It is the information of the strain and the second strain of the stra stible. Some people, not given to deep thinking, are opposed to the introduction of more steam fire engines, because of the great danger of property being destroyed by flood.

It is very stident, that had Philadelphia sixty steam engines instead of thirty, and nad thirty-five districts instead of seven, it would seldom be mesessary to have more than two engines at any one fire, under the piovations of well-defined laws?
We might say that during the past three or four weeks there have been about the usual number of fires, and, though the State House bell'did not ring, yet the flames were speedily put out. On Sunday morning last a big fire occurred. A large amound, of property was in danger. The chief of the department telegraphed to the Central Station to ring a general alarm. This was proper, and yet it was not absolutely receasary for all the statemers to go into service. More steamens, and a more extended telegraph, would make the system for the extinguishment of fires of the complete.

A Word of Explanation.

A Word of Explanation. In regard to the investigation in the alleged great swindling case, an elaborate report of which was published in The Press a few days since, there was an error that cannot be attributed to the reporter. In the evidence of Mr. Sternberger, who alludes several times to a person whom he called "Shick" agent," he alluded to "Shick" personally, when it is very evident that he intended to allude to the "agent" consequently, the report to that extent included Mr. Shick as one of the guilty parties. This of course certainly mirrepresents the gentle-man, and it is due to him that he should be placed right before the community. The reporter well considered the importance of the case, and was therefore very careful in making out the report. The mistake was a lapsus lingua on the part of the witness.
