

The Situation.

SATURDAY, MAY 21, 1864.

The Secretary of War, by the official statement of the military situation, has done so much to relieve the auxiety of the public, that it is hardly possible to overestimate the value of the service. The daily bulletin from the War Department prevents the circulation of false rumors of victory and defeat, such as have in other critical periods by turns exalted and depressed the nation to the extremes of joy and sorrow. Mr. STANTON, with characteristic moderation, confines himself to the statement of hard facts, and we know that nothing is extenuated or exaggerated in these honest, straightforward despatches. To-day we have news from General GRANT to half past eight o'clock of yesterday morning, and at that hour he was still occupied in the organization of his reinforcements and preparation for a new assault. Ewell's slight attack was, probably, not undertaken with the hope of obtaining any great advantage, and seems to have been easily repulsed. General GRANT will fight when he is ready; that he will soon be ready there is no doubt. He has been reinforced, the Secretary informs us, by over twenty-five thousand veterans; a number which replaces, almost man for man, those who have been killed or wounded in the late battles, and many of the slightly wounded will soon return to the front. Both combatants are now using all their energies to increase the power of their armies, and the war has been for the past week a war of reinforcements. The Government has sent more regiments to GRANT than the rebels have sent to LEE. and the preponderance should be felt in the impending battles. We have little doubt now in Virginia. General Sherman's operations are all successful. He is pushing on Atlanta vigorously, and has, without interruption, outfought and outgeneralled the enemy. It will not be long before these Western victories will be eclipsed by such a terrible assault upon the main power of the rebellion as in all the past has not been known. We must not forget what GRANT, the man of few words, has said: "I propose to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer."

that one-half of the entire rebel force is

PRESIDENT LINCOLN has conferred a well-deserved honor upon an accomplished gentleman and a patriotic citizen, in appointing James II. CAMPBELL, of Schuylkill county, American resident minister at Stockholm. Mr. CAMPBELL will be an admirable representative of the Republic in that fur-distant land. His knowledge of our institutions and of our statesmen, resulting from a long experience in Congress, his intense devotion to liberal principles, his fine literary tastes, and his high personal character, will enable him to serve his country in the new station to which he is called with rare efficiency and ability. We thank Mr. Lincoln, in the name of the loyal masses of Pennsylvania, for this signal recognition of one of our most gifted

Bandages for the Wounded.

In consequence of the great number of soldiers wounded in the late battles, the surgeons are in immediate and urgent need of a supply of bandages. All the depots of the Eastern branches of the Sanitary Commission have been emptied of these necessary articles, by the great demand which has been made for them to meet the exigency at the front.

The women's branch of the Sanitary Commission has received a requisition from Washington, which it is impossible to fill without the prompt assistance of the publie. Every one who feels an interest in the salvation of the lives and the promotion of the comfort of our wounded heroes should at once prepare rolls of bandages, and send them as speedily as possible to the office, No. 1307 Chestnut street.

LETTER FROM "OCCASIONAL."

WASHINGTON, May 20, 1864. Governor Curtin's call upon the volunteer militia of Pennsylvania is now before the people, and will doubtless be responded to with a hearty promptitude. The Governors of the Western States were answered by the people of those States, when they asked them to give one hundred days to the service of their country, with an and the press. alacrity and an enthusiasm that cannot fail to be emulated in every loyal section. The borders of these States have all been threatened by the rebeis, but none has suffered so much as our own; and now that Grant holds the rebel hordes with a stern hand, apprehensions may cease, or at any rate be postponed, so far as our frontiers are concerned. No citizen who watches the progress of the great drama in Eastern Virginia, who mourns for the immortal dead that have fallen for their country, and is solicitous for the heroic living, can avoid feeling that a solemn obligation rests upon him. Justice, then, to the cause of the Republic, and to the brave men who are sustaining it, demands that we should all be ready. It is one of the characteristics of this struggle that there is infinitely more daring among the survivors of every bloody battle than at the beginning of the conflict. Nothing seems to appal these intrepid men. Whether it is because they are reckless of danger, or confide in the belief that their lives will be saved, it is a fact that no army ever organized has fought like the Army of the Po tomac. Observe, too, how the events of the present campaign have stirred the hearts of our young men. They long for the opporfunity to take part in this contest for freedom, and the records of the department, like the experience of the oldest officers prove that thousands are eager and willing to enter the military service. You will notice that Governor Curtin's call excludes neither class, condition, nor color. Every able-bodied citizen, foreign-born naturalized, or native, will be welcomed into the ranks. One thing is now satisfactorily apparent: that the energies of the whole North and all the powers of the Go vernment are to be exerted to crush the rebellion, and that the more men we raise the sooner this great object will be accom-OCCASIONAL.

He states that the number of wounded, as shown by official statements, is not 20,000, and that those requiring operations had the benefit of anæsthetics, and that all the wounded have been brought in from the camp hospitals and the field to Fredericksburg. The ambulance system has worked admirably, removing all the wounded from those positions where hey embarrass the military operations, and the hospital arrangements are as nearly perfect as circumstances will permit.

An Omission Corrected.

An omission occurred in the synopsis of the Senate's amendments to the internal tax bill as telegraphed last night. It is preper to say the Finance Committee recommend that from the 1st of October, the tax on distilled spirits be $1 per gallon, and from the 1st of October to the 1st of January next, $1.25, and after that date, $1.50. The Senate Committee on Finance leave the income tax at 5 per cent, on the excess over $600, and not exceeding $10,000, and a tax of 71/2 per cent. on any excess over $10,000, and they strike out but 10 per cent. on the veess over this amount, and recommend a nonconcurrence in the section taxing domestic spirits. The Bodies of our Slain Heroes.

It is useless for friends to come to the front at this time to precure the bodies of those who have fallen in battle. The request is denied in all cases. All are carefully buried and their names placed upon boards, so that their friends can find them after the army has advanced. A New Fractional Note.

It is probable that Secretary CHASE will soon issue a three-cent fractional note to supply the scarcity of cents. The 10-10 Loan. Subscriptions to the 10-10 loan reported at the Treasury Department to-day amounted to $1,400,000.

White, Hill, and Villard, who have for some time past been sending laily despatches to papers at Springfield and Bo on, in Massachusetts, and to Rochester, in New York, as well as others in Cincinnati, Chicago, S Louis, and other points at the West. These persons are in no way connected with the Associated Press, which has a well-known, intelli-cent, and reliable agent in that city, as the truthful nature of his despatches for many years will attest. It appears, as we learn from the well-informed ndent of the Commercial Advertiser, that on Dionday night a despatch was sent by members of this Western Press Association, or purporting to have been sent by them, announcing that there would be a proclamation calling for a new draft about the 1st of July, that the places of the 100-days en might be filled. Whether the bogus proclamation was concocted w one of the Association or whether another person ased it upon their news is not yet officially known. It is fair to infer, however, that either some member of the above Association was the author of the bogus proclamation, or that some person connected with icm, knowing the fact that a call was about to be nade, wrote the proclamation upon predictions furnished by their despatches. Price's army is said to be falling back to Camden. Over two hundred refu families were in Little Rock on the 1st. The telegraph line working to Dardanelle, was to be reopened to St. Louis. THE GREAT FORGERY.

The publication of the proclamation forgery in the World and Journal of Commerce created a feeling against those papers which, whether just or unjust, will probably militate seriously against their interest and active influence. On Wednesday mornng the news of its issuance spread like wildfire hout the city. In Wall street the excitemen throughout the the three was great. Gold advanced suddenly. Men began was great those stereotyped faces of gloom which to assume those stereotyped faces of gloom which have always heretofore marked the conclusion of a Yet the doubt of its genuineness was very general. Perhaps by many it was considered as a mere ca pard, concocted by the editors of the twin journal in which it appeared. Others speculated more correctly upon the fraud, and assigned it to its proper sources. Despite these suspicions, the morning was spent very uncomfortably by loyal men, and jovially by the Copperheads. When, however, the despatch from Secretary Seward, declaring the spurious nature of the document was placarde the bulletins, a strong reactionary tide of feeling was developed. An excited throng of down-tow merchants rushed pell-mell to the office of the Jour nal of Commerce, and demanded a retraction of the swindle. At one time there was no little talk of hanging the unfortunate fogies, and subjecting the contents of the establishment to a general dissemication. Wiser counsels prevailed. although the editors were at first intractable, declining to retract what they seemed to regard a genuine, the demonstrations of wrath so plentifully exhibited had the effect desired. The proposed bulletin was issued, and the crowd dispersed. It is stated that "The Superfluous Man" was closeted

No legitimate doubt of the faultles ness of the editors can exist, for it was by more good fortune that any portion of the daily press escaned the snare so skilfully laid for it. The arrest and incarceration of the telegraphic operators is consured even more strongly; and if public opinion afford any test whatever of propriety or impropriety, the Government has committed a deplorable error, one which its enemies will not hesitate to distort into ning, at the Academy of Music, for the benefit of the Yesterday evening the military guard was still promenading in front of the seized establishments. feiling him to the ground, and firing tive shots at him, two of which took effect. A third case, resulting less seriously, occurred at the corner of Broadway and Spring street. It appears that an attache of the Marshal's office had apprehended a notorious bounty-jumper, who, after attempting to use his pistol, was clubbed into respectability. At the before-mentioned corner, the "street statues" assembled in force, and essayed a rescue. The officer, being reinforced, prepared to fight his way. Revolvers were drawn, and the crowd of spectators, which by this time had gathered in one compact mass, lost its cohesion, and parted into individual particles, each undertaking a rapid festination for his own probable well-being. At a distance it presents the appearance of a flourishing village, with numerous chinneys. On nearer approach we find the buildings to be colonels quarters, receiving-room, quartermasters' department, clerks' effices, commissary, accounting, registering, and other offices, officers' quarters, barracks, kitchen, hospital, guard house, photographic collers. kitchen, hospital, guard house, photographic gallery, &c. The barracks are ten in number, and are capiable of accommodating two thousand men. They are each one hundred feet long, and twenty feet broad. Every attention has been given to promote the comfort of the men who may be in the camp, and much praise is due to Col. Zulich, under whose directions the buildings were framed, for the care exhibited in the promotion of the comfort and health of the men under his charge. There is one department worthy of notice, the rogues' gallery, or rather, the bounty-impers' gallery, containing portraits of 285 notorious bounty-impers. If the pictures taken here were duplicated and sent to all recruiting stations in this and adjoining States, much money would be saved to the Government, and the profession of bounty-imping would cease to be profitable. Yesterday afternoon the men were marched out into the main avenue, and after being reviewed by Lieutonant Colonel Zulich a magnificent lag was flung to the breeze.

After the flag raising Capt. Orlando B. Griffiths, on the part of the officers of Camp Cadwalader, presented Lieut. Col. Zuhich with an elaborately-chased gold seal ring, set with a large and beautiful amethyst stone, on which was out the letter "Z." The ring has on its sides the arms of the United States and of Pennsylvania, and inside the following, "Presented to Col. Z. M. Zulich by the officers of Camp Cadwalader." The ring is valued at $80. On presenting it Capt. Griffiths said:

Col. Zulich: The officers of Camp Cadwalader have conferred upon me the honor of presenting to you this humble testimonial of their gratitude and respect for you as their commanding officer. Since your entrance into the service, and your assuming command of this camp, we have always found in you the scholar, gentleman, and soldier. This gift is useless, and in comparison with the feelings that actuated the presentation is small. I can assure you that I but express the sentiments of all the officers and men of Camp Cadwalader, when I tender to you their heartiest wishes for your health, happiness, and prosperity for many years to come.

On accepting the beautiful testimonial, Lieutenant Colonel Zulich said:

CAPTAIN: It is with feelings of more than ordinary emotions and embaryassment that I find myself called upon to respond to your kind remarks in conveying this token of respect from the officers at this garrison. I need not say to you, sir, that if there is one thing on earth that a soldier holds dearer to his heart than any other it is the consciousness that he has not only the esteem but the confidence of all under his command, and I feel proud to to his heart than any other it is the consciousness that he has not only the exteem but the confidence of all under his command, and I feel proud to know that from the 14th day of May, 1861, the date of my first commission, to this moment not a single instance has occurred in my military career to make me regret that I pledged my life to my country's cause, in this most unholy of rebellions. It has been my privilege upon fifteen hotly contested fields of battle to show my devotion to our common cause, and with the kind and protecting arm of an all-wise Providence I trust to be enabled to perform my humble part until every star in the bright constellation of States shall shine with resplendent brilliancy upon the azure field of that good old flag, and the shackles shall have dropped from the limbs of the last bondsman in our broad land, and until our erring brethren shall, by the chastening rod of a mysterious Providence, again rest in peace under the flag they dared to deserve.

Again thanking you, and through you, the officers under my command, for this token of their respect and esteem, and trusting that the glad tidings of peace may soon be heralded throughout the land, and that smiling faces and loving hearts may soon well-one you all back to more peaceful avocations in future life, is my sincere wish and constant prayer.

The Reported Capture of our Supplies by Guerillas Denied.

To Major General Cadwalader, Philadelphia: This afternoon we have despatches dated at 81 clock this morning from General Grant. Last evening an effort was made by Ewell's corp turn our right. It was promptly repulsed by Birney and Tyler's divisions and some of Warren's roops that were on the extreme right. About three hundred prisoners fell into our hands, esides many killed and wounded. Our loss foots up a little over 600 wounded and about 150 killed and missing. General Grant says that probably our killed and missing are overstated. 25,000 veteran reinforcements have been for warded to Gen. Grant. The condition of the army and his contemplated

The army is abundantly supplied

Schriver, commanding at Fredericksburg, is arresting and sending to Washington, as hostages for our unded soldiers sent to Richmond by Mayor Slaughter, an equal number of the principal citizens of Fredericksburg and its vicinity Nine persons are in custody who are suspected to have been engaged with Mayor Slaughter. The Mayor made his escape before intelligence of the outrage had reached Washington. Our gunboats have reached Fredericksburg, and the sick and wounded who could not be transported werland will be brought here on water transports. Despatches from General Sherman, dated at ingston, Ga., at 10 o'clock last night, state that during the day he had pushed a column beyond that place after Johnston, as far as Cassville, hing the latter part of the day with Hardee's corps. Cars were expected to reach Kingston to

OUR WOUNDED AT THE WILDERNESS. WASHINGTON, May 20 .- Despatches from the Army of the Potomac, dated last night, say that a chaplain came in yesterday from the hospital of the 2d Corps, at the Wilderness battle-field, and reported that over 400 wounded, belonging to that course are still in the hospital there, and that they were entirely out of provisions, besides having no medical supplies whatever. Representations of the facts were made to the commander, and to-day it is reported they will be brought in. LEE RECOGNIZES GRANT ALONE AS COM-MANDER. It is said that Lee will a omizo a flar o truce, unless it comes from General Grant, as he ousiders him the commander of the Army of the Potomac. A RUMOR CORRECTED. The report that a large number of wagons have been captured by the guerillas turns out to be incorrect, arising from the circumstance that over sixty wagons loaded with supplies disappeared, but it was found that they had gone towards Washington, in company with artillery sent thither. The mistake caused a great deal of anxiety here, is the supplies were wanted at the front. REBEL ATTACK REPULSED.

An attack was made last night on our right Hank, by the enemy; but Warren's corps met and drove hem back. The attack caused some interruption to transportation on the road, and teams returned to redericksburg on the double-quick, but none wer cantured, as reported. THE SANITARY COMMISSION. The Sanitary Commission was still doing a good work among the wounded. Our wounded and sick in Fredericksburg are receiving every attention from

SPECIAL NOTICES. HOUSE CLEANING. BY THE BARD OF TOWER HALL. Poor Jenks was almost in despair. As through the house he went. His wife and "helps" seemed everywhere, On "cleaning house" intent. Around him clouds of dust did fly, With scap-suds ran each floor, And brooms and pails, and brushes, nigh Foreboded worse, and more. If to the attic he withdrew.

The pantry, they must clean that too, The voice of his loved helpmate, dear, Along each room and stair, Cried, "Mr. Jenks, tis very queer, That you must stick right there! To frenzy driven, Jenks cried, "Oh! What must I do, my dear?

Out of the house I'll have to go. Said Mrs Jenks, "Why, now's your hour. While we are making neat The house—to go to Bennett's Tower,

In Longfellow's Poem Hinwatha was adjudged to nave conferred the greatest boon on his tribe because he brought to its notice ecrn. Every one will admit hat our preparation is worthy of its name, for the benefits it confers when it is known.

WHAT THE HIAWATHA DOES.

It restores faded and gray hair and whiskers to their original color. It brings up the natural shading of one hair with another, thus giving the hair a perfect life appearance, so that the most critical observer cannot appearance, so that the most critical observer cannot letect its use. It makes harsh hair soft and silky, stops te fulling out, cleanues it and the scaln from all impu rities, is as readily applied and wiped from the skin a any hair dressing, and entirely everomes the bad e
