Before reaching Chester an excellent lunch was partaken of in the spacious and elegant saloon of the ship, which, under the able management of Captain Marshmanland Chief Engineer Davis, steamed gracefully down the river, much to the satisfaction of all on board. Later in the afternoon the sumptuous dinner pro vided for their entertainment was enjoyed with evident zest by the entire company, and after the re moval of the cloth speeches, toasts, songs and sto-Subsequently a meeting of the guests was orga-nized by calling to the chair E. G. Cattell, Esq., and William Dunlap and J. Frailey Smith, Esqs., A committee, consisting of Messrs. Wm. Dunlar J. Frailey Smith, Charles T. Matheys, Dennis B. Kelley, Charles A. Gillespie, and E. G. Oattell, was appointed to draft a series of resolutions, expressive of their appreciation of their fellow-citizen and host, Alexander Heron, Jr.

The resolutions, as follows, were unanimously adopted: The resolutions, as adopted:
According to the Philadelphia Ocean Steam Navigation Company, we recognize a gentleman whose services to the community of which the he is a member, and the company he represents, in putting affoat five magnificent steamships, and couputting afloat live magnificent steamships, and couducting for many years, with signal success, the large and onerous business of the Company, meritour warmest expression of approbation.

Resolved, That on behalf of our fellow-citizens we take pleasure in tendering thanks to Mr. Heron for his uniform and untiring efforts to make Philadel-phia in her commercial what she now is in her manufacturing interests, the first city in America.

Resolved, That we hereby tender our acknowledgments to him for the kindness and liberality displayed in his exertions to make our trip pleasan and agreeable.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the New York and Philadelphia papers, and a copy be engrossed and presented to Mr. Alexander Heron, Jr.

E. G. CATTELL, Chairman. The temptation offered by the large bounty now being paid to recruits induces many to enlist without any intention of serving in the army, but with the expectation of finding a favorable opportunity to escape. This is a very easy mode of earning money, but a very hazardous one. An instance of the danger happened on last Tuesday, to a man named Myers, recruited in Lancaster. As Assistant Provost Marshal Shenk was conveying a party of recruits to camp in this city from Lancaster, Myers, being one of them, attempted to escape from of recruits to camp in this city from Lancaster, Myers, being one of them, attempted to escape from the bonds of Uncle Sam. The mode he adopted was a very unwise one. As the procession was passing a lager beer saloon on Ridge avenue, our would be deserter ran out of the ranks and under the protecting roof of Mynheer the saloon keeper. Beer could not save him, however, nor pretzels, for he was speedily captured by a private of the guard and brought out into open day. He was not easily to be subdued, however, and broke from his captor, with the intention to escape at all hazards. A ball from the guard's revolver however, made him pause, and he was arab secured, and now finds himself the inhe was again secured, and now finds himself the in-mate of a camp hospital, having received a wound in the fleshy part of the arm. THE NATIONAL QUARANTINE AND SANITARY This body has been called to meet in this city on the 26th of October next. The Philadelphia County Medical Society have selected the following physicians to represent them at said meeting:

Drs. Wm. B. Atkinson, John Bell, Robert Burns, J. Cummiskey, D. F. Condie, A. H. Fish, L. P. Gebhard, N. L. Hatfield, George Hamilton. Wilson Jewell, James J. Levick, William Mayburry, Andrew Nebinger, A. M. Slocum, J. H. Smaltz, W. Sargent. TWENTY-FOURTH WARD.

The loyal citizens of this ward seem to have entered the political arena with much enthusiasm, determined to spare no exertion to carry it for Lincoln and Johnson in November next. Their delegation was the first to arrive at the meeting on Saturday last, and to night a meeting will be held at the headquarters of the National Union party, Market street, above Thirty-third, to form a campaign club for the ward. The monthly meeting of the Franklin Institute was held last evening. After the usual preliminary business an improved slide-valve motion for steam-engines was exhibited by Mr. Edward Brown. This motion is designed for giving a short cut-off to large slide-valve engines, and is somewhat similar to the ordinary link-motion, except that a cam is substituted for one of the eccentries. substituted for one of the eccentrics.

Prof. Fleury explained the construction and operation of a universal blast and smelting furnace, the invention of Major General Rachette, of the Russian army. In this furnace the hearth has the shape of an elongated rectangle, the interior being widest at the top, and is furnished with a double series of tuyres, arranged in alternate interchanging order. The furnace has also through its walls a system of flues by which it is dried and heated from the outside, towards the centre, and afterwards ventilated. A large number of these furnaces have been built and used in Europe.

Lorenzo Vance exhibited his improved saw mill, in which four circular saws are so arranged and operated that the timber can be cut of almost any shape. CARL SENTZ' BAND AT FAIRMOUNT PARK. CARL SENTZ: BAND AT FARMOUNT PARK.
This afternoon should the weather prove favorable, the band will, for the first time, occupy the beautiful temple opposite the Mansion House, which has been erected by the city for the accommodation of the Park Band. The conductor promises a selection of his choicest music for the occasion.
There will doubtless be a full attendance. PAYMASTER DAVID TAGGART. PAYMASTER DAVID TAGGART.

• We learn that the order of the War Department directing Major Taggart to proceed to St. Louis has been revoked, and that he will continue to remain in this city, where he has been located for the past three years. Major Taggart has been so prompt and faithful in the discharge of his official duties that he has become a favorite with all who have had any business with him, and we are sure that his numerous friends will be gratified to learn that he to be continued in Philadelphia. A. F. Hill, a soldier of the Army of the Potomac, who has been in all the battles in which that army engaged, up to Antietam, where he lost his left leg, has written a book entitled "Our Boys." Unable to serve his country longer in the field, he has done all in his power for it at home by writing this work in its behalf. It is well written, and interesting. Mr. Hill has the book for sale, and it may be had at all bookstores. A generous public should aid this crippled hero. Occassionally, for some time past, enlisted men have deserted from Camp Cadwalader, and measures were adopted to arrest outside parties, whomit was thought were aiding in the villainous business. Yesterday afternoon, between two and three cololock, a fellow named McLeech, hailing from New York hearing propugal assas for savaral soldiers to ness. Yesterday atternout, between two and three colook, a fellow named McLeech, halling from New York, having procured passes for several soldiers to get out, in order that they might jump the bounty, was caught with several passes on his person. The guard attempted to arrest him, when the fellow fied. He was hailed several times, but would not stop. While running across the lot south of the camp ground the guard fired at the fugitive, at the distance of nearly one hundred yards, and shothim in the shoulder and back, the musket being loaded with a ball and three buck-shot. The fugitive kept on running, but soon fell. He was taken into the camp ground and placed under surgical care. Unfortunately, he was only slightly wounded, though he bled considerably. The blood was black looking. On his person, and even in his bootlegs, a considerable amount of money was found, which had been obtained, it was thought, from the soldiers. which had been obtained; to soldiers.

Owing to the above circumstance, the presentation of three swords to officers of the gallant Col. A.

A. Lechler's regiment, the 199th, which was to have taken place, was postponed until 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

We found it utterly impossible to gain admitation the comp because of the utter demotance into the camp, because of the utter demo-ralization of the whole concern. It contains several regiments, and recruits for a considerable number already in the field, and dersertions, for want of proper discipline, are quite frequent. The War Department's attention will probably be called to this camp, with the view of having it more efficient-A fire broke out yesterday morning, about half past three o'clock, in an old three-story brick building, No. 309 Race street, which was used as a manufacturing establishment, and contained a large quantity of combustible material. The whole facturing establishment, and contained a large quantity of combustible material. The whole building was soon enveloped in flames, which spread with great rapidity.

The first floor was occupied by J. C. Homeyers, steam block letter maker and fancy carver. The second story front was occupied by A. Theodore Dietz, turner in horn, bone, ivory, and hard wood, and H. Calverly, worker in Brittania metals. The second floor of the back building was occupied by H. H. Mittheefer, wood-turner.

The building was completely gutted, and much valuable machinery and considerable work, some finished, was destroyed. valuable machinery and considerable work, some finished, was destroyed.

An accident occurred during the progress of the fire in which it is fortunate no lives were lost. The second floor fell in upon John Carlin and Wm. Wakefield, members of the Vigilant Engine Company, who were seriously injured.

While the fire was at its height, an incident happened which appalled all who witnessed it. Between the building in fiames and the house adjoining there was nothing but a parrowalley, across tween the building in fiames and the house adjoining there was nothing but a narrow alley, across which a woman who lived in the latter house, fearing that her only mode of egress would be barred by the fiames, attempted to pass. She had an infant in her arms. She was destitute of clothing, except her night apparel. Neither she nor her child was hurt, which fortunate escape might almost be attributed to Providential influence.

A fire occurred yesterday afternoon at No. 1428 North Fifth street, above Master, on which premises there are a slaughter house and a dwelling. The slaughter house was somewhat injured, and the roof of the dwelling was partially burned. The fire extended to the roofs of three dwellings on Sutton street, which were slightly damaged. The total loss was about $1,500.

A FALSE REPORT.—The report in some of the papers that Gen. Grant had "bust" is a mistake. Mrs. Grant having received and learned to use the elegant "Grover & Baker" Sewing Machine presented to her through the "Great Sanitary Fair," with the compliments of 250 subscribers, the general's linen and under garments are now so well and durably made that neither they nor the General can "bust." In addition to this, his outer clothing comes from a first class Chestnut-street house, where none but the "Grover & Baker" machines are used; so it is utterly impossible for either the General or his clothing to "bust," though he will doubtless very soon "bust" what little remains of the rebel Confederacy.

Joseph Henry Cox, on the outbreak of the rebellion, enlisted with the three-months men, and, on the expiration of the term of service, he re-enlisted in the navy. Since that period he steadily, and by ment alone, worked his way up to the position of Acting Ensign, which he occupied at the time of his death. Although so young in years, he was selected from the list of squadron officers for that position by the Admiral of the fleet. Mr. Cox was quick to understand, and as quick to execute, with a perfect willingness to obey, the orders of his superior officers. This, with his many other good qualities, endeared him to all around him, and all united in paying the last tribute to his memory. It has pleased the Almighty Disposer of events to remove him from our midst.
