FARLY'S RETREAT-DEJECTION PRODUCED BY THE LATE DEFEATS-FORREST'S MOVEMENTS-THE TEACE RUMORS—AFFAIRS AT CHARLESTON.

The Richmond Enquirer of the 27th gives the following in relation to the movements in the valley:

Report says the evacuation of Staunton was prepared for on Sunday; but our latest accounts on pasterday give us no newsindicating that the town mad been abandoned. Early, according to reports deemed reliable, was still in front of the enemy some fourteen miles below Staunton, in the vicinity of Swift Run Gap, having driven back the enemy from his front near Keezletown and Port Republic. The latest official news from that quarter is contained in the following:

HEADOUARTERS W. Sept. 26. To Hop. I. A. PEACE RUMORS-AFFAIRS AT CHARLESTON. HEADQUARTERS, &c., Sept. 26.—To Hon. J. A. SEDDON, Secretary of War: General Early reports that the enemy advanced against him on the 24th inst., at Newmarket. He fell back to Port Ramphila. Mepublic.

On the 25th the enemy advanced towards Harrisonburg, his cavalry having probably passed through that place.

This laconic report gives us no further information of yesterday's operations, of course, and so the rumors must run their course for some hours longer. It is the impression in well informed quarters that this is simply the old valley game being played over the states. Tumors must run their course for some hours longer. It is the impression in well informed quarters that, this is simply the old valley game being played over again.

From Petersburg heavy firing on both sides, without important results, is reported.

Efficits of the Late Defeats.—The abondonment of Atlanta and Winchester has led to much speculation and great dejection among the faint-hearted. They fancy Georgia already is leagued with the enemy and Lynchburg once more endangered by a brutal fanatic. It is of no use to reason with such men—they will only hear what they choose, fear closes their eyes and self-interest clouds their judgment. They seek a sorry satisfaction in blaming an unsuccessful general, and delight in proving how easily all mishaps might have been avoided. The calmer judgment, the warmer patricular, sees no such reason for despondency. All that is really to be deplored is the loss of men. Lives are precious with us, and a few thousands tell heavily in the scales. But, from official sources, we derive the comfort that the supply of youths coming of age, together with revoked details, will enable most enrolling officers to replace, to use their terminology, one man and a half for every man lost. Generals like Rodes are not so easily replaced. Still, there is admirable material in abundance in our ranks, and much more truly than in Napoleon's far famed armies have our men the marshal's baton in their knapsacks. Our forces in Virginia, whose people have, after all, been the backbone and the brains of the revolution, and whose ensanguinod fields will yet see the God of Battles decide in our favor, may not be strong enough to attack, but are amply sufficient to resist. The lines of Grant are attready so danger-ously lengthened that ere long his centre may be pierced and his position seriously endangered. Trying to perform that most hazardous and critical inovement—an attack on both flanks—which even Napoleon attempted but once with success, at Dresen—he dare not lead his dispirited troops to a brave sion," they exclaimed; and have not hundreds and thousands of our own people said and done the same? Such men are worthy of independence; they are sure to conquer it sooner or later. The very martyrs who seal their devotion with their life's blood, like a Jackson and Rodes, after having proved their love of country by deeds of martial daring and marvellous triumplis, are our guarantees of success. They are men who cannot perish, whose voices from the sepulchre defeat the cause to which their existence has been devoted. In their lonely, but not unhonored, graves they still plead with unanswerable elequence, the champions in death, as in life, of their native land. The nation that gave birth to such hearts, that can boast such devotion, such heroism as our noble troops have displayed in every campaign, on every battle-field, has already proved that she has men worthy of liberty and men capable campaign, on every battle-liefd, has already proved that she has men worshy of liberty and men capable of directing her destinies.

And, if the enemy has moved a few miles up the great valley, so full of lofty memories of well-earned victories and unparalleled campaigns—what of that? Has it not already been traversed by his lawless soldiers from end to end, and yet it clings more closely to our fate than child ever hung on its mother's bosom. Thanks be to God, who blinded our adversary and led him to exchange a wise polloy of toleration, which might have cost us dearly, for a mad and fanatic tyranny, which changes the lukewarm friend into an ardent patriot, and converts, even the Union-loving loyalist into a warm Southerner. We are not the first people whose indolence and ready acquiescence had to be burned out with fire. We also have had to learn that suffering is a sign of life—nay, often one of its essential conditions.—Enquirer, 27th.

FORREST'S ADVANCE.—The Enquirer copies from hat she has men worthy of liberty and men capable tions.—Enquirer, 27th.

FORREST'S ADVANCE—The Enquirer copied from an Alabama paper the following hope that Forrest will soon commit more of those dastardly outrages which have rendered him notorious:

The Yankees in Memphis have it that Forrest has "crossed the line," of course into Tennessee or into North Alabama. If so, says the Montgomery Advertiser, a brighter day will soon dawn upon the Confederacy. He, of all others, is qualified and has the prestige to break and keep broken Sherman's communication, and compel him to take up stakes at Atlanta. The Fort Pillow affair is fresh in the minds of all Yankee garrisons and troops, so that when Forrest is reported advancing their cowardly hearts fail them in anticipation of the doom they certainly expect and know they so richly deserve. If General Forrest has been turned loose with his invincible band, there will be a ratising of the bones, not of the dead, as in the vision of Ezekiel, but among the bones of live Yankees. His pathway will be a valley of death, where the bones will bleach for years after this war shall close. Oreate him Lieutenant General, or place the cavalry of the army of Tennessee under his command without orders, and the legions of Sherman would be feeling towards Yankeedom, as if pursued by the besom of destruction. The whole country demands it, looking to him as the great cavalry leader, and marked out for the execution of the decisive work in the rear. He has proven equal to any task or exploit upon which he has consented wrench victory from the enemy. In the new field indicated, we believe that he will display his great military genius to more advantage than on any former occasion, and prove a destroying angel to the modern Sennacherib.

Speech of Jeef Davis ar Salisbury, N. C., a few FORREST'S ADVANCE -The Enquirer copies from miniary genus to more advantage inan of any former occasion, and prove a destroying angel to the modern Sennacherib.

Speech of Jeff Davis at Salisbury, N. C., a few days ago, en route for the South. He was greeted at the depot of that place by a large number of citizens. The Salisbury (N. C.) Watchman says:

On the arrival of the train, it being certainly ascertained that he was aboard, he was waited on by Mayor Shaver and Messrs. Hall and Shober, who conducted him to the platform, from which he delivered a pretty little speech.

He paid a high compliment to North Carollina, to the firmness and patriotism of her people, and especially to the gallantry of her troops, as evinced on the many bloody battle-fields of Virginia, beginning with the first battle of Bethel down to that of Reams' station. He said though the tongue of slander had been busy they had redeemed every pledge of their State, and shown their determination to be free and independent of the hateful enemy.

He adverted to our recent reverses, and said though late reverses had befallen our arms, and a gloom hung over us for the time, the spirit of the Confederacy was unbroken, and that yet, under the blessings of God, we should wring peace and independence from a hated foe. He advised all men able to bear arms to raily to the assistance of those brave men already in the field. The camp is now the place to secure the priceless heritage handed down to us by our Revolutionary fathers. Let every soldier now absent return at once to his command. If in Lee's army, go there; if in Hood's, go there; and let every man do what he may, whether in the army or at home, to sustain the efforts making to liberate us from the despotism of a cruel enemy.

He also applauded the ladies for their service and untiring devotion to the cause, and urged them to resolve to marry no man who had shirked the responsible duties of a soldier, but, rather take the one-armed soldier who had proved his fidelity and manhood in battling for our common rights, than he would manhood in men: Enquirer, 27th.

THE TRANS-MISSISSIFFI DEPARTMENT.—The celltor of the Montgomery Advertiser had a call from Major A. S. Rose, the successful trans-Mississippi courier, who is now on his twenty-eighth trip. He left Houston the 20th August, was detained at Anderson several days, passed Shreveport on the 29th, and crossed the Father of Waters on the 7th ult. Enquirer, 27th. He confirms all the previous reports of the satisfac-tory condition of affairs in the trans-Mississippi De-partment. General Magruder has gone into Ar-kansas with a very heavy force, and will drive the last invader from the State, and do other things that should have been done long since. General Price was over the line in Missouri, and the brave some of should have been done long since. General Price was over the line in Missouri, and the brave sons of that State were flocking to his standard. Kirby Smith was at Shreeport. Major Rose is en route for Richmond with official despatches, and will return about the let of October. CHARLESTON.—The Richmond papers of the 28th contain the following despatches, dated Charleston, Sept 28: Truce communications took place in the harbor to day. Eighteen Yankee surgeons and chaplains were released by us. A number of women and children were sent on board the Yankee truce steamer. A clergymen and five soldiers came into our lines to-day. Stores and clothing, to the amount of one hundred and fifty boxes, from the New York Sanitary Commission, for the Yankee prisoners in our hands, were received and brought to the city. Our returned prisoners report a recent increase of troops at Hilton Head from New York. On the 1st of October an exchange of naval prisoners will take place in the harbor. Four hundred more Confederate prisoners have been placed in the pens on Morris Island.

The Charleston Courier of the 22d says: The Charleston Courier of the 22d says: The Charleston Courier of the 22d says:

The proper disposition of the prisoners is commanding attention, as we are pleased to learn from exchanges. Many friends have expressed approval of the proposition that has appeared in the Courier for a conditional release, on self-parole, of all privates against whom no charges of violations of war rules are brought. All justly liable to such charges should be demanded by and delivered to the State having jurisdiction. All prisoners who are good workmen in any line could be and should be released for employment, under proper regulations and stipulations, with such guarantees as they can give and should be exacted. A pursuit and adoption of these rules would soon solve the problem of prisoners, or divest it of all troublesome features, and leave us only the officers, of whom many more could Jeave us only the officers, of whom many more could be safely kept in Charleston.

The Georgia Prace Propositions.—The commendation of the Georgian the following editorial:

It should never be forgotten that one great cause of the catastrophe which has destroyed the Union as it was, past all possibility of restoration, was the violation of the distinctive rights and neglect of the duties of the States. A recurrence to the States must be a condition of permanence and success for any league or compact that can be formed for any number of States.

GEORGIA—SHERMAN'S KINDNESS.—Refugees report generally kind personal treatment from Gen. Sherman and his officers. Whatever exceptions may have occurred have been in violation of orders —instances of individual piffering, which cannot always be prevented in an army, and in many cases have been detected and punished.

A friend, whose wife was left an invalid in Atlanta, and came within our lines a day or two since, says that at her request Gen. Sherman came to see her, and finding her unable to attend to the arrangement of her movables for transportation, had them all bound up nicely and transported to our lines, even to her washtub.

The Federal General had three hours conversation with her, and justified at length his order for the removal, insisting that in his exposed position, liable to be cut off and besieged, it was the part of humanity to require that non-combatants should not be exposed to the privations and perilis to which his army must probably be subjected; and worse, because he could not provide food for a large population. Goods left behind were stored and duplicate receipts given, with the promise that they should be safely returned.

Refugees report that Sherman's army is going North by thousands, and his force is now very small. Whether this movement is confined to men going out of service, or embraces: reinforcements to Grant, they were unable to say.—Macon Telegraph.

GENERAL HOOD.—The Lovejoy correspondent of the Griffin Rebel says: "General Hood appears to secucial States is a significant fact. May it be ominous of the speedy return of all rebeldom, lay and clerical!

Rev. C. J. Ehrchart, treasurer, presented his report, from which it appears that the following amounts were collected and disbursed during his term of office: Synodical Treasury, $298; Home Missions, $916; Foreign Missions, $754; Beneficiary Education, $1,602. As the contributions of some of the congregations do not flow through the channel of the Synodical treasury, but are disbursed immediately by themselves, the above amounts furnish a very imperfect view of the financial operations of the Synodical treasury, but are disbursed immediately by themselves, the above amounts furnish a very imperfect view of the financial operations of the Synod in these seve ral departments.

The report of the retiring president, Rev. R. A. Fink; was read. It is a lengthy and interesting document, and gives a detailed statement of his official acts during the current year. From it we learn that the pastoral changes during that time have been unusually frequent. A number of ministers have removed without our limits, and others have been received. Three new churches are in course of erection—viz: At Mt. Carmel, Schuylkill county, and at Mahanoy Oity, Schuylkill county. Nine oharges are vacant, which, however, it is hoped, will be specifily supplied. They are Orangeville; Stronds burg, Mt. Carmel, Annville, Passyunk, St. Luke's (Philadelphia), Williamsport, Block House, and Quakertawn.

On the subject of the union of the East Pennsylvania Synod with the Ministerium of Pennsylvania, the retting president expresses the opinion that "further action on the part of this body, on this subject, would be alike dishonorable and superfluous. The entire matter having been treated by the one party most cavallerly, it is recommended that the proposed union of the two bodies be held in abeyance until the older Synod, by its action, shall make it possible for this Synod to further entertain the subject, and at the same time maintain i Grant, they were unable to say.—Macon Telegraph.

General Hood.—The Lovejoy correspondent of the Griffin Rebel says: "General Hood appears to be in as cheerful a flow of spirits as his brave and patriotic veterans. I saw him to-day, surrounded by a group of major generals and brigadiers, in social converse under an oak tree. Where the next campaign will be is soarcely even discussed. At present there are no evidences of a movement. But I have reason to predict that before many moons have waned the Federals will hear of Hood and his army through quite a novel and unexpected channel." ENLISTMENT OF POLES .- The Charleston Courier ENLISTMENT OF POLES.—The Charleston Courier publishes a report to the effect that envoys from Poland have had an interview with President Davis, and that the result would be the enlistment of some thirty thousand Polish soldiers in the Confederate army, at an early day. The Courier says: I understand that there will be no difficulty in the departure of these immigrants from their own country, and as they are expected to arrive during the winter months, we may confidently hope (should nothing occur to mar the plan), to witness, at the beginning of the spring campaign, a grand army of foreign allies of a race that, centuries ago, smote the Saracenic power in Europe, and drove back the tide of Turkish aggression upon Constantinople. follows: "Duty to ourselves and to the cause of our Divine Master peremptorily enjoins upon us to plant ourselves more firmly than ever upon the great principles and purposes which led to the formation of the Synod of East Pennsylvania. Believing that the territory we occupy belongs of right to King Jesus, and that we have a well-authenticated commission to possess and cultivate it for him, we should enter upon our mission with new zeal and redoubled energy. No one can any longer occupy middle ground. He that is not for us is against us. Our Synod has a work to do, and to do it wisely and well, may the Lord give her wisdom and strength, to the end that the Evangelical Lutheran Church in East Pennsylvania may become a living power for good, and to redeemed sinners a very ark of salvation." To the credit of this congregation, however, it may be said, that during this protracted deprivation of a pastor it has not relaxed its zeal as a live church, and that in everything pertaining to a community of Christians, the congregation maintains as flourishing and ing Committee.

Fruits are mostly plenty, with the exception of pears, which are in many cases of inferior quality. Apples are rather plenty. Tomatoes for pickling are scarce. Good sugar corn is scarce. Watermelons and cantelopes command but a limited sale and prices are low. The following quotations are believed to be reliable: SCARCITY OF CLERGYMEN IN THE ENGLISH CHURCH .- The London Times contains the following singular article, which will doubtless cause sur-prise to many of our readers. Few persons in this country would have thought that the established Church of England was actually in want of clergy-It is probably within the knowledge of most readers that the profession of Holy Orders has for some time past been suffering apparently in popular esteem. It is not thought so good a profession as formerly. It is actually understocked, while other professions are overcrowded. Fewer men in proportion enter it, and those who do enter it are not EDWARD P. But as "Church extension" is rapidly going on all this while, the result is a want of ministers, and at last the "searcity of curates" becomes, as our columns have shown, a topic of public discussion.
