The friends of the Union, and of those who wish to see Mr. LINCOLN reelected President, are anxious that we should fight this battle on the boldest and most decided ground. Let it. be proclaimed that the war has destroyed slavery, and in the eye of the Constitution it no longer exists; that wherever the flag of the Union army floats it floats over freemen; that peace can never come until there is an utter extermination of the rebellion and the causes of the rebellion, and that we ask no conciliation but that which fire and steel place in the hands of conquerors. We have purchased the right to do this by three long years of war and debt and death, and the Convention will only answer the wishes of the country by affirming this fact and taking the boldest and highest ground. We want conscience and courage-neither compromise nor conservatism. The Convention cannot speak too boldly for the country.

purely a personal one, and does not come | State. If Ohio sustains General Cameron his name within the scope of our discussion. What we want is a representative man-one whose record is as clear as that of Mr. LINCOLNwho has served the country faithfully, and deserves a proper reward. If the Convention think that in continuing the President it would be prudent and proper to continue Mr. HAMLIN as Vice President, the country will be satisfied. It is possible that some distinguished soldier or seaman may be selected-as a compliment to our gallant, army and navy-although the difficulty of selection in this case will impose on the Convention an arduous and embarrassing duty. We want a repre-sentative man. It is not possible for the Convention to strengthen the ticket by any of those expedients so often used by political Conventions, for the name of Mr. LINCOLN has too much power and strength to require adventitious means for increasing it. We should like to see. on the part of the Convention, a recognition of the great Democratic element which has done so much to strengthen and sustain the hands of the Administration. This Convention could do no more gracious thing than to recognize the men who have sustained the country in its time of danger and trial, especially at a sacrifice that none can feel who have not felt the power of this once great and mighty organization. These reasons would control us if we were called upon to advise the Convention. They have a difficult and responsible duty; and we trust that wisdom and patriotism may so control their councils that our victory in November will be worthy of our cause and its glorious leader.

Marshal Pelissier. The death of such a mere soldier as AMABLE JEAN JACQUES PELISSIER is not deserving of any extended notice. Born in 1794, he wanted some months of completing his seventieth year. At the age of twenty-one he was transferred from the military college of St. Cyr to the artillery, with commission as a sous-lieutenant; served during the glorious but fatal Hundred Days; obtained promotion and employment in Spain in 1823; served in Greece in 1829; and in 1830 was sent to Africa, serving in Algiers, under General BOURMONT, until the failure of his health . [Special Despatch to The Press.] BALTIMORE, JUDE 6. THE TEMPER OF THE CONVENTION. The interest appears to centre around the Vice-Presidency. The friends of General Cameron are here in large numbers, and have been exceedingly busy in urging the claims of that statesman. It was thought that the delegation from Ohio would favor his nomination. We understand that no decision The question of the Vice Presidency is has been reached by the delegates from that will be presented; if not, it is hardly possible that The 6th Corps, at the time forming our extreme invention-its chief advantage is, that it relieves both the back and eyes of the operators, as with it they may sit straight, and are not compelled to closely watch the work."-New York Tribune. "It attracted much notice from the ladies and thers interested in sewing machines ; it is really a useful and novel instrument-it guides the cloth

"A very ingenious affair, obviating the necessity for the close attention, which, without it, is necessary, and which is very trying to the eyes of the ope-rator."-New York Times. "This useful invention, which may be attached in one moment to any Sewing Machine, is an invalua-ble aid in tucking, bosoms, heuming, Seaming, cording, etc."-N. Y. Christian Advocate and Journal.

The same in substance was also in other New York papers. Denated to, and for sale at the Sani-

It is the wish of the proprietors that the virtue of the article be tested be-fore condemning. A decision of their merits by any one who has tried them is worth a million of purchased bogus testimonials. For creating a healthy APPETITE they are invaluable, and are uncqualled as a TONIC. This result has been acquired by a test of thirteen years. Its merit and extensive use have caused the Troches to be counterfeited, and we would caution purchasers to be on their guard against worthless
