The occupation of the South has been like a new foun-tain, such as is seen in volcanic countries when the stream of lava overspreads the valley and makes a new soil. We must trust to Time and Nature for trimmed and made equal new life. In New Orleans we find four classes of people. I make these distinctions general, although I may do some injustice. The election was perhaps the most available test of the feelings of Louisiana. The Secessionists did not yota. The Radicals and Conservatives were not organized, and ESTNUT STREET. made a small poll. The friends of the Administra-tion had everything their own way, and succeeded in bringing the State back to the Union. That party is gaining strength. The most san-guine friends of the South regard Southern 303 CHESTNUT STREET apl-ti lomination in New Orleans as a dream. The following interesting account of the last hours of the Rev. T. S. King is from the San Francisco Evening Bulletin, of March 4: About two weeks before his death he first com-plained of not feeling well, and of some trouble with his throat. His friends urged him to be more care-ful, and not expose himself to the air; but he though it was only an ordinary case of sore throat, and decimed to confine himself, or call in the sid of a physician, until Friday last. In the evening he had his regular reception, and between 10 and 11 o'cick went down to a social gathering at the ohurch, though still suffering. On Saturday evening he had inivited a number of friends to supper, but when evening came he was unable to appear at the built party come to be married. Mir. King had re-ceived no intimation of such a visit, and sent down, asking to be excused, asying that he was sick and confined to his bed. The party replied that they had set their hearts on being married by Mir. King, and would come up to his bedide soomer than be defeated in their desire. With that spirit of self sacrifice for which he was so remarkable, he thea said he would get up and go down into the pashor. He did so, and went through the ceremony, but though it was performed in a very few minutes, he was so weak at its conclusion that he had to be assisted up to his room. On Sin-day morning his congregation were alarmed by the announcement that he was unable to preach. The attending physician pronounced it as serious case of diptheria, and said he should have been colled at leasts week sooner—it had been too long neglected. The disease gained strangth, and the patient's pro-tration increased. On Wednerday, however, the com-plaint scemed under medical control, but so pro-trated was the patient that for two days it had been difficult to keep up the vital energics. Yead experienced great difficulty of respiration. At 6 o'dolek last evening the attack was very severe, and Dr. Eckel feared that it might prove fam, but the patient possessed wonderful re upon. When taken with the first attack, Mr. King had remarked to some one standing by, "I know what this is—lit is asystere attack of pneumonia." When the second occurred, he said to the doctor, "What is this? Is this pneumonis, too?" The doo-tor replied that it was. Mr. King then asked, "Can I survive it?" The doctor told him no—he thought he could not. "How long can I live?" he asked. "Not half an hour." "Are you sure I can-not live longer than that?" The doctor told him he feared he could not. Friends then asked him it he had anything to say. He replied, "Yes, a great deal to asy I want first to make my will." Up to this time, for two or three days, he had not been able to spreak above a whisper; buly responding to the power of his will, his voice now resumed its old power and tone, and he spoke nearly as loud as ever. A friend sat by his bedside, and he dictated the will. It was read to him afterward, and he assented to its correctness by saying "all right" at the end of each paragraph, exclaiming at the close, "If is just as I want it." He then hesitated a moment, and dictated an important correction. A pen was given bim muth as iforward to a dwarting a first is may just as I want it." He then healtated a moment, and dictated an important correction. A pen was given him, and he signed it in a handwriting as firm and bold as he ever wrote in his life, even pucctus-ting the abbreviation of his name, and putting an accustomed flourish beneath the signature. Then came the sad task of bidding his firends who were present good by. One by one they came up to his bedside; in every instance he greeted them with a cheerful amile, as though he were only going on a journey of a day or two, grasping their hands and asying in that sweet, pleasant voice of his "Good-by." cheerful smile, as though he were only going on a journey of a day or two, grasping their hands and saying in that sweet, pleasant voice of his "Good-by." Some one asking how he felt, he said, "Happy, resigned, trustful;" then repeating the twenty third Pasim in a clear and well modulated voice. At the verse, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will foar no evil, for fnou art with me; thy rod and thy staff, they comfort me," he raised his finger and his eyes as calmy as though in his pulpit, his voice as firm and strong as ever. After this exertion, his strength seemed to fail him. Sinking back in bed, he said, "It is all right for me, but she will teel it"-pointing to his wife. Friends again gathered round his bedside, and he back and smiled them good-by. His little son being brought in, he said, "Dear little fellow-he's a beautiful boy!" kissing his hand to the child as the nurse car-ried it away in her arms. This was the last set on carth. Calmiy closing his eyes, he seemed to go to sleep. A great, and good, and generous man was dead. TREFOR APHIC ENTHEREES IN PROGENES.-The sleep. A great, and good, and generous man was dead. With thou- sands of men in various positions, most of them in authority, and with the power to injure and op- press, we cannot expect absolute escape from per- sonal instances of wrong. I know that no one could be more rigid and anxious than General Banks. His own integrity has never been questioned—not even by his bitterest foe; and he has endeavored to ex- tend the same spirit to his Department. The confi- dence in General Banks extends everywhere, and those who differ from him most radically—who think he has been too conservative, or too extreme —all admit that he has been upright in the manage- ment of the vast interests entrusted to his care. The new men who now control the business and com- merce of NeW Orleans—the adventurent from the	i cope, to which the attention of the public has not been called. This line is from the coast of Labra- dor, vin Greenland, Iceland, and the Farce Islos, to the north more of Scotland. The longest dis- tance from shore to snot less than five hundred miles—a less distance that colless are now success- fully working in the Mediterranean. Colonel T. P. Shaffner explored the route in 1860, and again, with the aid of the British Government, in 1861, and found no obstacles to preven this success. He reports that a large amount of subscription has been obtained in Europe. The United States Telegraph Commany have informed Col. Shaffner that they will furnish birm with the amount be requires to complete it. The United States line will connect with Col. Shaffner's ocean line, either at Quebec or on the coast of La- brador.—New York Times.	21         do         pref 6         100         do         do         101         do         do         102         do         103         do	Schr Mary, Rickards, 1 day from Camash.
