LETTER FROM WASHINGTON.

Valuable Books of Autograph Letters from Eminent Americans, Given by Colonel Forney to the Western Sanitary Fair-How Great Men Write-A Racy Letter from Buchanan. Special Correspondence of the Cincinnati Gazette.]

(5pecial Correspondence of the Cincinnati Gazette, 1. WASHINGTON, Dec. 16. In one of the daintiest paragraphs of the first vo-ilume of his history, Kinglake, in describing the au-tograph collections of original papers which Lady Ragian had placed at his disposal, tells how the strategic plans of the much-contriving Emperor-still carrying the odor of the Havanas which ald the ingenuity of the Tullerias-and the papers of the suffunction of the first of the radius of the arbitude Se-bastopol by malaria, and of the autiquarian who wanted to take it with bows and arrows, and reports, and returns, and things precise, and the most hurrled sorawj of the commander, laboring under the stress of deep emotion, all lay ranged together, flat, and hushed, and docketed.

sorawl of the commander, laboring under the stress of deep emotion, all lay ranged together, flat, and hushed, and docketed. I have been spending the evening looking over comething of the same sort-not so varied in the subjects discussed, perhaps, but embracing familiar letters from a wider and higher range of men. It is a collection in two quartor volumes, of autograph letters from eminent public men, shiefly Senators, who have been in correspondence with the secretary of the Senate, assorted and arranged by Hon. John W: Forney, and by him presented to the Western Sanitary Fair, soon to be held in Chiceinnati. There would have been a manifest impropriety in tuning for such a purpose any letters but those rela-ting to ordinary business matters, and hence the col-lection gives noor of those piquant revolations that might, at first thought, be expected. Still there are bits of character cropping out here and there that give a most enjoyable zest to the pages of these volumes. Take the following for example, from the first letter in the second volume; and remember, as you read it, that the "Old Public Functionary" who takes nesignedly about his not struggling to retain office, only entered the seramble for and won the mission to Great Britain and the Presidency after this delicious bit of retring humility : "WHEATLAND (Near Lancaster). "9th January. 1850. "I hope to visit Washington, in the early part of the week after next, and anhidigate much pleasate in meet-ing with all once more. Is like the worst spectrum of a subort of prime to beginnings. In singular contrast are the few notes the volumes contain from Daniel Webster. The writing is coarse and irregular, but with a great deal of massuline vigor, and quite legible. A similar vigor seems to mark the irregular but easily-read notes of Thomas H Barton

H. Benton. David R. Atohison, badly eminent during the Kan-sas contest, as the Border rufilan Vice President of the United States, writes a mere sorawl, cramped as well as illegible; near his letters are others, bearing the neat, round, and rather showy signature of John T Unit

The heat, round, and rather showy signature of four Judah P. Benjamin contributes a letter or two, full of facile flourishes like the man. J. M. Mason, whose haughty departure England has been lately deploring—not nearly so much as the rejoiced over getting him out of Fort Warren—writes a small sorawling hand, rather difficult to read. Near it is the grampad; illegible hand of Salmon P. Chaso; Unaries Summer's notes evidently come from a man who once wrote well, but, though still rather than a goose quill. Horatio Seymour indulges in flourishes. The body of his letter is smoothy and roundly written, very

Than a goose-quill. Horatio Seymour indulges in flourishes. The body of his letter is smoothly and roundly written, very much as his plausible speeches are delivered; near his letter are one or two in the neat but careless chirography of "H. Clay," as the Sage of Ashland always signed himself. Next somes the rather good-looking, but difficult hand of R. M. T. Hunter, and next "Gov." Geo. E. Pugh announces, with savage earnestness, that the newspaper clerk has been sending him the New York Herald, and that he wants it for thy with stopped as he won't have it at any price or without price. Several of the thick, yellowish old sheets bear will with so fignatures of the men of thirty or forty years ago, among which one picks out will be Mangun, Felix Grudy. Wm. C. Preston, John Tyler, Thomas Ewing, J. P. King, Hamilton Fish, Tallmadge, Taliafero, etc. As a rule these cild fashioned signatures are better written than those of their successors in our public places. Among more recent ones, it is a little startling to some upon a very friendly epistle from Jeffer-en Davie in the little crammed irregular, sorawing

Among more recent ones, it is a inducation if to some upon a very friendly epistle from Jeifer-son Davis, in the little, oramped, irregular, sorawing hand that now sets forth the orders of the almost absolute chief of the greatest conspiracy in modern times. Near it are the great, sprawling obsraters of George Banoroft's signature; and next the little, delicate, lady-like hand of Winfield Socit. Character is often said to be read in the handwriting. If so, that of General Scott must be the exception which puorea the rule.

BRITISH PORTRAIT GALLERY .-- An interesting article appears in All the Year Round, descriptive of the chief portraits in the collection of one hundred and sixty-four now constituting the new British Gallery. We take the following extract:

Gallery. We take the following extract: What a blow is administered to the science of physiognomy—considered as a science—by the well-known profile portrait of Wolfe exhibited in this gallery. From the extreme tip of a little, mean, turn up nose, the line of the profile recedes, at full gallop, to where the still retreating forehead is lost in the cocked hat; while the lower part of the face falls away almost more violently from that same point of departure; the end of the nose. The upper lip recedes from the nose, the under lip recedes from the upper lip, and the chin is so small and so retreat-ing that it is, as a feature, almost wanting; it might be one of the folds of skin about the neck. And this is Wolfe—Wolfe the heroin, the wise—the man, whose judgment and discretion weres or early proved, that he was entruated, at the age of thirty-four, with that great and important expedition against Que-be, in the successful orisis of which he, to use his own words, "ided contented." Another remarkable instance of a head calculated to surprise the student of physiognomy is the por-trait of 1 aftronr_Chancellor Laffreers the cruel and bec, in the successful crisis of which he, to use his own words, "died contented."

 Anothor remarkable instance of a head calculated to surprise the student of physiognomy is the portation of Jeffreys. Chancellor Jeffreys, the cruel and unjust judge. This oruel, violent, drunken judge, has, at first night, the countenance of a holy, sensitive, reflective person, with regular, handsome features, and an expression of refined melancholy. Close sorthing, however, reveals something cruel as well as melancholy in the heavy eyes.
 These, however, are exceptional cases in most instances, the portraits in the collection are wonderinging the to the preconceived idea of the persons represented. Take, for instance, the beautiful to imagine anything finer. Indeed, the head is almost ideal in its splendor. This bust of Hampden inginee adapting for crumwell, was modeled from life-is so intense that you almost expect the cold clay to burst into action as you houk at it.
 To stand before it is like being near a loaded Armistrong gun—a steam engine waiting for the twist of a handle to tear along the road-a race-horse held back at the starting-place. To change the destions of a landle to tear along the road-a time of refinement, more feeling. He looks a true gentleman, in course for and head are of a different type. With less of a great country, to convuise it from end to end, and from side to side, seems too small a work for the two tor park adding and excert is nore of refinement, more feeling. He looks a true gentleman, in course for a specific of come well actions there here along the recourse, it he man who was "inverse interment, it con any resolution he had itsen, "one can word the thore and excert is nore of refinement, more feeling. He looks a true gentleman, in course for other shoes of the men who was "inverse interment, incore and excert is nore of refinement, more feeling. He looks a true gentleman, in course for ourse it is previouily f by the under secretaries in the cabinet of the minister." SCHILLER'S "Robale und Liebe" was recently performed at Berlin, and when Lady Milford says to Ferdinand, "I was the Sovereign who gave you this sword," the actor replied, "It is the State which gave it me through the hands of the Sovereign," which addition to the drama called forth immense applause from all parts of the house. Two canaries, a pork pie from Devonport to London, pair of white mice, leeches in bladder, bot-tle of oream sample of eider, a roast duck, a loaded pistol, fish, replies, &., were among the articles sent through the British post office before the recent regulation, fixing the size and shape of packages, was made. A YOUNG lady, named Pauline Pérès, has received the soademin honor of Baccalaurfat-ès-letives at the recent examination at Bordeaux. She is the third lady lately thus distinguished in France-Mdlle. Royer at Lyons and Mdlle. Milne Edwards at Paris, being the other two. THE Warsaw people are obliged to earry lanteras of different colors-white for persons who have not been arrested, yellow for doubtful, red for suspected --and with the name and address of the wearer painted on the glass. M. THIERS is said to be responsible for the follow-ing bon mol: "Until now there have only been con-sultations of physicians; but if the Congress takes place, this time there will have been a consultation of the sick," was made,

A OITY IN THE ROOKY MOUNTAINS.—The resi-dent population of Virginia, Nevada Territory, on the lat of July, was estimated at 15,000, the daily average number of transient visitors being as many more. Main street, which is the Broadway and wall of the city, is some three qurieters of a mile in length, crowded with every grade and description, a large proportion being clegantly dressed males and females. The buildings of Main street are mostly brick, the first story iron, open in front. This gives a light, cheerful appearance to the street, especially in the night time, when brilliantly lighted with gas. Many of the buildings in the city are provided with vaults and salamanders; the four and fivesfory brick and front fireprof now going up, all have one of both of these indis-pensable features. Some of whe streets are no blocked up with lumber, brick, and mortar, that teams are at times unable to get along. Common laborers get from $2 to $4 a day, without board. The city supports four daily newspapers, a theatre, opera-house, several churches, any number of nego minstrels and melodists, to say nothing of the insti-tutions already enumerated above. At Wells & Fargo's banking house and express office it is not un-common to see tons of "silver bricks" wheeled in and out in the course of an hour. These "brick" in shape resemble the ordinary fire-brick ', but are is form fire hundred and ninety per cent fineness, which is form the to fiften per cent, pure silver, averaging some $1,800 esch. The sight drafts sold frequently amount to $100,000. Sums of $20 and upward are usually paid in $20 pieces. No paper currency there, nor in any of the mining fowns west of the Rocky mountains—Sait Lake City being the only place where paper circulates for money. Does the scene shifted to Belgium. ANTWERP. It is night, and we are in the upper part of a quaint, peaked, gable house, the front windows looking on an old Hotel de Ville of the fourteenth century, and a row of peaked houses, one of which once occupied by a king; is described in his history by Motley. The back window shows a sagged con-fusion of red tiled roofs, just beyond which shoots up in 'pale, creamy whiteness a rich tower gradually losing itself in a still more elaborate spire, adorned with a profuseness of decoration, unknown in mo-dern architecture. You might almost think that the structure was transparent, for as you thick you can dern architecture. You might almost think that the structure was transparent, for as you think you can plainly, through the delicate stone open work, see the stars in the sky beyond. In the dim, light the soft whiteness of this spire—which seems to have been built by glasts, and then embroidered and adorned by fairles—looks like a mere phantasmago-ria—an opium ester's dream—which may fide away the next minute.

ria-an optum eater's dream-which may fade away the next minute. St Asyou gaze at it suddenly, as clear and sharp as a Damascus blade, and yet as soft and grateful as a handful of dropping rose leaves, "falls on the listen-ing ear of night" the music of the chimes. At first you are content merely to enjoy sound; but soon the ear distinguishes a tune, and, if you are an ultra classicalist, great is your dismay and indignation to discover that Verdi's influence, is felt up in the edd spire; for the chimes are playing the chorus from "De del tetto natio."

"De del tetto natio." And a little later you can define the air of Pagano

"Oh I speranza di Vendetta Gia stavilli, nel mio core Da tant' anni a me diletta Altro voce non asco to-no !"

Altro voce non asco to-no [!' Five minutes elapse, when an appeggio chord is struck, and in another five minutes is! repeated. Then the quarter of an hour gives a longer phrase, and at the half hour comes a passage from (Jou-nod's !! Faust,'' the '' Lombard!''selection recerring at the next regular hour. In your sheep the chime music mingles strangely with your dreams, and this awaetest of all the volces of the night remains as your dearest memory of rich old Antwerp. A locomotive whistle, a brief whiri, and the scene is changed. s changed.

And jumping jack-a-dandies, For Emmy he's a little stove. Made out of real metal, When she can warm the coffee up. And also boil the kettle ; And when her friends drop in to take She'll find that putting on the coal 's As easy as can be. She must not poke the fire or else She'll poke it out, and then She'll have to take the poker up And poke it in again. And there's a tea set! such a set!

Is charged. It is another quaint old town, but the view is gay and lively, and the hour is not far from high noon. You are in a wide market-place, with a rambling-old city hall, much addicted to pinnacles, and sadly given to guah out at the sides into apperfluous wings and extensions. On the left, peaked houses; likewipe peaked houses on the right. On the other side a cathedral, the lower part thereof encrusted with it-tie shops, (don't print it chops), like a ship's mill with barnacles; while at the end of the cathedral is a grand square tower, as far as it goes hardly infe-rior to that of Antwerp, but now without the spire which it once possessed. The sun is shining bright-ly, and the booths in the market-place are guarded by a marble statue of Maria. Thereas, who, bare-headed, looks as if she would give her kingdom for the loan of a parasol. Just at the hour of noon the chimes in the tower set us zuch a merry peal! I twould never do to hear-it by moonlight, when only sentimental melodies are desired; but here, in the boread day, and in the gay public street, the sparkling music of Aht and giving seems delightfully appropriate. So you think of Bosio, and Patti, and the other delightful singera-you have heard in "Somnanbula," and you won far whether, atter all, any opera oould be advan-tageonaly substituted for Balilalla favorits. Then the chimes, having by this time finished the sir, start at zagain with quite brilliant/viriations; and you listen with your head perched on one side; and you listen with your head perched on one side; and you listen with goine provent boords in the offer and a cobage and a half peole of carrots at reduced rates, and in replying in pantomimic negative you lose quite a party roulade; yet, notwithstanding this cabobge and a fail peel of carrots at reduced rates, and in replying in pantomimic negative you lose quite a pretty roulade; yet, notwithstanding this leguminous diversion from the main theme, you hear enough to; ever retain this sight and sound as your happiest, brightest memory of Mechlin or Malines.

ANALYSIS OF MR., LINGOLN'S CHARACTER. - The Rev. Henry Fowler, of Auburn, New York, in a Thanksgiving Sermon delivered at that place, thus spoke of the President: The explanation for his every act is this: He excentes the will of the people. He represents a controlling majority. If he be slow, it is because the people are slow. If he has done a foolish act, it was the 'stupidity of the people which impelled it. His wisdom consists in carrying out the good sense of the nation. His growth in political innowledge, his steady movement toward emancipa-tion, are but the growth and movement of the na-tional mind. Indeed, and yet more awkward si-lence; his uncouth manners, his grammarself taught and partly forgotten; his style miscellaneous, con-creted from the best authors, like a reading book, and yet Oftentiums of Shave Jones and gook.

Sewail, of Melrose, in these fine lines: Olor Iscanus queries: "Why should we Yex at the land's ridiculous miserie!" So on his Usk banks, in the blood red dawn Of England's civil strife, did careless Vaughan Bemock his times. Oh friends of many years ! Though faith and trust are stronger than our icars, And the signs promise peace with liberty, Not thus we trifle with our country's tears And sweat of agony. The future's gain Is certain as God's truth; but, meanwhile, pain Is bitter and tears are ssit; our voices take A sobser tone; our very household songs Are heavy with a nation's griefs and wrongs ;] And nocent mirth is chastened for the sake Of the brave hearts that nevermore shall beat, The eyes that smile no more, the unreturning feet !

A NEW MATERIAL IN WARFARE.—Chloride of Nitrogen will, it is said, soon be utilized as an im-plement of war. Its employment would seem likely to put an end to all war. Mr. Isham Baggs, an Eag-lish chemist, in announcing his discovery, proposes to carry up his composition in balloons, and drop it from the air in midst of armies and fortresses. "The very mention of this compound," he goes on to say, what plant we in the apple tree ! Fruits that shall swell in sumy June, And redden in the August noon, And drop, as gentle airs come by That fan the blue September sky ; While children, wild with noisy glee. Shall scent their fragrance as they pass, And search for them the tuited grass At the foot of the apple tree. And who show this apple tree.

And when above this apple tree
