Death of the King of Bavaria.

Death of the King of Bavaria. When the troubles of 1648 induced Ludwig I., of Bavaria-the friend of art, of painters, of soulptora, and of Lola Montez-to abdicate, he did so in favor of his son Prince Joseph, who, ascending the throne, took the title of Maximilian II. The laster was then thirty-seven years old. In 1862 he had mar-ried the Princess Frederica Frances Augusta Maria Hedewig, of the royal house of Prussia, by whom he had two sons, Prince Louis Otho Frederick Wil-liam, now in his 19th year, King of Bavaria, and Prince Otho William Luitpold Adalbert Walden, born in 1848.

liam, now in his form yeas, in the Adabert Walden, Prince Otho William Luitpold Adabert Walden, born in 1848. The old King Ludwig was a most munificent patron of art, and made his naturally uninteresting capital of Munich one of the most fascinating and beautiful sities of Europe-a (In-Alpine Florence. His son, the late king, inherited all his father's re-fliced tastes, without those unfortunate qualities which brought about so much court scandel. He, too, beautified Munich, and the recently-com-pleted triumphal arch standing between the Gipptothek and the Pinscothek is one of the latert of the architectural adornments of the fair city of Munich, which will bear the name of Maximilian II. The late king was more fond of the solety of scholars, philosophers, and architects, than of states he too be if he was the beginning of his reign be had to be if he wasted to retain his throne. But a year later he induged in some of the petity tyrannes to which the small monarohs of Europe are addicted. He exciled political writers and discolved the Diet; but afterwards we find him again verging towards the liberal side, and in the year 1865 his career was malked by an effort on his part to ameliorate the condition of the Jews in his dominions. This was the more praiseworthy as Bavaria is one of the most prominent Roman Catholic monarchies, and as the bring found no sympathy among his advisers in this uncertaking, and very little even among his sub-jects.

INJUNCTION UPON A PLAY.-J. E. Thiton & Cu., the publishers of the popular novel "Oudjo's Cave,W have taken preliminary steps toward having an in-junction served on the play announced for Mon-day evening next at the Howard Atheneum, under the name of "Pomp of Oudjo's Cave." It is under-stood that the movement is made at the suggestion of the suthor of the book, Mr. J. T. Trowbridge.-Boston Transcript.

PERSONAL.

-A misinformed cotemporary violently abuses General W. F. Smith, recently confirmed as major general in the regular army, because, as it says, he failed in the recent savairy expedition in Mississippi. The commander of that expedition was Brigadier General W. S. Smith. There are five or more Ganeral Smiths in the army: Major General W. F. Smith, now acting on General Grant's staff; Briga-dier General W. Sooy Smith, mentioned above; Brigadier General Giles A. Smith, who commanded ed at Missionary Ridge ; Brigadier General A. J. Smith, commanding a division in the 17th Corps River; Brigadier General M. L. Smith, commanding an infantry brigade somewhere out West. Ma-jor General Charles F. Smith, who was second in mmand to General Grant at Fort Donelson, died command to (Feneral Grant at Fore Doubleton, they in 1862, near Pittaburg Landing. — A Tribune despatch from Washington, March 24th, says: "The ladies at Willard's convened in one of the large parlors last evening and despatched messenger to General Grant, with the request that he would give them an interview. He good natured ly came down from his room and underwent a levee, in the course of which he frequently had to give his autograph. A smiling request from one lady to let the crowd go to the army to see the grand review was adroitly denied by the General, with the reply that 'When Mirs. Grant should come down for that purpose he would be pleased to see them also.' The persistent dame recurred to the happiness she had enjoyed at the recent ball in the army. The General was compelled to tell her fatly that, had he been in command, no ball would have been pered, and he added that when he heard in the West that the grand review that had been alluded o was to be got up for him, he had telegraphed an order to squeich it; and he said, in conclusi has been too much of this nonsense in the Army of the Potomas. It must be stopped." --- The charming Grace Greenwood (Mrs. Lippincott) visited the 2d Corps last week by invitation of the 1st Division Lecture Association, and on Wed. nesday, Friday, and Saturday evenings, and Mon. day evening of this week, lectured to large and greatly-interested audience at the lecture-hall of the iat (Gen. Caldwell's) Division. Maj. Gen. Warren and wife, Gen. Caldwell and wife, Gens. Klipatrick and Owen, and many other distinguished officers and civilians attended the lectures, and paid their respects to the fair lecturer. On Thursday (St. Patrick's day) Mrs. Lippincott, attended by Gen. Patrick's day) pars, inppincet, attended by Cell. Caldwell and staff, and several ladies, was present at the hurdle races near Stevensburg, and enjoyed the sports of the day, as also the St. Patrick's Ban-quet of the Irish Brigade in the evening. On Sun-day, the same party visited the picket line on the Daviden During all her stay in the same Mers T. Rapidan. During all her stay in the army, Mrs. L. was the recipient of constant and distinguished courtesies at the hands of many of the leading officers of the corps. The entire course of lectures was a com-plete success, and the association deserves the highcat credit in affording to the gentlemen of the 2d Corps so rare and patriotic a literary treat. Yankees know it when they drive them upon their fult. We need make no more proclamations; we need announce no purposes. The negroes know that, when found with arms in their hands against their masters, they and their leaders forfeit their lives to our laws. DEPARTMENT OF STATE, RICHMOND, 11th March, 1864. Heh March, 1824. Hon, John Slidell, Commissioner, &c., Paris: SIB: I have the honor to enclose copy of a letter from the Scoretary of the Navy, in relation to a forgery extensively circulated by the European press, purporting to be a copy of an official report addressed by him to "T.S. Babcock," Speaker of the House of Representatives of the Confederate States. The paper is on its face so palpably a fabrication, The paper is on its face so palpably a fabrication, that one would scarcely have supposed it could dups the most credulous, even if experience had not al-ready demonstrated the facility and abundance with which "telegraphic news," "Conference on fas-aions," "infercepted letters," and "extracts from "Michanond papers," have been manufactured for European consumption. You will notice that the paper is stamped as a forgery in the mere address, not only by the misname of our Speaker, but be-cause the reports of the head of the Navy Depart-ment are never addressed to the Speaker of the House. The contents of the paper are too absurd for comment. As the Secretary of the Navy has been informed House. The contents of the paper are too absurd for comment. As the Secretary of the Navy has been informed by Commodore Maury that this paper is "going the rounds of the Continential press as gozed," it may be well, if you think the matter worth notice, to make public the fact that the paper is a forgery. I am inclined to think the publication should be made, for no fable concerning us is too absurd for belief, real or pretended, in England or on the conti-nent. A short time ago, European papers were gravily commenting on the "fact" that our Vice President, Mr. Stephens (who cannot abandon his constitutional position here, as successor to the Pre-sidency, in the synch of the death of the Ohlef Ma-gistrate, and who was at the time sick at his home in Georgia), had arrived in Europe, for the purpose of concluding a treaty with France, for the ceasion of Texas and other sovereign States to that Power. I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant, J. P. BENJAMIN, Secretary of State. THE BOGUS REPORT. THE BOGUS REPORT. [From the Whig.] Upon the sppearance of this miserable forgery in the English journals, Commander M. F. Maury de-nounced it over his own signature in the London. Times, but a United States journal, in commenting on his letter, reaffirms the authenticity of the report. Under these circumstances, Mr. Mallory addressed a note to the Secretary of State, in which he pro-nounced the report, from beginning to end, a forgery, The document, however, assumed addi-tional importance in Europe from the fast that the English Attorney General, in a speech in the House of Commons, in defence of the course of the Minis-try on the subject of Laird's rams, quoted it as su-thentic. On Mr. Benjamin's attention being called to the subject by Mr. Mallory, he wrote a letter to Mr. Slidell, our commissioner at Paris, directing him to make an official publication explaining that the report was a gross fabrication. A DESTRUCTIVE FIRE IN RICHMOND. A DESTRUCTIVE FIRE IN RICHMOND. A DESTRUCTIVE FIRE IN RICHMOND. About 4 o'clock on Saturday morning a fire broke out in a carpenter shop of R. R. Woodward, situated on Main street, between Eighth aad Ninth, which resulted in the destruction of the building and a raluable assortment of tools and working material. Mr. Woodward's loss will reach the sum of $10,000 v $12 000. Mr. Woodward's loss will reach the sum of $10,000 or $12,000. At one time the roof of the War Departmeent took fire, and great apprehensions were feit less that building would be destroyed; but a stream from the steam fire engine being pointed in that direction, all cause for alarm was speedily dispelled. On the opposite side of Main street, the fine plate glass in the front part of the stores occupied by P. Horton Ketch, R. Wendenburg & Co., and the Union Manufacturing Company, was oracked into hundreds of pleeze, owing to the intense heat produced by the fire, With the excep-tion of Eaker & Oo's foundry, all the rest of the buildings belonged to John W. Davies, but the ground on which they stood was the property of the Masonic fraternity of this eity. Mr. D's loss altogether will probably reach $75,000. None of the property destroyed was covered by an insurance, ac', therefore, the entire loss falls on the ahoulders of the owners thereof. The fire was the work of an incendiary, and the torch had been applied once or twice before earlier in the evening, but was discovered in time to be ex-tinguished. Barbarities of the Rebellion. A correspondent of the Chattanooga Gazelle fur-ishes the following horrible account of rebel cruelnishes the following horrible account of rebel cruel-ties practised upon an Alabama Unionist. "In 1861 a Unionist was foreibly arrested by a mob, at his house, in Randolph county, Alabama, and marched off in an adjoining thicket; the mob here rified him of his posket-book, boots, and coat, tied him, and held a consultation to determine his fate. It was soon determined 'to put him in the tories' yoke;' but first of all, to try to make him so-knowledge to having done and said things of which he was innocent. knowledge to having done and said things of which he was innoceut. After trying some time to accomplish their object, by questioning and threatening, they resorted to more acvere measures. Untrying him, they took off his clothing, laid him down upon a log, lashed him firmly to it, and with large hickory switches com-menced lacerating him. Four let in on him at once, and the number soon increased to six. They con-tinued to beat him there for a long time, pausing oc-casionally and asking him if he would confess, and upon his refusing, would let in on him more vigor-ously. Celebration of Washington's Birthday at Celebration of Washington's Birthday at St, Petersburg. [Correspondence of the N. Y. Evening Post.] Sr. PEREBRURG, Feb. 24, 1864. A splendid ball was given at the Legation of the United States, by General Clay, on the anniversary of the birthday of Washington. The extensive apart-ment of the Minister was refurnished and elegantly decorated in honor of the event, and the portrait of Washington, elaborately and tratefully enshrined in laurel and evergreens, under the supervision of Mr. Bergh, Sceretary of Legation, occupied the most complexicuus wall of the spacious ball-room. Flow-ers and other plants, in spring-like profugion, adorn-ed the walls, piers, and angles of the drawing-rooms, while the floor of the hall was bounded by a parterre of flowers. Against a wall of an elegant boundor was also suppended a life-like portrait of Alexander II. A t about 11 o'clock the guests began to arrive, and among them were the following; Frince d'Olden-bourg, Duke Nicholas Leuchtenbourg, Duc de Meck-lenbourg, Prince Nicholas, of Nassau; Comte Pash-ien, of Havaria; Monsteur Milutine, Minuster of War; Monsieur Valoueff, Miniater of the Interlor; M. de Tolstoy, Minister of the Posts; M. Mouk-hancfi, of Foreign Aflairs; M. de Richen, Gomte Rosen, Baron Korf, Prince Gagarin, Comte Nicho-las de Orlof Denizof, and the entire: diplomatile corps. The ladies belonging to the families enu-merated above, as well as many others distinguish-ed in fashionable life here, were also present. The minister of the United States, with a lib era-lity never before withesed in this country on the secretary, with an intelligent diguity and courtersy, the result of many years' experience of foreign life. Mr. Ball's Coriolanus. St. Petersburg. Mr. Ball's Coriolanus. [Boston Correspondense of the Round Table ] Mr. Ball has jast east in plaster the small model of Forrest in Coriolanus, which he has been making in clay. He made a study of the head of the actor while on a visit to Philadelphia, and fashioned the figure from observation attendant upon witnessing closely his various theatric personations for some weeks. He werified his proportions by careful mea-surement of all parts of the body, and the figure as it stands preserves this exactness, except in a trifting undersize of the head, which brings it nearer to clas-sic models. His object was to give the spectator the like impression of the actor that he derives from see-ing him on the stage. Mr. Forrest, though not in reality the large man he contrives to appear by his carriage and profess-sional skill, conveys, perhaps, on the stage, before all things else, an impression of staiwart power and majestic presence. Without that atmosphere of living personality which produces this result, the sound ceffect its completely as by thus subjecting the proportions of the head to this preponderance of the bodily symmetry. It gives the desired result, while it would need the application of the measuring-tage to detect the variation. The present model stands not isr from 2 feet bigh. The weight is shiely thrown upon the left foot, while the left hand, gathering up the islde, hail way to the front. The effect here is strikingly grand; the outline of the drapery in easy, the weight is well supported upon that massive leg—not in the least, however, exaggerated—and the turn of the head is so inclined to the right that is presents its profile quarker, the face is seen in full; the robe has fallen from the left shoulder, discloses the bare muscular leg, with its sandaled foot, up to the kirtle, which is just gimpsed below the drapery. The head is so inclined to the right that is presents its profile the which thrown a Mr. Ball's Coriolanus.

STUYVESANT. A Contraband Song. The following rare lyric is the favorite freedom-song of the Mississippi contrabands. Its character and enthusiasm are great, and, among songs of its kind, it has no superior. A well known anti-lavery gentleman of this sity presents it to the readers of The Press as a curiosity of contraband genius : OLD SHADY.
