THE RAIN.

THE RAIN. After a month of dry weather, with very little dew at night, rain commenced to fall about Sunday midnight, and towards daybreak yesterday morn-ing the wind freshened and blew a gale almost from the north, veering around with the sun, until a first-point was maintained for several hours. The rain the point was maintained for several hours. The rain the drank it in as fast as the supply came and long as it lasted. The corn, watermelons, and sweet pota-toes in New Jersey seemed to be suffering from want of rain ; the showers of yesterday refreshed them all, and the probability is the crop will yet be good. The meions are ripening before obtaining in size will be small. The farmers say, though not so large they will be much seveter than usual. Watermelone, when ripe, have medicinal virtues not generally known. When eaten moderately they ward off fevers of various kinds. MIESENG.
