All for My Country. [For The Press. ] I. "LITTLE MAC." Give up "Little Mac" for my country? Ay, thousands as worthy as he! Who fall to march on with their country, What boots it how brave they may be? Cur Union as once it was? Never! A better by far we demand, With freedom for all and forever-The permanent peace of the land! H. "PARTY." My "party" give up for my country? Ay, leap from its platform at last : Now plotting disgrace to its country, It shames its own deeds in the past. Succumb to rebellion? No, never! Too much has its blood-treason cost ; Oh, crush it! at once and forever, Or all we hold precious is lost! III. " DEMOCRACY," "Democracy" yield for my country? Ay, that which is only a name; To the Democrat true to his country, The rights of mankind are the same. Crouch again to the whip-lords? No, never! The mudsills, and white-trash, and slaves, Henceforth will be freemen forever, Or hide their defeat in their graves OCTOBER 14. [For The Press.] I Cannot Support Him, Can You? BY M. B. LADD, PRIVATE OF COMPANY M, 14TH REGIMENT NEW YORK ARTILLERY. To my comrades who nobly do battle For freedom, for truth, and for right, Who shrink not amid the loud rattle Of cannon, death-shotted for fight, I would write to you as may a soldler Who, seeing the end full in view, Would never consent to dishonor Or tarnish "the Red, White, and Blue." Shall we sue for "peace" to the traitors? In the hour of triumph, turn back? Encourage and aid their abettors, By voting for " armistice Mac ?" He who, in vain hope of an honor, To which he can never attain, Hath paltered with foes of the nation. Disgracing our living and slain. 'Tis true, as a commander, he led us, But alas! for his premature fame; 'Twere well for his cause he had blotted These records of "peace" but in name. Forgetting the past, has he given His name to a sham and a lie; His friends from the ranks he has driven. Who are fighting to conquer or die. Hurrah! for the flag of our fathers: Untarnished it still shall remain. We will never consent to dishonor Our heroes both living and slain. Vallandigham's platform is bogus. Long, Harris and Wood we descry, Beneath it, as pillars, supporting This Copperhead sham and a lie. Our triumph is speedily dawning; The day is beginning to break; No spaniels are we to be fawning-No peace but in victory make. All hail to our nation's defenders! From hypocrites Grant us release; For soon we shall crown in his glory. That blessed old monarch of peace Then let us look well to our ballots, As soldiers unflinching and true; The past and the present considered I cannot support him, can you? SATTERLEE HOSPITAL, PHILA., Oct. 19, 1864. THE DRAMA. MISS BATEMAN IN ENGLAND, -Our readers will be glad to learn that Miss Kate Bateman, descryedly so great a favorite here, has met with very gratify-Ing success in England. She has lately been playastic. Ing an engagement in Liverpool, of which Willmer The & Smith's European Times speaks in the following fiattering terms: "Another week of brilliantly fashionable and overflowing houses has proved conclusively the firm hold this young lady has gained upon the admiration taken ever tion and esteem of the Liverpool public. Such audiences, either in point of numbers or position among our citizens, are rarely, if ever, seen in the Theatre Royal; and we congratulate the manager on his managerial tact in securing such a powerful magnet as Leah has proved. It is much to be regretted that Miss Bateman's stay is necessarily brief. Could it have been prolonged for a month his representation would scarcely have proved sufficient to be a brother around the doors of the theatre an opportunity to witness this, that I shou the great tragic impersonation of our century. A convincing proof of the truth and beauty of Miss Bateman's acting is the fact that a second visit but gives her auditors some new charm to discover, and that the effect of her tender pathos is rather heightened than subdued by repetition. Gifted, beautiful. and entirely worthy the respect and admiration she everywhere receives, we but express the sentiments of all who have seen her when we claim for Miss Bateman the very highest position on the British FRARFUL FALL OF A TRAPEZIAN .- A fearful accident, which might have terminated fatally, occurred at Myers' Circus, Hanley, Haffordshire, recen ly. The proprietor had arranged to give the school children of the district an afternoon performance, and they had assembled in such numbers that many had to be turned away disappointed. Part of the afternoon's entertainment consisted of the performances of a youth bearing the cognomen of "Young Julien." He had for the last three years been the property keeper, though previously he had performed on the trapeze, and he now for the first time returned to his original performance upon the trapeze, at a height of fifty-two feet from the ground. He cure them for had not been on the rope long, and was about to perform the feat of suspending himself by the toes, when, in making the spring necessary, he fell to the ground upon his hands and kness, and his head struck upon the earth with considerable violence. The spectators, as might be expected, were horrorstricken, and the performer was removed from the ring insensible. It was at first thought that his injuries were very serious, if not fatal, but we are glad to say that no severe injuries have been sustained, and it is probable that the performer will shortly be In a condition to resume his engagements. An Approan Actor—The "local journal" of Taganrog, a flourishing town in what was formerly Coban Tartary, on the Sea of Azov, gives a glowing account of the brilliant success of the far-famed African tragedian Ira Aldridge, in the character of Otkello. The prices of the theatre were doubled, and no small sum was made by speculators who had previously taken a number of boxes, and afterwards disposed of them at what may be called a usurious rate of profit. At the conclusion of the first night's performance a vast crowd conducted the gifted actor to his hotel, which was brilliantly illuminated. It is stated in the journal in question (one in the Russian language) that Ira Aldridge will shortly return to England, although lucrative engagements have been offered him in other parts of the Russian be found at murder had and the corr Persia, where, by the by, ever since the time that a dis number of English officers and non-commissioned officers were engaged by the Schal for the organization of his army, the study of the English Innonese that day sust tion of his army, the study of the English language has become the fashion in the higher classes of Russ, deriv The Opera in Paris.—The Italian opera is open for the winter season, the novelty being the introduction of small ballets or divertisements.
