Trade with the presence is gradually opening; some dealers have is-peared in the market this weeh from Colorado and lakin Territories, and there have also been enslo-mers from Kansas, lowa and Kentucky. It is too early in the season to expect an active trade, and the facilities for transportation are yearly increasing, so that it is not so necessary, as formerly, to pur-chase goods for distant points early in the season to insure their arriving in time for the autumn trade. This is also Presidential election year, which it is usually expected will have some influence in retard-ing business, and the high prices raing are also not calculated to help an early trade.
