New Publications. The new number of the Quarterly Review, (reput lished in New York and received from W. B. Zie ber, South Third street), contains the long and able article on the Danish Duchies, which we noticed article on the Danish Duchies, which we noticed yesterday. There also are papers upon the past, present, and future of Chiua, "New Englanders and the Old Home," being notices of Emerson's and Hawthome's books on England and of Dr. Holmes' famous "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," and a very full review of Captain Speke's "Journal of the Discovery of the Source of the Nile," The reviewer doubts whether the great geographical enigma of ages has yet been satisfactorily solved. In fact, though it has been shown that the Nile flows out of the Victoria Nyanza Lake, there yet remains to be explored the largest of the rivers which feed out of the Victoria Nyanza Lake, there yet remains to be explored the largest of the rivers which feed that collection of waters. There is an amusing article, semi-scientific, upon "Eels," and a disquisition upon "Guns and Plates." Here, too, is a good account of "Rome in the Middle Ages," the best part of which is a comparison of the Eternal City part of which is a comparison of the Eternal City part of which is a comparison of the Eternal City part of which is a comparison of the Eternal City part of William Forsyth, an English hundred years ago. Preceding this is an analysis of the Life of Cicero by William Forsyth, an English lawyer, just published. The book must possess great merit, for its accuracy and fulness are apparent even in the account here given of it. A perusal of the whole of Conyers Middleton's Life of Cicero will convey less to the mind, respecting the greatest oraconvey less to the mind, respecting the greatest oraconvey less to the initial representation and philosopher of the Roman Empire, than the summary here given of Mr. Forsyth's book. Cheero was one of the greatest Romans—yet of him renains no genuine statue, bust, or coin! What shadows we are, and what shadows we pursue. Forsyth's Life of Cicero, which supplies a great want in Roman biography, (for Middleton too much excuses, while Drumann too much secuses the great orator,) will, doubtless, be republished here. In it will be found a great deal to explain Cicero's relations with Julius Cenar. Now that Louis Raporton with the biography tions with Julius Causar. Now that house Raphy leon has himself undertaken to write the biography of Causar, (to be published, we predict, about the year 1900—if then), the attention of scholars, politicians, and soldiers has latterly been drawn to the real founder of the Roman Empire. Those who developed the tendent of the Roman Empire. cline waiting for the Imperial but remote blography may content themselves, now, with Merivale's History of the Romana under the Empire," which takes in what occurred from the period of the first Triumvirste to the period of the transfer of the seat of Empire from Rome to Constantinople. It consists of seven volumes, now in course of republication here by D. Appleton & Co., New York, from the fifth London edition. Two of these have appeared, giving the history of the Romans from Sulla's death to the assassination of Capar, on the Idea of March, A. U. 709-710, which is B. C. 45-44. Cassar. His public career is traced very closely, and his private life as fully developed. This is the best account of Casar yet written, and not even the Emperor Napoleon's, if it ever appear, is likely to equal t. The work can be procured from Mr. Simons, 33 Horace said that the stomach was the true " mavister artium." and he was right. If people must gister artium," and he was right. It people must feed to support nature, they may as well have their food properly cooked and served. Somebody who saw Dr. Johnson eating heartily of some delicacy, rudely observed: "I perceive that, after all, philosohers enjoy good living as much as other people. The Doctor looked angrily at him, and grumbled out the rational retort—"Do you think that God made the good things for fools only?" A ciever magaziner might easily write an agreeable and instructive article upon "Cookery, Ancient and Modern." The Greek and Latin writers could give him a great The Greek and Latin writers could give him a great deal on the early history of the subject, and there is not a country in Europe that has not a cookery book of its own. We possess one in English, printed in the time of Shakspeare. Within our own experience is he cookery book of Mrs. Rundell (which enjoyed a popularity equal to that of "Childe Harold," when it appeared simultaneously with that posm,) and Mrs. Glass, Dr. Kitchener, Miss Acton, M. on the cuisine with equal ability, success, and profit.

The very latest work of this class that we have seen is a 12mo. volume, pp. 260, entitled "What to Eat, and How to Cook it." The author is Pierre Blot, late editor of the Almanac Gastronomique, of Paris.
The publishers are Messrs. Appleton, New York.
The merit of the book is that it is practical. It also is economical, simple, and comprehensive, containing over a thousand receipts, with particular instructions how to prepare and serve not only the regular dinner, but also breakfast and supper. It also is well indexed, a great advantage in such a book of reference.

There is a short article on "The Stomach and Civilization," by F. L. Sarmiento, of this city, in the current number of Harper's Magazine, which touches generally upon the practice of gastronomy, from the earliest time to the present. The writer sets up English and depreciates American cookery sets up English and depreciates American cookery rather too much. In plain roasted and boiled means the English are unequalled (one's mouth waters at the thought of a boiled leg of Southdown with turnips and caper sauce), but beyond this and plain pudding, John Bull must yield the palm to Brother Jonathan. Mr. Sarmiento says that the Romaus held cels very cheap:—but the Quarterly Review, in its elaborate article on Eels (noticed above), says, and shows, that "the ancient Greeks carried their and shows, that "the eel to a most ridiculous excess," and adds, "They were kept by the Romans in their fish ponds (vivaria), ready at hand for the table when required." Pliny mentions what an immense quantity of eels were consumed in his time. The article, in which many curious facts are collected, is suggestive and amusing.

In this country, although Euchre and Poker have hosts of proficients, the good, old, and truly scientific game of Whist still has many admirers. For them, and for the rising generation of card-players, Messrs. Appleton have published a neat little handbook, in blue and gold, entitled "Laws and Practice of Whist, by Cavendish," which is now the ity upon Whist, as Hoyle was, a century ago, London clubs. It is the best Whist-book er printed, giving a reason for everything. We have the Dental Cosmos for March, in which the most noticeable original papers are Practical Hints, by Dr. J. D. White; Hydrostatic Blow-pipe, by Dr. C. A. Kingsbury; Dental Suggestions, by John D. Wingste, Bellefonte; The Strange Case of inating Man, by Charles E. Davis, New Bed rd; Teaching, by Dr. J. Foster Flagg, and Inflam-action, by Dr. W. H. Atkinson. We may notice also, Dr. Geo. W. Ellis's paper on "Nervous Affec-tions originating from Dental Disease," and the disupon it, in the Odontographic Society. The third number of the Philadelphia Photographer, published by Benerman & Wilson, has just appeared. The contents are original, for the most part, includog a letter on the literary and judicial application of Photography, by Edward Everett. The illusira don is an orginal view of scenery near Flat Rock, Schuylkill, photographed by Wendell Taylor. The same committee made a special report withholding their spproval of the bill for the salaries of such teachers as have been appointed since January. This was done in consequence of the refusal of the Directors of the 25th Section to transmit to the Board the names of such teachers appointed since January who do not hold proper certificates. Agreed to.

The committee replied that they were disposed to give all parties justice, and they were willing that the parties justice, and they were willing that the testimony should be seen by the Controllers and the teachers.

A resolution was offered, permitting the results to be seen by the reporters of the press, which was subsequently withorawn.

Mr. Shippen's resolution was adopted, as likewise a menodment that the averages of the Hancock School be reported to this board for future action. Davenport's History of the United States was restored, by resolution, to the list of text books furnished to the public schools. It was atsated that in the book, wherever the word "so-called" has been prefixed.

A resolution was adopted requesting the joint commission on the subject of common-school education to give their attention to the subject of reading as practised in the schools.

Mr. Shippen offered the following, which was adopted:

Whereas, The United States Sanitary Commission has authorized the holeing of a fair in this city in June next in aid of its funds, and has called upon all citizens without a special manner that they never signed any paper.

Resolved, That the United States Sanitary Commission has sour warment sympathy, and the fair in its aid shall reserve our sarnest and active co-operation, and further, that we commend the subject to the several sections, as well as to all the pupils of the First school District.

SELECT COUNCIL.—The members of Select Council had a special meeting yesterday afternoon, for the purpose of taking action on unfinished business, President Lynd (U.) in the chair.

The resolution from Common Council relative to the repairing of Gray's Ferry bridge was concurred in. Also, numerous other bills from that bracch.

The bill making an appropriation to the Department of Highways, Bridges, Sewers, &c., for grading and bridging Fifth atreet, from Nicetown lane to Fisher's lane, which was postponed at the last stated meeting, was again taken up.

Some length of time was spent in discussing the amendment made to the first section of the bill in Some length of time was spent in discussing the amendment made to the first section of the bill in reference to in whose presence the bids advertised by the Highway Department should be opened.

Mr. Miller (U.) thought no Highway Department had started worse than the present one. The contract system is still carried on by them. They are forced by outside pressure.

Mr. Davis (U.) said that Mr. Miller in the course of his remarks had reflected upon the present Highway Committee and the Chief Commissioner of Highways. He hoped that Councils would judge them by their actions after they had committed wrongs, and not till then.

The second section was also amended, and the bill passed. Adjourned.

THE SANITARY COMMISSION.—The Central Board of the United States Sanitary Commission appointed by the President, whose sessions are generally held in Washington, held, yesterday, a special meeting in this city at the rooms of the agency, No. 1367 Chestnut street. A number of distinguished gentlemen from various parts of the country were present, among whom were Rev. Dr. Bellows, of New York; A. D. Bache, vice president; Rt. Rev. Bishop Clark, of Rhode Island; Judge Skinner, of Chicago; Dr. Van Buren, of New York; Rev. Dr. Agnew, of New York; Professor Gibbs, of the Harvard University, and others. The resident members of the Commission in the city were also present, Mr. Horace Binney, Jr., Professor Fairman Rogers, and Charles J. Stille, Esq. The Commission will be in session several days. The special object of the meeting is to discuss a plan of organization for an asylum for invalid soldiers. A number of these gentlemen will deliver addresses to morrow evening, at the Academy of Music, to further the project of holding a grand fair in this city during the month of June. It is needless to add that the audience will be gratified with the exercises of the evening. The fair will undquitedly be a great success. The preliminary arrangements are expeditiously progressing, and the services of a large number of patriotic ladies have already been volunteered in the good cause.

THE GRATITUDE OF A COLORED WOMAN.

— We were shown yesterday a handsome pyramid of wax fruit, mouled and polished by Mrs. Caroline Johnson, a colored woman, residing at No. 404 Walnut street, intended for presentation to Mrs. Lincoln. Mrs. Johnson has devoted much of her life to the manufacture of wax fruit, and her skill shows itself to be of a high order. Feeling, like all colored persons, a gratitude to Mr. Lincoln for his proclamation of freedom, she has expended no little labor, as well as expense, upon the making up of this testimonial. It is mounted upon a round table elaborately decorated with a large glass vase. The gift will cost about $150—an expense to be borne entirely by Mrs. Johnson, unless she may receive the co-operation of persons who feel an interest is showing to Mr. Lincoln how the colored people view his official conduct.

A Recruit for the War.

A day or two since, a seene attracted more than ordinary attention at Fifth and Walnut atreets. A police officer of the Third division had in castody two colored men, one of the latter carrying a sheep's pluck. The descendants of Ham walked along like a couple of black sheep going to the slaughter. They were finally landed in the basement of the Central preparatory to a public hearing before the committing magistrate of the Central Station. Quite a curious crowd stood wondering at the scene. At six o'elock in the evening the two men were arraigned; one was named Jabez, the other Joab.

The officer simply stated that he arrested the two men for disturbing the peace, and "walloping a pluck so fast between them that he could not tell who had possession of it."

The magistrate, who is distinguished for his powers of investigation, asked the prisoner "what he had to say."

Joab renlied that Jabez was the cause of all the ers of investigation, asked the prisoner "what he had to say."

Joab replied that Jabez was the cause of all the difficulty; to which Jabez responded as follows: "Jo-arb, you knows dat ar isn't so; it arn't de truf, breas de Lor."
"It is de breased truf," replied Joab, "for you knows de pluck was mine."
"Now, Jo-arb, you knows de debbil will speak truf sometimes, and you is wus dan de debbil heaef."
The magistrate observing the under lip of Joab protrading to an extraordinary extent told him to eject that quid of tobacco.
"Sah, dis chile don't zackly understand you, sah," replied Joab. "Sah, dis chile don't zackiy understand you, san, replied Joab.
"Spit out that tobacco you have in your mouth," responded the official.
"Why lor bress you, honey, dat ain't no tobacco, dat ar is whar Jabez hit me."
"De pluck didn't b'long to him no how," said abez.
"Well," said the magistrate, "the pluck was yours?"

"Yes, sah, dat's a fac."
"Yes, sah, dat's a fac."
"Weil, have you pluck enough to fight?"
"I spec I has, in kase of some circumstances."
An officer proposed to Jabez that he had better shitst. enlist.
"Hab no jections to dat; was gwang inter de army anyhow, but can't go if I goes to priesum."
The case here ended, and in a short time the U.S. colored troops had the accession of another recruit.
