It is only necessary to examine the songs sung ha-bitually by the negroes to see the failacy of the ar-gument so often used, that the negroes are uniformly happy, unthinking, light-hearted, and contented in the condition of slavery. Through a majority of their melodies there breathes a mournful spirit-a moan of crushed hopes and weary experiences-a wail of the longings out of the depths of the soul, not uttorly silenced by despair. The story of Moses and Pharaoh possesses a pe-cultar fascination for the negro mind; why it is so it is not hard to guess. A song having reference to it was brought North, versified, and set to music. The following is the first verse: "The Lord by Moses to Pharaoh said, Oh, let my people go 1
