THE SOUL'S PARTING.

BY WILD EDGARTON.

[A young soldier, who had sought to terminate a most miserable existence on the field of battle, lay dying in the hospital at Washington. His suffer-ings were intense and protracted, and the first smile his lips had known for years was loft upon them by the departing spirit.]

Speed on, reluctant soul-make haste away ! Why do ye lipger in this form of elay ? It is unkindness to protract thy stay ; Go, soul, and let death's night conclude the day !

Hasten thy sad farewell, immortal soul, Give the tired body rest, and seek thy goal ; Thy course shall onward be, as ages roll ; Leave, then, this casket worn-let the bells toll.

God wedded thee in love, and marked thy course; His minister of death now brings divores— Why should ye terry, murmuring, I pray? Heaven is thine, and 'tis not far away.

Answered the passing sonl in accents low:" "We're such old friends, and I have loved him so ! We've suffered much together here below, Yet, truly, it is very hard to go?"

But he is weary of thee, and would rest; Even the earth's unsympathizing breast Is dearer far (there long his love hath lain) Than thy fond company and longer pain.

Behold his faded eyes, not dim with age, Scan his life's history; on every page The blots and stains of unavailing tears And marks of wee through all his wretched years.

The bloom of youth is gone, and he yet young ; The hymn of his brief, now well-nigh sung, Has been a funeral song ; and love, and trust, And faith, and hope, are fallen in the dust.

There's not a venture that has brought him gain, There's not a love that has not brought him pain; His life has known but little that life gives Of joy; he suffers death, and yet he lives.

The wound that racks his body, weak and worn, Searce mates the wound ingratitude and scorn Have torn into his breaking heart. For one There may be balm; but for the other-none.

If thou, O Soull hast bravely wrought thy task, Soar to the stars a soul's reward to ask; Why should ye dread this body to resign ? It is the grave's-eternity is thine!

The sad soul lingered still, quite loth to fly, And turned reluctant to the tranquilsky; Then bent to kiss the placid lips of clasy, And left a smile there as it passed away.

AT HOLLS. Smoke-shrouded was the shell-plowed field, Oharge followed charge through fire and fiame; Once more our stubborn line of steel Stoed as the dark squares ouward came. Our colonel, failt and squiften sore, Spurned down the guessiof leaden rain; "Close up, dear boys, our flag before Has never called in vain!" His volce filled up the thin ranks torn, ? Twin cheers and volleys rent the vale! Our standard bearer, pressing on; Fell in the answering hall, A stripling caught his dear bequest, Straight to their midds the hered his way, Fing out our banner o'er their crest, And held a score at bay.

Loud rang behind our tribute roar, Loud rang behind our tribute roar, Fast in his steps our riles pressed, And reached him staining with his gore The standard on his breast. As soft we raised him—for the day Was won—his white lips flocked with foam, Faint murmured, as he strove to pray, "OI will they hear of this at home?" [Harper for Novem

THE OLD COMEDIAN. From the German of Anastasius Grin.

BY J. W. MONTCLAIR.

The footlights blaze, the curtains rise, Ard peering are a thousand eyes Where tinselled jurglers strut apace; With paint begrimed each truthless face

Yon mountebank of snowy hair, I well could draw his home despair; Poor, worn-out, crippled harlequin, His efforts fail respect to win.

Whilst honored age, though lorn and weak, A tutorage with youth muy seek, This old, obedient, hired clown Racks his stiff joints to please the town.

Old men, they court repose at night; The aged arm forgets its might; "Its raised to guide, or to carees..." Tis folded prayerful, and to bless.

Those trembling hands hang by his side; Those valiant lips his limbs deride; And when to points the text may soar, With loud guilaw the groundlings roar.

Though chronic pains may pinch his frame, He must be Momus, ever the same; To those who see him night by night, His tears would prove a rare delight. But lo ! how faint the actor speaks :

He falters, and an exit seeks. "Old Thespian, hast forgot thy cue? Thy walk's unsteady, thy text untrue !"

In vain the old comedian tries To silence insult; murmurs rise; Away he totters with alarm, And talls within the prompter's arm.

HORRE FLESH IN PARIS.—One of the secretaries of the scolety for the projection of animals, at Paris, has given a lecture at the Garden of Acclimation, on the subject of horse fieth as human food. He ad-yocates the employment as butcher's meat of horses. Free from disease, but past work. He calculated that the adoption of this system would yield daily in Paris alone between five thousand and six thou-sand pounds' weight of wholesome meat, after mak-ing a large deduction for diseased horses. As repre-sentive of a humane society, he insisted upon the great mercy it would be to the horses to be killed before old age, and consequent ill-treatment, over-took them. There would be no working them to death when once the cocks compete with occiermon-gers and cab-drivers. In the course of the lecture, it was mentioned that the celebrated Larrey, thride in the course of his military career, made use of horse fiesh as food for sick soldiers, and that in Exypt, especially, he had found it to check the pro-gress of a scorbuile malady which had assumed an epidemical character. In the Orimes, the lecture stated, two batteries of artillers, fed, in conformity with the advice of Dr. Baudens, on the flesh of cast horses, had been free from the diseases prevailing in the rest of the arms. Reference was made to the efforts of protective societies in Germany to extend the use of horse fiesh; and it was stated that a pros-perous trade is carried on in it by butchers in Vien-na, Berlin, Hamburg, Altona, and other e ities, where it is scught and relished not only by the poor, but by all classes of society. The lecture over, a turcen of horse society. Elei de Beaumont, Father Secchi, of Nome, gives an ac-count of two interesting monuments discovered by him near Alatri, in the Campagna Romana. This town, of Pelasgio origin, and celabrated for its Oy-clopean walls, is situated on the top of a mountain, and being at the time of the Romans ill provided with water, the Censor I. Betilienus Varus, as a celebrated inscription tells us, caused an aqueduct 340 feet high to be constructed between Alatri and the neighboring mountains; it being expressly sta-ted that he built it with arches, and provided it with strong pipes. The present researches, ordered by Pore Pius IX., in order to renew the supply of wa-ted that he built it with arches, and provided it with strong pipes. The present researches, ordered by Pope Flus IX., in order to renew the supply of wa-ter to the town, have led to the discovery of a large portion of the old aqueduct. From the survey made by Father Seechi, it appears that the lowest point of the aqueduct lies 110 metres below the highest point of the town, a figure which coincides with the 340 feet of the insoription. Here, therefore, is an aqueduct built 160 years before Christ, in the shape of a reversed syphon under a pressure of eleven atmospheres. This difficult to say how much water was conveyed by this aqueduct, but it evi-dently was sufficient for the consumption of the forwing inde the place of the appear more using no less water was conveyed by this aquedust, but it evi-dently was sufficient for the consumption of the form, since the pieze of the acoher measure no less than five feet nine inches in breadth. The total length of the syphon is about six kilometres. The other discovery is a field, under which a complete system of drainage was executed by means of long pipes made of brick clay, and, on an average, a foot and a half in diameter. They are now stopped up with sediment, and are 2% metres below the sufface of the soil. This field was probably the parket ground mentioned in the inscription as having been laid out by Betlienus, whose attention to the in-terests of his city was well rewarded, since he was twice appointed censor, and a statue was erected to his honor.—Galignant's Messenger.

A PARIS INCIDENT.—A young boy of sixteen years of age was brought before the police court, Paris, eharged with stealing and begging in the public streets. He was a bright, fine-looking boy, but very poorly olad, and when brought before the pdge, he fell upon his knees and begged him not te public streets. He was a bright, fine-looking boy, but very poorly olad, and when brought before the pdge, he fell upon his knees and begged him not te public streets. He was a bright, fine-looking boy, but very poorly olad, and when brought before the pdge, he fell upon his knees and begged him not te public streets. He was a sime strying, and that alone had driven him to steel; that he could not find work; and if he was im-prisoned, the disgrace would kill his poor mother. The judge seemed somewhat moved at the boy's story, but he nevertheless, after hearing the evi-dence, condemned him to six weeks' imprisonment. As the boy was being led away, a poor womean, pale, covered with rags, and her hair in disorder, forced her way through the crowd, and tottering up to the boy, passed one arm around him; and then tarning to the judge, pushed back her long black hair, and exclaimed, "Do you not recognize me? Thirteen years have passed since you deserted me; leaving me alone with my child and my shame; but I have not forgotten you, and this boy, whom you have just condenned, is your son ?" You may imagine the effect this announcement produced on the bystanders. The judge, h a lond voice, ordered the woman to be carried from the court, and then left it himself; but joined the poy off in a carriage. 5.30 F. M. DUNKIRK IN OLDEN TIMES.—In the days of which we speak, the configuration of this sandy track was not exactly as it is now ; it has suffered a sea change. Moreover, in the old time the inland parts were co-vered with woods and marknes; the meeres have been drained, and the forests out down, giving place to one of the most industrial departments of France. The waste places of creation were St. Eloi's special charge, and armed with the gospel and the autho-rity of the Pope, he came to convert the people. The fishermen on the coast listened with avdility to the preaching of the Bishop, and flocked to be bap-tised. St. Eloi, greatly rejoiced at hissuccess, forth-with commenced building: a church on the Dune-in the language of the time, Dwyn kerk-hence the modern Dunkerque, notable in our own debtor and creditor accounts in the reign of Charles II..-Once phenomenon. In "Trifies from Coylon " the fol-lowing account is given: "A moorman caught a young alligator in his fish-ing kraal in the Matura river, and I wont to see it. Thinking that this would be a good opportunity for testing the correctness of what I had heard in the north of the island about a remarkable effect of lime upon the alligator, I asked a man to bring me some, on which he procured from a neighboring house a lump of the chunamb, or lime prepared from shells, which the natives are in the habit of chewing along with the nut of the areas paim, and the leaves of the betel creeper. The lime habit of chewing along with the rust of the areas paim, and the leaves of our unfortunate victim, we inserted, as far back as the opgning into the throat, a lump of chunamb about as large as a pigeon's egg, after which we put the animal into the water. I mundiately it turned over on its sides and then on its back, and appeared pa-ralyzed; soon its eyes closed, and I thought it was dead. After about five minutes it revived a little. F could not remain longer to' watch it, but in the evening I rode to where it had been experimented on, when I found that it was dead, and learnt that it had died within two hours of my leaving. On ex-amining its mouth I found that the lime had not been swallowed, but was still in the throat, just where it had been piaced. I have, since making the experiment related above, been told that it is not uncommon for the Singhalese to fill the stomach of a bullock with lime, and to place it near the alliga-tor's hants, knowing that if he swallow the lime death will ensue."

- Continued discoveries of human remains in con-nection with those of extinct animals seem to afford trong confirmation of the opinions promulgated in strong confirmation of the opinions promulgated in regard to the very great antiquity of the human race upon this éarth. In addition to the discoveries of flint, bone, and horn implements in France and England, we have now the recognition of human bones, and even of considerable portions of single skeletons. The recently opened cavern of Bruni-quel has been explored by Prof. Owen, and the nu-merous remains there discovered purchased for the British Museum. The orania found here are de-clared by Prof. Owen to be superior in form and cauncity to the Australian type, and more closely to capacity to the Australian type, and more closely to correspond to that of the Celtic race. In addition to these, numerous remains have been discovered in a series of caverns in the rock of Gibraltar, including crania resembling in character the famous

Neanderthal skull. — The coal deposits in Rhode Island continue to attract a good deal of attention, and bid fair to add materially to the wealth of the State. A new vein been opened near Newport, which proniges better than any that has heretofore been
