TDUCATION FOR THE TIMES.—A thorough knowledge of the management of business in general, including the complete mastery of the science of accounts, should form a part of every man's education, and his success in life will almost invariably depend upon these acquirements which are termed business qualifications. Men of talent, tact, and education are wanted everywhere, and their services command adequate compensation. All who appreciate these truths should bear in mind that THE QUAKER CITY BUSINESS COLLEGE, TENTH AND CHESTNUT STREETS, affords to all the means and facilities for a thorough preparation for the various duties and employments of business life by a system of instruction far in advance of the general plan of ordinary Commercial Colleges, being pre-eminently practical, and designed to impart a degree of familiarity, with actual practice, which no merely theoretical instruction can ever give.
