THE PRESS.-PHILADELPHIA, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1864.

WE HAVE a number of letters from friends, asking whether they shall tele graph us on the night of the election. giving us the returns, of their respective counties. To these several inquiries we make this answer-every despatch sent by the friends of the cause in different parts of the State, and elsewhere, will be gladly and gratefully received. In every case let them give us the gains or losses over the Ootober vote for Congressmen.

Let Every Man do his Duty. Friends, the battle has been fought-the campaign is closed-the issue is with you. Shall the Republic live or die ? You must decide this to day. Appeal is at an end. No more of entreaty or suggestion. No more of argument. All along the line we have heard the note of battle-the cry of preparation-the snapping of lock-the click of hammer and trigger-the tearing of the cartridge. To day the line will advance. Let every gun cover a foeman, and see that he falls. If we go into the election with such a spirit, this day will be the most glorious that ever covered the hills of Columbia with its sunshine. We must remember that unless we prove true to this sentiment, all our victories will be as the dust of dead men in forgotten graves. One hour of faltering now may endanger the Republic. The glory of years may be dimmed in a day-and to our care the glory of this long, bloody, and exacting war is committed to-day. If this were an ordinary election, with no result but the giving and taking of offices, and none were immediately interested but those who live on the bounty of the Government, we should feel not even a general interest, for in a contest for self-preservation it is of but little moment what becomes of mere men. It is with all earnestness, therefore, that we ask our friends to remember that upon their votes to-day depend the results of these many glorious wars. The enemy has made a bold canvass. He demands power

> WAS there not something of remorse in the Democratic sympathy for our lamented townsman, JAMES CAMPBELL, whose memory they insulted by making his body an electioneering document? A jury of his fellow citizens say that he was slain by a member of the Democratic procession. Was it not well, then, for Democrats to shed tears of repentant sorrow over his grave.

THE Unionists of the South, who, downtrodden under the worst of tyrannies, keep the secret of their faith in their hearts-the patriots whom rebellion has driven from their homes, appeal to us at the ballot-box to crush out their tyrants and emancipate their people. The same fetters bind the Southern citizen and the Southern slave. One good blow for freedom to day will strike them off.

Life or death as the only condition of peace, the restora- to the Union or the Confederacy depends altogether upon the success of the Government and the cause represented in ABRA-HAM LINCOLN. THE noble answer of Commander C. H WELLS to the imputation that his vessel, the gunboat Galena, had given its votes for MCCLELLAN, will be honored by the thousands who cast their ballots to-day. Every vote taken on board the Galena was for Mr. LINCOLN; and, though formerly a Democrat, its gallant commander cannot now 'understand how an intelligent man, if he be not as treasonable as JEFF DAVIS himself, can cast his votes for the candidates of a party which would, if once in power, supplicate an ignominious peace that would suffuse with shame the countenance of every loyal man in the country." The navy, like the army, repudiates the general who was on deck instead of on the fieldwho wants peace when he ought to fight.

MAJORITIES for the Union are reinforcement and inspiration for GRANT and SHER-MAN-the real deliverers of the South, the real negotiators for peace. Shall we throw the power of the people into the scale of an independent Confederacy, or re-establish Union on the basis of our own courage, manhood, and truth? Never yet has a nation been restored by moral cowardice-never yet did a people preserve its liberties by accepting the terms of its enemy. Come what will, rebellion must triumph or fail at the polls to day.

LET the Democrats who voted for BRECK INRIDGE in 1860 remember that he is now one of the chiefs of the rebel army, leading his followers to the destruction of the lives of those who supported him for President in the free States. Let them also remember that if he had not gone into the rebellion, he wou'd now doubtless be on the McClellan and Pendleton Electoral Ticket in Kentucky.

More than a million and a half of ne groes have been made free during the progress of the war by the Administration. The election of MCCLELLAN will send these men back into slavery. Will you do violence to humanity and justice by your vote, and be instrumental in the election of the champion of such a disgraceful nolicy?

BE WATCHFUL! Frauds of every kind will be attempted to-day by the despairing but desperate enemies of the Union. Look carefully at every name upon your tickets, lest some snake be hidden in the grass.

REMEMBER, freemen, that you have this day a solemn duty to perform. See that it is not neglected. Let no cause keep you from the polls, but hasten there and fulfil your obligations to your country. The enemy is wary and determined. Be vigilant yourselves, and you will triumph.

ADVANCE in your might, friends of LIN COLN and JOHNSON, and show the whole world that Union and Liberty are all-powerful, and that Treason and Slavery are weak and trembling phantoms.

LET NO MAN who loves his country fail to cast his vote on this momentous day for those sterling patriots, LINCOLN and JOHN son. The one has guided the ship of state with unerring hand through the storm of treason and rebellion, and the other has been an unwavering friend of the Union amid the howling of the traitors who surrounded him. They have both passed brough the fiery ordeal unscathed, and having stood the test in the battle, are worthy to stand foremost in the triumph.

SHAME upon that man who goes to his bed this night without exerting the priviege conferred upon him by the laws of his country-who does not vote to strengthen and sustain the cause of that country! Let him hide his head hereafter, for he will have denied his manhood and betrayed his trust.

SHALL the blood of our brave heroes who sleep beneath the sod of the battlefield be shed in vain? Freemen of the North, it remains with you to answer! And let that answer come in thunder tones from every county and State. This day is the appointed time. Your country looks o you to speak the words of salvation.

WHAT are our liberties, our honor, our victories, our swords, our cause worth; in the triumph of the Chicago platform Men of all parties, contemplate the picture!
