal attention of the original proprietor. The increasing demand and wide-pread market for it make its figures low, and afford great advantages for those buying in large quantities. MEDICAE.
