The Pennsylvania Senate.

Major HENRY WHITE, a member of the State Senate, is now a prisoner at Richmond : his absence will lose the Union majority of one vote in the Senate, which was given by the late election, and tie the opposing parties. There is no probability that Major WHITE will be exchanged, but too much that his absence will result unfavorably in retarding the organization of the Legislature, and interfering with its action. It must be, therefore, thoroughly impressed upon every Union man in the Senate that the organization, by the expressed will of the people, belongs to the Union party. The issue in the late canvass was between the friends and the opponents of the Government; it was clearly presented, and emphatically decided. Pennsylvania elected a Governor who is for. the war and the Administration, and placed in the Legislature a working majority to sustain him. Any attempt to falsify the results of that election will be an attempt to thwart the will of the people, and an insult to the State, The Opposition have no moral right to use the advantage the accident of war has given, to retard the organization of the Senate, and no just elaim to any part in its official management. The minority was intended to be a minority, by the people, and the majority should remember this, and surrender no light, while acting in all courtesy to their opponents. The Pennsylvania Legislature is pledged this winter to a thorough support of the National policy, and no honorable man on the other side will make the misfortune of a brave soldier the occasion for an unjust appeal from the formal decision of the people.

General Michael Corcoran. A telegram from Fairfax Court House announce the death of the brave Irish-American soldier, Gen Michael Corcoran. He died from injuries received by a fall from his horse. For some months before his death he was in command of the division for merly under Brigadier General Rufus King, out present minister to Rome. Corcoran was born in Carrowkeel, county Sligo, Ireland, in 1827-descend ed from an honorable and patriotic Irish stockclaiming direct relationship to the renowned Earl of Lucan (Gen. Patrick Sarsfield)-the bravest officer of his day-through his great-grandmother, who wasfourth daughter of William Fitzgerald, of Cloon-more, in the county of Roscommon, and greatughter of the gallant Sarsfield. At nineteen after having received a good English education, he entered the lish constabulary establishment, ser-ing for three years. In 1819 he came to America, and for some years in the employ of the propriato of Hibernia Hall, New York, whom he succ business in 1861. During the well known " Quaran tine War," in 1858, Captain Corcoran, then senior captain of the 69th, was complimented by the Inor General. In his official remerit the inspector said: "What I might say Of Captain Corooran, commanding Company A, as to his military knowledge, would not add his already well-known reputation as the best, if not the very best, officer of his rank in the 1st Division.", On the 25th of August, 1859 h was elected to fill the vacant coloneloy of the regiment. One particular feature of his career in that capaolty was the fact that in 1860 he dec parade his command of Irish born citizens to do honor to Prince Albert. For this offence he was tried by court martial; but, on the breaking out of the rebellion, the proceedings were quashed, the more especially as Colonel Corcoran arose from a sick couch to take command of his regiment in the

In the advance of the army, under McDowel upon Manassar, the "Irish" 69th, under Colonel Corcoran, was brigaded under the command of Col (now Major General) Sherman. The gallantry dis-played by the regiment, at the battle of Bull Run, is still remembered with pride and pleasure by every time and loysi American. A Draft Necessary. THE THIRTY DAYS' FURLOUGH. A Draft Necessary. Mr. FESSENDEN said that we might go on, and fail to pass the bill, and the expense of enlistment would run on under the pledge of the War Department, till the bounties would absorb more than the bill demanded. We should regulate the matter by law. He wanted the Excentive to know, that when a law is given, it was no part of their duty to make promises they cannot per-form. They were led into this mistake by an error of calculation. Enlistments had come in so much faster they were subsequently found without the means to re-deem their pledges. He had no particular famil to find with them, because the reality had exceeded their calor-lations. Congress is the body to cettle these questions, and iters should be settled now. In its earliest stages this disease is commonly called a cold, or a cold in the breast. It usually comes on with a little hoarseness, followed by a moderate cough, with a sight feelings of heat or sore-ness about the throat and chest. If not arrested, the cough becomes one of the most prominent symptoms, a well as the most painful and distressing; the influence tion increases in intensity until it finally interferes with the access of air to the inng sells, when the vital powers soon give way.
