to furnish a list of the missing from the chartered steamer Aphrodite, which was: lost on the coast of North Carolina some weeks since. Of the draft of men, numbering some 500, only six or eight were drowned, and only one of this number was washed ashore, so that he could be identified. There were supposed to be some twenty who deserted to the North Carolina shore, but it is impossible to give their names er to separate them from the lost. The following, however, are missing:

In addition to these, the Navy Department has information that landsmen James F. Rudd and William Belcher were drowned, and that the fate of Jno. F. Taylor still remains in-doubt. This list of names will no doubt serve to put at rest the many anxieus minds who have been sorely troubled lest their loved ones should be among the list of miss-

MISCELLANEOUS. THE CITY RAILROAD.

Yesterday morning, at the meeting of the Corn Exchange Association at their rooms, Bir. Geo. L. Bruby, in a few pertinent remarks, introduced the following preamble and resolutions:

Whereas, A proposition is now before Councils to lease the Market-street Rallroad, and that portion of the Broad street road which extends from Olive street to Vine, to a railroad company, thereby investing them with an absolute control over said roads; and Whereas. The Reading, Philadelphia, Wilmington, and Baltimore, and Baltimore and Ohio Railroads have equal occasion with the Pennsylvania Railroad for the use of said tracks; and

Whereas, The commercial interests of Philadelphia demand that these roads should be open to the use of every railroad line which enters our city; therefore

Resolved, That the Corn Exchange Association, as a body directly interested in every movement affecting the commercial facilities of Philadelphia; looks with much disfavor upon a proposition to invest any one railroad line with exclusive control over any one of these avenues into our city.

Resolved, That, according to law, these railroad that sakes are a common highway, intended for the use of the public generally, and that they were originally constructed for that sole purpose; that it will best conduce to the public interest to maintain that original intention; and that it said tracks do not pay a sufficient revenue to cover the expenses incurred for them, the toils thereon should be increased until they shall be covered.

Resolved, That Councils be requested to defer action on this surject at present. this subject at present.

The preamble and resolutions were unanimeusly adopted.

There are in the northwestern part of the city several nuisances, which have caused much complaint among the residents, and to which we call the attention of the proper authorities. A great annoyance which the families occupying houses upon Green and other streets, contiguous to the Reading Railroad, have to endure, is the continual and unnecessary shricking of the steam which is of the locomotives at all hours of day and night. It is not unusual for the engineers, apparently for no other reason than the nown entertainment, to commence this unearthly noise before daybreak, and continue it till every one within hearing is wakened up by it. up by it. Upon the north side of Green street, near to

Upon the north side of Green street, near to Twenty-third, there has been a break in the pavement for many menths. It is directly below some buildings which are being erected upon the top of a hill, from which all drainage flows down upon the pavement below and renders it a mixture of mud and dirty water, which interferes not only with the residents of Green street, but with visitors to the park. Complaint has been made in this matter, but it has not been remedled as it should be by an immediate paving.

Some families residing upon the line of the Reading Railroad, near Green street, keep a considerable number of goats, which, being allowed to stray at large, wander into the gardens, destroy plants and shrubbery, and inflict annoyance in other ways. Goats, when found in the highways, should be arrested by the police. It is to be hoped that this course will be pursued in future, mildly at first, until the goat-owners have learned the law, when the fines impored by the city ordinances should be rigorously exacted.

The letter accompanying the gift breathes the purest-spirit of benevolence and patriotism, and does credit to the heart of the generous donor. Mrs. Egbert is the wife of Dr. M. C. In connection with this matter Mr. Zane (U.) presented a bill relative to ordinance, and which restores the old ordinance and repeals the one which prohibits the storing of goods on the pavements. which prohibits the storing of goods on the pavements.

Mr. Ginnodo (U.) moved to refer the ordinance to the Committee on Police.

Mr. Zang (U.) protested. The ordinance is affecting storekeepers, and has much reduced their sales—so much so that many of them scarcely do business enough to pay their rent.

Mr. Freeman (U.) favored the reference. He was opposed to a repeal. It was no more than could be expected that parties would make an opposition to the bill. He thought a lawyer had as much right to establish his office on the curstone as a storekeeper had to display his goods there.

Mr. MoElroy (O.) was in favor of repealing the bill. He knew it affected business in certain localities, and must depreciate the value of real estate.

Messis. Armstrong (O.) and Marcus (O.) also favored a repeal of the ordinance.

The motion to refer was voted down, and the bill passed finally. The ordinance providing for a loan of one million of dollars for the extension of the Gas Works was passed.

Numerous petitions were prefented protesting against the lease of the City Railroad track to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

A communication was received from the Chief Engineer relative to the cost of the Chestnut-street bridge. There will be a deficiency in the loans of 1860 and 1861, to provide for which a loan bill is now before the Chamber. The balance on hand of those loans is $18.388.76; as follows:

Girard had made his will, and no disposition was made of them previous to his death. The matter has long been pending before the courts, and the best legal advice states that it must eventually result in favor of the heirs. The latter, however, are anxious to avoid a long suit and obtain immediate possession of the lands. They therefore propose, as a matter of concession, to transfer to the city one of the tracts, about 400 acres, the heirs taking possession of the remaining tracts. The City Solicitor recommends that the proposition be at once accepted, as the city will lose all if the suit is allowed to go to the Supreme Court.

The report was accepted.

The Committee on City Property offered an ordinance making an appropriation of $1,100 for the construction of a "dead house" in the public burial ground. Agreed to.

THE POLICE.

(Before Mr. Alderman White.) ALLEGED LARCENY.

Christopher Coyle was arraigned yesterday on the charge of the larceny of a pair of boots, the property of Mr. Williams; boot and shoe maker, on South Front street. The prisoner was also charged with stealing a silver case hunting watch valued at $50, a half sovereign and $67 in United States Treasury notes, the property of John McNamara, who also worked for Mr. Williams and lived in the same house. The facts developed are as follows: About three months since Coyle commenced work at the shop of Mr. Williams. He was pretty "hard up," and had only been in the country a few weeks. On the evening of November 16th, as Mr. Williams was passing through the house he saw Coyle come from McNamara's room.

"What are you doing up here?" asked Mr. Williams. replied the accosted individual.

Mr. W. knew there was no water in the bathhouse, and therefore he regarded Coyle with more or less suspicton. McNamara had gone out at 7 o'clock. He returned at 9 o'clock, and, after examining his trank, discovered that his watch and o'clock. He returned at 9 o'clock, and, after examining his trunk, discovered that his watch and money had been removed. In a day or two after this, Coyle appeared in a new suit of clothing, and talked about buying another suit. There was nothing developed up to this period connecting him with the robbery.

Since that period three pair of boots were taken from the shop of Mr. Williams, and the circumstances pointed directly towards the prisoner. A search warrant was issued by Alderman White, upon proper application being made. Armed with this legal document, Constable Hurley (now alderman elect) proceeded to Coyle's room, opened his trunk, and among other things were a pair of boots that had been stolen from Mr. Williams. Two charges of robbery were preferred against him, and upon which he was bound over to answer at court; $1,000 in one case, and $1,500 in the other.

A DYELING RUISANCE.

A DYRING NUISANCE.

Peter Becker was arraigned on the charge of maintaining a nuisance. The proceedings were instituted by Wm. Geisser, residing on Race street, above Front. It seems, according to the evidence, that some time since the complainant rented a part of his store to the accused, who desired to carry on the tailoring business. To this effect a contract was agreed upon. Since that period Becker has introduced a species of chemical dyeing of cloth that has made the family of Mr. Geisser very sick. It is a singular sickness. A physician was called in, who entertains the optifion that unless the dyeing process is removed, the children will die from its effects within a short time. Becker entertains a different opinion. He refuses to relinquish the business. Hence the suit. The defendant was bound over in the sum of $600 to answer at Court.

[Before Mr. Recorder Eneu.] COUNTERFEIT NOTE PASSERS ARRESTED.

John Smith, Emma Moore, Mary Ely, and Ezeklel Kade were arraigned yesterday on the charge of being implicated in passing counterfeit ten-dollar notes, purporting to be the true issue of the State Bank at Trenton, New Jersey. These notes are very well executed, and likely to deceive. The evidence elicited at the hearing sets forth that on Wednesday night John Smith and Emma Moore were at a house at Second and Relief streets. Mary Ely, who lives near Eleventh and Coates streets, was sent by them to purchase a bottle of whisky. This article was bought at the store of Elizabeth Nolan, on Second street, near South, and one of the counterfeit notes was passed for it and change received. The affair was speedily made known to the police officers, and Mary was taken into custody, together with John Smith and Emma Moore, for whom the whisky had been purchased. There was nothing found in their possession to implicate them in passing any of the spurious paper. A number of fitty-cent currency notes, and a $10 State Bank at Trenton, were found in a water-closet, where they had been placed after the officers had taken Mary into custody. Upon searching Mary, another counterfeit note was found upon her. She finally made a confession that she had purchased the notes from Ezeklel Kade at the rate of $3 for $10. Kade was therefore taken into custody. The prisoners were committed to await a further hearing. It is reported that quite a number of storekeepers were victimized on Thursdey evening by having passed upon them the new counterfeits. Such persons are requested to call upon Recorder Eneu. COUNTERFEIT-NOTE PASSERS ARRESTED.

[Before Mr. Alderman Pancoast.] Jacob Henning and Michael English were arraigned yesterday on the charge of stealing coal from the Reading Raliroad Company on Pennsylvania avenue. It is alleged the defendants had a wheelbarrow with a barrel upon it, and were trying to fill it from the cars. The accused were committed to answer.

[Before Mr. Alderman Pancoast.] BOLD THEFT.

BOLD THEFT.

A girl of bad character, giving the name of Ellen McNally, was committed yesterday on the charge of stealing wearing apparel and some jewelry, the property of Mrs. Lawrence, residing near Twentieth and Coates streets. It seems that on Tuesday the prisoner made application at the house of Mrs. L., and worked so much upon her sympathy that the lady gave her something to est, and furnished her a bed. Arrangements had partly been made to hire the girl as a domestic. She told a tale of fiction, and thus imposed upon her benefactress. She said that she had been employed in a factory at Manayunk, and the mill had closed. Her father and mother were dead, and she had no home. In the evening she was shown to her room. She stealthilly entered the apartment of Mrs. L., helped herself to considerable clothing and jewelry, and decamped. She was arrested while loitering about Camp Cadwalader on Thursday night. She was recognized by the police as a young girl reckless and disgusting in her habits, and whose ordinary conversation was shockingly profane. THE COURTS.

Mary Kent, against whom there were eight bills of indictment charging larceny, and the receiving of goods knowing them to have been stolen, was tried and convicted upon three, and was sentenced to a imprisonment altogether of four years. Her depredations seem to have been extensive, and she was not at all particular as to the character of the property she sought to appropriate. The articles mentioned in the indictment were men's wearing apparel, ladies' dresses, shawing, overcoats, dressing gowns, fancy boxes, ac.

James Smith, for larceny, was sentenced to six months in the county prison, and John Stewart, for a like offence, to one year.

EARLY LIPE OF CHIEF JUSTICE CHASE.—Of late we have frequently been asked which "regular contributor" to the Atlantic Monthly wrote the "Ferry Boy." It is such an interesting and attractively-written early life and adventures of our new and distinguished Obief Justice, that if the author or his friends could make his name known, it would make or add greatly to his reputation. We would recommend any one withing to get a book for boys to buy the "Ferry Boy." THE LABOR AND EXPRESS OF MAKING A FINE BOOK.—One would hardly think, who has seen the new illustrated edition of "Encoh Arden," just published by Messrs. J. E. Tilton & Co., although so elegant and carefully printed, that about one hundred and fifty days were consumed in the printing; yet it is even so, while the plates were produced at a cost of about two thousand dollars.—Boston Jour.

New Books.—"The Three Scouts" is the name of Mr. Trowbridge's new book that is to be published next Monday. It is said to be exceedingly interesting and exciting, and introduces some old friends. "Dora Darling, the Daughter of the Regiment," is a marked success, the third edition being already abnounced. This book is attractively illustrated, and is very appropriate for a holiday gift,
