The undersigned, as General Subscription Agent, is authorized by the Secretary of the Treasury to continue he sale of this popular Loan, and TEN DAYS public notice will be given of discontinuance ABOUT TWO HUNDERD MILLIONS remain unsold and this amount is scarcely sufficient to furnish a basis for the circulation of the Matienal Banking Associations now being formed in every part of the Country. But a abort time must elapse before this loan is wholly absorbed, the demand from Europe, Germany especially, As it is well known that the Secretary of the Tree sury has ample and unfailing resources in the duties on earing Legal Tender Treasury Hotes, it is nearly equ tain that it will not be necessary for him for a long time to come to issue further permanent Loans, the interest and principal of which are payable in Gold. These considerations must lead to the prompt conclu sion that the time is not far distant when these "Five-Twenties" will sell at a handsome premium, as was the result with the "Seven-thirty" Loan, when it was all sold, and could no longer be subscribed for at par.

SIX PER CENT. LOAN,

yielding about mour percent, per annum at the present premium on gold. he Bonds may run for twenty years, yet the Govern ment has the right to pay them off in gold at par, at any time after five years. The interest is paid half yearly on the first days of Noomber and May. Subscribers can have Coupon Bonds which are payale by bearer and issued for $50, $100, $500, and $1,000, Registered Bonds of similar denominations, and in cities, towns, or counties, and the Government tax on them is only one and a half per cent, on the amount of lars per annum. Income from all other investments such as mortrages, relirond stocks, bonds, &c., mus pay from three to five per cent, tax on the income. Banks and Bankers, throughout the country will connue to dispose of the Bonds, and all orders by mail or therwise properly attended to.

LETTER FROM GENERAL HALLECK.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3, 1863.

George McLaughlin, Esq., Cincinnati:

Sir: Your favor of November 28th is just received. I regret that it is not in my power to furnish you captured documents. All such papers belong to the archives of the Government, and I have no authority to withdraw them from the public records of the departments to which they belong.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

H. W. HALLECK. New Publications. Despite of a vulgar title and a preponderance military narrative, sometimes nearly obscuring the actual story, "The Days of Shoddy; a Novel of the Great Rebellion in 1861," by Henry Morford, has many claims to be read and liked as an original LETTER FROM BISHOP ROSECRANS. My DEAR SIR: Of course I will give an autograph letter for the benefit of the Sanitary Commission. I could hardly refuse my right arm, if it could serve those who may hap have lost theirs in the struggle work of fiction. In the actual story here told, there are not many characters, and whatever mystery some of them get involved in, is cleared up with no ordinary skill at the close. The villain hero of the tale is a certain Charles Holt, whose course, in public as a contractor, and in private as " a man of pleasure," is very fully traced. He is the centre of a group, consisting on one side of Burtnett Haviland and his very pretty wife, and on the other of the Fullerton family, from South Carolina, engressingly nourishing pro-slavery principles and prejudices. More or less connected with this group are Holt's wife, a certain Ned Minthurne (the suitor of Miss Dora Fullerton) and bonny Kate Haviland. Buitnett's cousin, who is a governess in the Fullerton family. Tim, the errand boy, is an original haracter, well developed, and Sarah Sanderson, the servant, though a little exaggerated in her vilainy, is also well drawn. The endeavor of Holt to seduce Mrs. Haviland, while her husband (his clerk) is on service as one of Ellsworth's New York Fire Zouaves, is the main passion of the story, and this is relieved by a pleasant underplot, in which Kate Haviland and Edward Minthurne are principal perormers. There is one episode, occupying most of second chapter, relating how the news of the soldier of the Revolution and of the war of 1812, himself nearly a century old, broke his heart at the news, in the very set of sharpening the sword which he had wielded against his country's foss in youth and manhood. The whole of this episode i dmirably told, and is doubly impressive because it is told with the utmost simplicity of diction. "The Days of Shoddy" is good, as a story-so far as it goes. The author has greatly overlaid it with accounts of enlistment, volunteering, marching, camp-life, and battle. In his previous novel of Shoulder-Straps," Mr. Morford dragged in an ac count of the battle of Malvern Hills, which occupied about sixty consecutive pages in the book, making it a partisan history rather than a romance. Here, THE CASE OF COL. MCREYNOLDS.—Brig. Gen. G. S. Hays, United States Volunteers, and Col. Gray, 6th Maine Volunteers, have been detailed as Gray, on Maine Volunteers, have been detailed at members of the general court martial, of which Brig. Gen. Robert B. Mitchell, United States Volun-teers, is president, now in session in this city, and engaged in the trial of Col. Andrew J. McReynolds, lst New York Cavalry, for misconduct before the enemy and divers treasonable practices.—Tribune.

there is not so much monopolizing of space, but mitted the military recital in the book, or only ouched on it. The story extends from the fall of Sumpter to the battle of Bull Run. Burthett Haviand, as we have said, becomes one of Ellsworth's Fire Zouaves, and shares the toils and perils of war ith his gallant comrades. The plot of the story requires his absence from home, but we cannot see why, because he is a private in the Zousves, a novelist should relate, with the minuteness of a newspaper "special war correspondent," every hing that the Zouaves did in the first three months of the war. This narrative interrupts the actual story too much. Mr. Morford has not done himsel justice. He has allowed himself too little space for opment of his constructive power, which is great. If he had touched on military matters only o far as the action of his characters required, we should have had a tale of unusual nower. As it is. "The Days of Shoddy" is superior to "Should Straps," which has had a very great sale. If Mr. Morford will write a novel in which he will avoid introducing matter unconnected with the actual plot, he will soon attain an unchallenged place high mong the best romancists of the day. The publishers have brought out this book in superior style. It is well printed on good paper, and neatly bound. Moreover, it has, as frontispi portrait of the author finely engraved on steel. This portrait, of a very well-looking man, nearly realizes

"A fine sallow, sullime-sort of Werter faced man With moustachies that gave (what we read of so oft) That dear Corsair expression, half savage, half soft. As Hyenas in love may be fancied to look, or A something between Abelard and old Binchar." We have no doubt that many will read the book, o see what so handsome a writer has to say.

Candidates before Councils. "Is he honest, is he capable?"

To the Editor of The Press: SIR: The above interrogatories address themselves with peculiar force to the old and new members of Councils, of the "Union party," who are to assume the management of our municipal affairs on the first of the coming year. The tax-payers and public at arge demand and expect that in the selection of persons to fill the various important offices of public trust, the interests and welfare of Philadelphia should be the governing principle, and that the utmost care, caution, and scrutiny should be exe by those whose sworn duty it will be to see to it that Bons other than honest and qualified men be for as much as it is immediately under the vigilant polls, have unqualifiedly declared they will no longer olerate disloyal, ignorant, or corrupt office holders. Should there hints be disregarded, we warn members they will not so readily excape the bitter censure and just indignation of their constituents. rior to all corrupt influences or combinations, come from whatever quarter they may, and instead of allowing themselves to be dogged to their offices and dwellings, and buttonholed from day to day in the public streets, by harpies who have neither honesty, capacity, nor shame, spurn them from their presence as unworthy their notice, or curtly admonish them to seek some pursuit they are fit for, if indeed they are Often before have we alluded to the growing evil in this community of placing in office incompetent and unworthy men, and we shall continue to do so whilst the slightest hope remains to cure it. But, as a matter of sheer justice to the city, and to the parties concerned, we take occasion to add here that Councils have several true, tried, and experienced men before them, some of whom at least, if not all, they should not hesitate to select. In short, they owe it to themselves, and especially to the city of Philadelphia, to discriminate closely between honesty and dishonesty, capacity and incapacity and to fill all the offices within their gift with th only who are known to come fully up to this

I am, air, very respectfully yours, PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 10. Capture of the Steamer Chesapeaker. To the Editor of The Press: SIR: The Press of this morning publishes General Grant's order in relation to rebel raids, and "shows his way of dealing with rebels and rebel sympathizers." He says "The loss by such raids must fall-upon Secessionists and Secession sympathizers, in the neighborhood where such acts are planned and Pennaylvania?

If this holds good in Tennessee and Kentucky, would it not serve equally well in New York, or The owners of the Chesapeake, and the widows nd orphans made by her cowardly piratical capture, should be paid and pensioned by the rebels and rebel sympathizers in New York.

To the Editor of The Press: Sin: In your paper of to-day you publish an ex tract from a letter written by a "veteran officer o the regular army," and published in the Army and Navy Journal, in which, after speaking of the heavy oss sustained by the regulars at the battle of Getyaburg, he finds fault with the supposed neglect of the remains of the regulars who fell in that battle by those in charge of the National Cemetery. I am glad to inform him and the public, which has am glad to inform him and the public, which has been misled by his letter, that he is in error in writing that no plot of ground is laid out in which to inter the regulars. In the original design of the official design of the interment of the inner row of State lots for the interment of the remains of the United States Regulars, and they are being exhumed with the greatest care, under the strict supervision of Mr. S. There are already busied in that lot sixty eight bodies of regulars, who are known and named.

I do not know how the writer could have fallen into the error he has, unless from an inspection of a very imperfect and incorrect wood out of the National Cemetery, which I have seen given in some of the papers. A correct map of the National Cemetery grounds will be published in pamphlet, with tery grounds will be published in pamphlet, with Mr. Everett's oration.
In order to correct the error into which the writer has fallen, and which has thus gone before the public, I respectfully request of the publishers of the Army and Navy Journal to give this letter a place in their next issue of the Journal.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Dec. 9, 1863. The Ash Carts. To the Editor of The Press: SIR: Can you inform us why the ash-carts never come up the higher parts of Chestnut street, and its environs? We are quite in a dilemma to know what to do with our "débris;" the back street will, I fear, soon be impassable. It certainly is disgraceful to such a city as ours, for any street to present such an appearance. Can you suggest a remedy? and

A BEAUFORT (N. C.) correspondent of the Boston Traveller mentions the following incident:

"A family of negroes, consisting of an old woman, nearly ninety years of age, her daughter, and three grand-children, arrived at Fort Macon last night, having escaped from Onslow Sunday night, and walked nearly thirty miles. They said their owner was so nearly starved himself that he could not longer keep his slaves, and that he had let out the younger members who were able to work, while the old and feeble were in actual danger of death from starvation. The poor old creature was so nearly exhausted from her sufferings in getting away that it is doubtful if she lives to realize the idea she has so long coveted. The youngest was an infant at the breast, and had to be carried all the weary way. They were kindly cared for by the officers of the fort."

LETTER FROM GENERAL HALLECK.

LOYALTY IN ARRANSAS.—A letter from a responsible person in Alkansas says that a large proportion of the inhabitants still resident there are loyal, and would be delighted to get back into the Union on any terms. The same letter says that even General Steele, who used to be one of the most inveterate pro-slavery officers in the service, has been converted, and now unhesitatingly declares that the

I could hardly refuse my right arm, if it could serve those who maybap have lost theirs in the struggle for national unity.

Fifteer years ago last March, I remember standing on the deck of a little French steamer as she was glicing among the shipping into the port of Geros. I was leaning on the guard gazing almost vacantly, now at the distant city lying white on the mountain slope, and its background of snow-capped creety, and again at the bewildering variety of strange-looking vessels all around. Suddedly, as we passed a giant man-of war, she ran up her colors to greet the sunrise, and a thrill shot through my heart as I saw the glory of the morning sunlight stream upon our own "Stripes and Stars." It was an unexpected vision of home to me—of vast prairies and long lines of railroads, great rivers, crowded cities, green forcats, smiling fields, friendly voices, and loved faces, that took away all thought of the stronge land I was entering; and, as an explanatory "Italian at my elbow remarked to his neighbor," The flag of the great Republic," I would not have exchanged my right to say "that flag is mine," for the grandest of the tottering thrones of Europe.

This little circumstance I might have forgotten, or recalled only to smile at my youthful enthusiasm, if the political struggles of the country had continued, during my lifetime, to be what they used to be, a figuable for places, under the shadow of the flag. But the cannon aimed by the slave aristocracy at Sumpter, in 1861, struck upon the chord-that had slept for years, and when the flag was trailed in the dust by those who had been so prosperous and too favored under its protection, it flashed upon me, as upon all the Northern people, that our wealth, our vast resources, our prosperity and liberty, are nothing, without our flag. So I heard the railying cry in cities and towns, and along the country roads, and saw the march of men hurrying to defend their own, with joy; and now, when the same men, but changed by exposure, hunger, cold, disease, and wound ### JOARD | 100 New Creek | 1 | 200 New Creek | 1 | 200 Oena Compon 58 | 103 | 200 Union Canal 63 | 56 | 201 | 200 Oena Compon 58 | 103 | 200 Cata R Prof. | 50 32 | 200 Compon 58 | 104 | 200 Cata R Prof. | 50 32 | 200 Compon 58 | 50 | 200 C J Green & Coates A. 20

S. H. ROSEORANS. GEORGE W. McLAUGHLIN, Esq. THE PUNISHMENT OF SLAVEHOLDERS.—Mr. Lovejoy's bill for the punishment of slaveholders, of which he gave notice on the first day of the session, provides that all slaves freed by the emancipation proclamation of January I, or by act of Congress, shall be declared to be citizens, and competent witnesses in United States courts. Any one attempting to reduce any one so freed again to slavery shall be declared guilty of misdemeanor, and punishable with a fine of not less than two thousand dollars, nor more than ten thousand dollars, and be imprisoned not less than one, nor more than ten years.—Tribune.
