But we of Arkansas must dispose of what is left of this question for ourselves. We can't dodge it. In our settling it we are not agitating the slavery question. Oan you agitate the dead1. Is not slavery question and civil war? But though dead, its remains must be disposed of. Its dead carcass is all that lies between us and a perfect restoration of our former relations with the Government. A conven-tion of the people should meet and bury it. The question of abolition and its converse can't be made in our midst. We are not like Missouri. With us the question is, What shall we do with that which is already abolished? To this there can be but one answer: Amend the Constitution, and put it be-yond the hope of resurrection, We of the North and South, knowing that slavery was the only dis-turbing element in our Government, after many "settlements," cach one deemed "final," resorted to the last arbitrament-the sword. We who own slaves have lost fairly lost, and we must abide the decision. The people of Arkansas are therefore the proper ones to act on its final extinction in our midst. The aconer we do it the better for us and the country. To many this truth is unpalatable, but we can't blink it ; it must be met; let us do so like men. There is a large and growing party in the North that is disposed to reduce the seceed States to the condition of Territories. The central idea of this party is to get rid of slavery, as the source of all our classifies. It would be unbecoming in us, as well as a waste of time, to get up and argue the abstract question with them as to their right to do this. Lat us anticipate them, and cut under them at once, by meeting in convention, at the earliest day that we can be empowered so to do, and extirpate forever the last vestige of slavery in our midst, and bury out of sight this source of all our calamities, per sonal, State, and national. By thus formally giving up what is al ARKANSAS IS LOYAL. The people of Arkansas are ready to return to their algetance to the Government, and to renew their devotion, which shall never hereafter neither change nor decay. The loyalty to Jeff Davis in Ar-kansas doca not extend practically beyond the shadow of his army, while the hatred to him is as wide spread as it is intense. The Union sentiment is manifesting itself on all sides, and by every indica-tion—in Union meetings, in desertions from the Con-federate army, in taking the oath of allegiance un-solicited, in organizing for home defence, and enlist-ing in the Federal army. Old flags that have been hid in the orevices of rocks, and been worshipped by our mountain people as holy relics, are fung to the breeze, and followed to the Union army with an en-thusiasm that beggars all description. NOBLE TENEUTE TO UNION MEN. ARKANSAS IS LOYAL.

hardship is extreme of taking men of mature age, who have found places in life which may be filled while they are away from their homes and business; and although the partictism of the people has hitherto enabled them to bear the trial, it ought not be pushed too far. Mr. Lincoln's Opinion of Strikes.

The New York correspondent of Fincher's Trade Review, of this city, under date of November 28,

was dised and wined to his hear?'s content. He had Secession councillors, who advised him to cross direct from Maryland into Virginia, but having brought with him (we hope they, were paid for) "a certain pair of riding boots, by which I had he went by the Lower Potomas, the boots destined to be famous as those of General Bom-bastes-carried the day, and he resolved to travel in them, on horseback, through "My Maryland," into Virginia, far above Washington; and, after various failures, had nearly reached his destination, when a bullet from a Federal rifle lodged in his knee, the well-aimed shot of one of the homeguard. Finally, a prisoner in Washington, his wound was tended and cured, (he abuses the surgeon !) and when he was able to travel, he was liberated on his parole to leave America at once, and not return during the war. Return home he did, but his adventures not being sufficient to fill half a volume, and the thousand pounds from his publisher being in view, he spun out his narrative, after the verbose fashion of penny-a-liners, and puts in, as padding, a great deal of vituperation of the Unionists and praise of the rebels. This is one of the grossest cases of merebook-making we have ever met with. . . . Yet the book is well written, and the author's personal vanity so abidingly seen in it-like the copper showing through worn-out plating-that it will amuse as much as if it were written with the exclusive purpose of creating laughter. Published by W. J. Pooley, New York. As exciting as most romances, with the advantage of being true, is Isaac V. D. Heard's "History of the Sioux War and Massacres of 1862 and 1863.¹⁹ It contains thirty-three well-executed engravings, portraits, and scenes, and a very full account, by an official eye witness, of the dreadful occurrences conneeted with the late effort of the Sioux Indians to visit Minnesota with massacre and devastation. Happily, civilization finally prevailed, and the law eventually punished such of the wrong-doers as the battle spared. General Sibley, who put down the revolt, was as merciful after the strife as he was bold in it. The Indians have been taught a lesson they much needed, and the historian of the war has writ its annals very ably indeed. "Chrestomachie Frangaise" is the odd title of a. new French Reading Book, by Professor William J. Knapp, just published by the Harpers, who present it as the first of a series of text books for the study of the leading modern languages. The first part of this volume contains a selection from the best French writers; the second gives the master-pieces of Moliére, Racine, Boileau, and Voltaire; the third gives biographical and critical notices of the authors represented in the work; and the fourth is a pronouncing vocabulary. There are a few explanatory footnotes. The selections are un-hackneyed. This Reader, we should observe, is to be studied in connection with the French Gram mar written by Mr. Knapp, but may be used without. Such works as these greatly facilitate the ac-quirement of foreign tongues, and will be invalua-ble to students who desire to learn without a master.

Thackeray's "Roundabout Papers," evidently thrown off with very little effort, are amusing, sug-gestive, and thoroughly egotistical. The author appears almost in every page. Like all satirists, Appears simulat in every page. Links an saturate, Mr. Thackeray is very thin skinned, and he cannot help showing his irritation at triffes. There is some good stuff, too, in these papers, and we are glad that Harper & Brothers have collected them, with illus-trations, from the Cornhill Magazine. They fit into a compact volume-one that will easily fit into a man's pocket or a woman's hand basket. Read it -read it through, by all means. Though Thackeray does wince, most dreadfully, under newspaper criticism, his very complaints are well written. Were he broken on the wheel, (a punishment now obsolete,) we verily believe that, during the process, he would dictate an exciting "Roundabout Paper" pleasantly describing his sensations, After Mr. Thackersy had gossipped for some time, in a "Rourdabout" fashion with the readers of the Cornhill Magazins, one of the ablest writers in
