RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE. The Late Thomas Starr King. There have been few deaths of civilians since the commencement of the war that have swakened more und or wider regret than that of the Rev. Thonas Starr King, who died on Friday last in the city mas Starr King, who died on Friday last in the city of San Francisco (where he has been stationed as the pastor of a Unitarian society during the last three years), and has since been buried under the pulpit of his own church. We would not be understeed as expressing this much about Mr. King as a mere religionist. For, no matter what may be our properties to expressing his award on the thousand the state of the state private opinions respecting his creed, or the thousand and one other creeds that have found their way into the visible Church, we certainly do not feel called upon here either to become the apologist for, or the contemner of any individual sect. But Mr. King acquired a claim to the nation's respect on which the mere dogmatism of his Church could neither detract from nor vitiate. We slide to his distinguished services as a wise, consistent, and devoted patriot. As the sectarian, Mr. King was only known in this city to that very limited circle entitled Universalists and Unitarians (two denominations, which, it may be said, "By instinct to each other turn,") but, as the intelligent, high-toned man of letters, and elequent champion of human rights, he had made for himself an envisible name by his public made for mineral activations. Although of a different style of oratory from Beecher and Chapin, different style of tracery from December and Company, Mr. Kirg was, in everything that pertains to grace of diction, case and naturalness of action, captivating power of voice, and solidity of matter, the peer of either of them. We well remember the first occasion of his appearing before a Philadelphia audience, as we do, also, his last, and, although his large audiences embraced all denominations, the ap-plause which his oratory elicited was as irrepressible as it was general. Mr. King was born in the city of New York, and at the time of his death had not yet attained his for-tieth year. His father, who died poor, just when his son was preparing to enter Harvard University, was aon was preparing to enter Harvard University, was a Universalist preacher. The death of the father devolved upon young King the duty of supporting himself and widowed mother, which he did by teaching. Meanwhile, he was himself a diligent student, and was authorized to preach before he was twenty-one. Three years after he was called to the pulpit of the Hollis street Church, Boston, (Unitarian,) where he remained for the next twelve years, when, early in 1880, he accepted a missionary position on the shore of the Pacific. The fame and comparative affigence which he had begun to reap in the East as the fruits of his talents and industry, were destined to still higher fortune in his far-off Western home, Notwithstancing this, however, Thomas Starr King never forgot the poor, nor swerved from his convisions of humaniy towards the oppressed. At the Holm sites and the first out of the same o youthful reformer from reopening the war. Throughout his ministry in that pulpit, he was in fact no berty than the Unitarian minister of the Hollis-stree pulpit. When the wealth and business of Boston Mr. King was its open assailant, But it is the noble course pursued by Mr. King ince the outbreak of the rebellion for which he will be most honored and longest remembered. He had hardly become tixed in his new position on the Pacific, before the South, in its atrocious endeavors to eific, before the South, in its atrocious endeavors to break up the Government, aroused his sense of duty to his country, and he at once threw the weight of his brilliant powers on the side of Right, National Honor, and Liberty. He traversed the whole State of California, visiting even the mining settlements in the most scaluded glens of the Sierra Nevada, as the champion of National Unity and Freedom. Thousands dicked to hear him wherever he held forth, and as they histened to his earnest oratory, were aroused to a deeper sense of their country's mission and their own duty; and it is not assuming too much to say, that for California's being to-day one of the most loyal and patriotic States in the Un country is more largely indebted to Starr King than to any other one man in the Golden State. Long before the grest contributions which are now pour-ing into the coffers of the Sanitary Commission from all quarters, had commenced, in any considerable extent, in the Atlantic States, Mr. King set the ball in motion, as our readers will remember, in his own State, by starting a subscription which, more than two years ago, exceeded one hundred thousand dol-sand dollars. It is by these, and kindred services, that the subject of this notice has left an examp worthy of the widest emulation, and entitled himself to the grateful remembrance of the American NW by N. W. Edward Buchanan, Thomas Houser, Levi Young, and Aaron Young were arraigned, yesterday, on the charge of riotous conduct and interfering with a bounty meeting in Lehigh township, Northampton county, on the 29th ult. At that time, a number of citizens held a meeting to devise means to pay bounties to volunteers. Suddenly a gang of oathbound conspirators against the Government, armed to the teeth, made an attack on the meeting, and drove the participants out; some of them being forced to easape from the windows. To make an arrest on the part of the civil authorities there, was not considered within possibility. Information was brought to this city and lodged at Provost Marshal Stretch's office, who deputed Officers Jeffries, Mansfield, Hartrank, and Eager to proceed to the infected district. They had with them a United States warrant for the arrest of eight of the oath bound conspirators.

When the officers reached Northampton they were Governor Higgs of maryland, who desired the prayers of the ministers.

This gentleman has received the appointment of chapisin from Gov. Yates, of that, State, and cannot enter upon the discharge of his duties unites he is ordained to that office.

The vote was then taken on his election, which was carried.

The following gentlemen were then admitted into full connection: Aaron Rittenhouse, Charles J. Little, N. G. McComas, Wm. Swindells, Jacob Todd, David W. Gordon. And the following were continued on trial: John A. Cooper, Thos. Hodson, Geo. S. Conway, and John W. Weston.

When the officers reached Northampton they were given to understand that their lives would be taken if they attempted to make an arrest. They succeeded, however, in arresting the four above-named prisoners without resorting to the shedding of blood. One of the parties, when about to be arrested, ran to a pig pen, where he had a revolver secreted. He endeavored to shoot the officers. The people in the vicinity rushed to arms, and fired several shots at the officials, but no one was injured. As a class of individuals, the conspirators are as contemptibly ignorant as their allies of Accomac county, Virginia; brutal, bigoted, and lost to all virtue, honor, and common sense. The officers had warrants for eight persons, but only captured four. These they caught between Cherryville and Catasauqua. The prisoners had a hearing, after which they were committed to await a further investigation. PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS, The most indestructible ALBUM made.

SIR: It has been stated in our daily papers, and, I believe, without contradiction, that Basil Duke, an officer in Morgan's band of raiders, was lately brought to our city, on his way to Fort Delaware, and taken to the Continental Hotel by the too-polite officer who had him in custody, and that he was there visited by some of the Copperheads with whom our city is shilted. If it is known that such persons visited him, it must be known who they are. Let their names be published, exactly as the Black List of Philadelphia Tories was published, in the Revolution. This is no less due to the Copperheads who did not visit him than to the loyal citizens—the vast majority of our population—who would like to testify their opinion of such an indecency, to use a mild expression, by sending all the offenders to Coventry.

The only case tried yesterday was that of James

January. Both parties used knives. O'Donnell receiving a most dangerous stab in the abdomen, and Davis one in the head. The evidence showed that O'Donnell was the aggressor, and that Davis, in using his knife, was acting in self defence. The jury acquitted Davis, and convicted O'Donnell, who was sentenced by Judge Ludiow to pay a fine of $25 and
