THE CITY. The Thermometer. ENE. SSE. E b yS E by S N by E NNE COMPLIMENTARY SUPPER. A complimentary supper was tendered to the Hon. Simon Cameron, at the Commercial Hotel, after the meeting on Saturday night. Mr. Morrell chered, as a sentiment, the health of the Hon. Simen Cameron, Chairman of the State Executive Committee. In response to this, General C. made n iew remarks, in which he reviewed the part he had taken as a member of the Cabinet of the President of the United States, and he was gratified to know, as the vast majority of the people of the country now admit, that his views of the rebellion, and the most effective manner to crush it, were proper. [Applause.] If the policy of raising large amounts of money, and applying the utmost vigor at once, had been carried out when the first flame of rebellion rolled up its lurid glare on our country's horizon, the rebellion would have been subdued norizon, the rebellion would have been suddied quickly, a general conflagration would have been avoided, and millions upon millions of money would have been saved, and peace, instead of war, would now be within our borders. [Applause.] But we must not slacken our efforts; we must progress with energy : we must meet and grapple the subject like men, and not cowards, and victory, a lasting victory, a permanent peace, without any disgraceful, cowardly armistice, will be ours, and the old fing will again float freely, as it kisses the morning breezes of liberty, after a long night of terror and gloom. General Cameron thanked those around him for the compliment tendered him, and resumed his seat. Speeches, brief and to the point, were made by Messrs. Scovel, Penniman, Sloanaker. Armstrong, of Lycoming, Shelmire, and others, The festive party adjourned as the clock struck TERRIFIC THUNDER STORM-SOME OF ITS A terrific thunder storm prevailed yesterday morning for several hours. The rain fell in torrents, and caused another caving in of the culvert at Reed and Third streets. The lightning was so intensely vivid as to make the gas lights in the streets look like so many dark spots. In the southern section of the city the streets appeared to be filled with balls of fire; the streaks of electricity could be heard on some occasions hissing through the streets. The lightning was incessant, and the thunder shook the earth. During the storm the steeple on the Rev. Mr. Chandler's church, in the northern part of the city, was struck and considerably damaged. The subtle fluid escaped out of the lower story of the steeple, and then, as it seems, passed to the ground without doing further harm. A house located on Atherton street was struck during the elemental war, but was not much damaged. The severity of the storm was the subject of general conversation yestertay. EFFECTS.

GERMAN FESTIVAL The centenary celebration of the German Society of Pennsylvania will be held to-day at the Washington Retreat. The exercises will consist of dancing, music, games, and an oration by Dr. Kellner. The music will be under the direction of Carl SERIOUS ACCIDENT. Yesterday morning about eleven o'clock, a wagon containing Mr. and Mrs. Brancon was precipitated down an embankment at Twenty-second and Market. The horse was killed and the occupants were badly injured.

Mr. Brannon was a stranger in the city, and instead of conlinuing on the street, he drove his horse up the embankment used by the Pennsylvania Railroad. When he discovered his mistake he attempted to back his horse to get on the street grade again, and in so doing the accident occurred. BADLY INJURED. About one o'clock yesterday morning, a sailor was tound lying on the pavement on Vine street, below Twelfth, in an insensible condition, being badly bruised about the head and wounded on his cheek by some dull instrument. He was taken to the Pennsylvania Hospital.

. THE POLICE. Before Mr. Alderman Beitler. 1

Camden being a suburban district of Philadelphia, we give place in this column to a case that was brought to the notice of Mr. Mayor Budd on Saturday. Nine persons were arraigned before his honor on the charge of riot. It seems that on Friday night a colored woman was standing at Third and Spruce streets. She had hot corn for sale. A disorderly young man kicked over her kettle, and she knocked him down. In a few moments a general row was indulged in, and a riot was speedily inaugurated, in which several hundred persons were engaged, mostly white. The colored residents in the vicinity, being a hard-working, thrifty set of people, became very much alarmed at the cry of the Copperheads are coming to tear the niggers out. These affrighted people barricaded themselves in their houses, and a number of the men went forth bravely to defend their homes from assault. These affrighted people barricaded themselves in their houses, and a number of the men went forth bravely to defend their homes from assault. They mayor and a posse of police were soon upon the ground, and by well-directed efforts order was soon restored. The parties arraigned before him had a hearing, after which three were held to bail to be of future good behavior. The remainder were discharged. It was thought that quite a number of persons were injured during the disturbance, but it seems such was not the case. Nobody was so much injured as to prevent attending to business.

PUBLIC MARRIAGE,

Un Saturday afternoon a soldler, named Edward W. Hawk, alleged to be a deserter from his regiment, was married to a girl not sixtoen years of age, named Ellen Flood. The ceremony was performed in the Central Station. This marriage was pressed by the parents on the ground of something not publicly developed, but which may be inferred from a remark made by the mother after the hymeneal knot had been tied. "If don't keer so much about it," said she; "I only wanted to save my daughter's character." The twain having been made one, the bridegroom was handed into the outloof of the provost guard. He was taken to the barracks, to be tried for deserting his regiment. The bride went into the rogues' gallery-room, where she sat on a sofa and tried to smile through her tears. Though this month of September has two new moons, it is not at all likely that the bride is blessed with a honied one.
