them, it is feared, will wait too long. A few months since, a dashing young widow of New York was engaged to a Count who had attained the ripe age of eighty. He had no fortune, however, and little. except his title to recommend him. His affianced succeeded, through the influence of the Duke de Morny, in obtaining an interview with the Emperor, in which she urged upon his Majesty the propriety of giving some appointment of pecuniary value to her venerable but penniless affianced. The Emperor. STEAMERShowever, pelitely but firmly refused, alleging the THE SCHEME. superannuated condition of the gentleman-and so rives publicity the match is "off." - A Washington correspondent of the Rochester Express says: Sojourner Truth (whom everybody knows) is in the city, having come here expressly to visit Mr. Lincoln, and express to him her thanks a premature. for his proclamation freeing so many of her race.

I have known Sojourner for a long time, and it seemed very natural that I should be the one chosen From Polt Carbon..... Pottsville.... Schuylkill Haven..... Auburn... Port Clinton... I considered myself very fortunate in being able to obtain an interview, as really my business could not. be considered urgent, and that I had not the claim to his attention which was very strongly made in Total Anthracite Coal for week...... From Harrisburg, total Bituminous coa my presence, and of which I shall speak by-and-by, "that I had voted for him." I had done no such thing, and if my sex did not prohibit me from that privilege, I could not have even promised to vote for him. Nevertheless, our President received me To same time last year..... and the woman whom I went to introduce with real politeness and a pleasing cordiality. I am not going o describe Mr. Lincoln's personal appearance, for that sort of thing has been done a thousand times. To say that he is the most awkward man in the nation is nothing in itself-awkwardness or grace are of the smallest moment just now. What we want is resolute and determined action, and in that short interview with Mr. Lincoln I became convinced PHILADELPHIA STOCK EXCHANGE SALES, Nov. 18. that, whatever may have been the former delinquencies of the President, he has now come to the conclusion to act. Sojourner delivered to him her thanks for what he had done for her people, saying at the same time that he was the only President who had done anything for them. Mr. Lincoln rejoined, "and the only one who ever had any such opportunity. Had our friends in the South behaved themselves, I-could have done nothing whatever." Honest, was it not ? Well, honesty has always been awarded to the President. We were shown the Bible which was presented to Mr. Lincoln by the colored people of Baltimore, and altogether the visit was quite satisfactory. - Mrs. Peggy Fite, who died, a few days ago, in Wilson county, Tenn, was one hundred and three years old on the first of March last. Her husband, Leonard Fite, was a soldier of the Revolutionary war, and fought through that struggle as a private, having steadily refused promotion. Mr. and Mrs. Fite emigrated to Tennessee from North Carolina, and settled in Nashville when the place was known as Nash's Lick. In those days Mrs. Fite often assisted in moulding bullets, while her husband and others belonging to the "settlement" were defending themselves against the attacks of the Indians. On the 12th of April, 1861, a large number of her descendants met at the house of Jacob Fite and selebrated the one hundredth anniversary of her birth. At that time she had eleven children living -her oldest (a son) being eighty years old, and her youngest (a daughter) fifty-nine ; seventy-six grand children, three hundred and five great-grand children, seventy-one great-great-grand children, and two great great-great grand children; in all, four hundred living descendants. At the time of her death her grand children of the fifth generation had increased to twenty-one, and her grandson feels quite certain her living descendants now number over five hundred.

SCIENTIFIC.

- A furnace, patented by Mr. E. B. Wilson, which is almost smokeless and greatly economizes fuel, is in operation at Messrs. Moreland's works, London. There are no fire-bars in the furnace, the air entering upon the surface of the fresh coal causing a downward draft, as the floor of the reverberating oven slants downward from the coalbox. The gas is thus slowly and continuously distilled until it comes in contact with the lower stra. tum of burning coals, when it becomes sufficiently neated to ignite. The principle adopted seems to be that of turning a common fire upside down, not unlike a furnace back foremost, so that the fresh coal is applied at that end whence the smoke of its first ignition goes through the fire and is consumed, instead of being placed on the end of the fire, whence the direction of the draft carries it off as soon as evolved. The principle is very simple, and probably efficient, though not novel.
