WIND. ENE NNE.....ENE.ENE NE......ENE NNE.....ENE......ENE PRIVATE BOXES IN POST OFFICES.— The law providing for the free delivery of letters by earries at the bourse or placts of business of the persons addressed, contemplates a curtailment of the deliveries from private boxes. This later mode is popular, especially with mer-chants and other business men, and may not be sud-denly changed. They regard it as a necessary sp-pendage to every laige post office, and in the estima-tion of many the withdrawal of boxes would be tantamount to stopping the mails. This feeling has naturally grown out of long habit. Instead of waiting hour after hour for a post öffice carrier, and then paying him a certain fee on each letter and paper, as under the old law; or, still worse, instead of mingling with the crowd, and taking turns at the general delivery window, it was convenients and comfortable for a merchant to stend a measenger, who could, by tapping at a special win-dow, command the attention of the box-clerk, and immediately obtain his employer's mail. This ope-ration could be repeated on the arrival of every mail, and a man would only have to ask for what he might see in the box. Such is the main argument in favor of private ration could be repeated on the arrival of every mail, and a main would only have to ask for whathe might see in the box. Such is the main argument in favor of private boxes. The holders can go or send as often as they please, and get whatever may appear in the boxes, without unrecessary delay. Another argument, however, is that the security of letters is thus promoted. A merchant is con-stantly expecting money letters, and he heaitates to trust them to the case of common carriers. He wants them by the hands of his trusty clerk or cr-rand boy, or porter-persons known and responsible to bing, and in whom he has confidence. Again : the letters and papers being set apart so conveniently and exclusively, the box holder feels assured that none have been overlooked, but that his full number is there without mistake. Such reasons may have had force in old times, when there were but few carriers and few private ioor.builets compared with the present number. But let us look at faste as they now exist under the new laws, and the vasily-increased number of boxces.

hew law, into the force of carriers is such that letters are First, the force of carriers is such that letters are delivered regularly four times each day, the first be-ginuing at 8 A. M., next 11 A. M., next % pust 2 P. M., next 5 P.; three deliveries being within the usual buriness hours. Thus a person may be sure of receiving letters without the trouble of sending for receiving fetters white the total of a security about them. But it is claimed there is a lack of security about these common car; iers. A merchant has not the same assurance of receiving his valuable letters as if he sends his own messenger for them. This is a favorite idea, but it is utterly fallacious. What are the facts 1 The records of the Post Office show more robberies by there special messengers than by letter carriers or clerks. Moreover, it must be remembered that a letter carrier, being a sworn officer, under the Post Office laws, it he steals, is guilty of, felony, and is sent to the protentiary.

russ Onice is we, in the secare, is gointy or leading, and is sent to the periotentiary. Private measurements have repeatedly been detected in stealing, and exployers in this city can testify to the fact, and to the further fact that they have not been pumibled. The other reason in favoriof private boxes, that the propulsion of lower into the measurements which the

The other reason in favoriof private boxes, that the assortment of letters into them prevents mistakes, is founded on ignorance of the inside working of a large Post Office; a few figures will show how diffi-cult it is (and indeed next to an impossibility) to avoid mistakes in boxing letters. In the Philadeiphis (fibe there are in use 2,200 private boxes. Now, what with the several names making up a tim. the names of employees or even indivioual members of a man's family, the whole list of names connected with these boxes is swelled to more than 3 600 It is not reasonable to assort that human memory will grasp these 3,000 names so that each patiential time; applicants wait out-side, there is no time to examine its norther. THE POLICE. (Before Mr. Alderman Beitler.] Another Chapter in the Gigantic Swind-ling Case. Some time since a number of persons were ar-raigned in private, at the Central Station, on the charge of conspiracy to cheat and defraud a number of merchants doing business in Philadelphia. The proceedings, of course, were not developed publicly at that time, and we have not yet heard mentioned the entire amount of the great swindle. Yesteriasy afternoon a public hearing took place at the Central Station, of a person who keeps a store in Balti-more, in whose place of business were found some of the goods, obtained by another man under alleged phis, though keeping a store in Baltimore, and it is also said one in Newbern, N. C. It is probable that he has a good defence to make, as there does not faite pretences. The accured residues in Philadel-phis, though keeping a store in Baltimore, and it is also said one in Newbern, N. C. It is probable that he has a good defence to make, as there does not faite set other business people on guard, and for their edification we present and liquor dealers, was called to the witness atand. He testified that W. Stymote Weed came to his place and pucchased a great amount of goods; he said that he was recom-mended by a man mamed Charles Shicks, a field or an acquaintance of mine; I received Weed's notes for the amount; those that field due first were pead, but there was one note for $7,200 that has never bead pad.
