The eighth and ninth volumes of the works of Francis Bacor, publishing by Tasgard & Thompson, Boston, have lately appeared. Another volume will complete the edition, we believe. Here, in fif-teen volumes, are all the writings of the great Bacop, Queen Elizabeth's counsellor and her successor's Lord Chancellor. They have been collected and are edited by three Cambridge scholars—Mesers. and are contently three camorings acnolars—Messars. Spedding, Ellis, and Heath. Of the Latin works, accurate translations are given, as well as the original text, and from the care, accuracy, and scholarship of the citors, this is, in fact, the very best, because the fullest and most correct, collection of Ba-con's Works-ever given to the public, Bisil Montagu's edition being poor indeed alongside of it. In point of typographical execution, also, it far sur-passes the English publication, as it does in cheapness. We congratulate Taggard & Thompson on its approaching completion.

The April number (quarterly) of the American Journal of Science, edited by Dr. Isaac Hays, has just appeared. As usual, it contains a large number just appeared. As usual, it contains a large number of original communications, reports of transactions. of societies, reviews, bibliographical notices, and a

The first part of Dr. J. H. McQuillen's illustrated paper, upon the Anatomy and Physiology of Expression, read before the Odontographic Society of Pennsylvania, is also given here, and will be found worthy of attention, as well as the discussion which it elicited.

Peterson's Ladies' Magazine for May is already out. Its frontispiece, entitled "Deceiving Granny," is an engraving on steel—the subject domestic and telling its own-story. Music, fashion-plates, and readable letter-press form the staple of its contents. The authoress of "The Loat Estate" ought to know authoress of "The Loat Estate" ought to know better than to speak of "an illy written sheet of letter press." The domestic receipts given in "The Editor's Table" are all very good—because plain
