HEAVY FIRING AND AN EXPLOSION HEARD NEAR WILMINGTON-WHAT IT MEANS-WILMINGTON IN NEW DANGER-LOSS OF A PHILADELPHIA VES. SEL-MORE HIGHLY IMPORTANT EXTRACTS FROM FROM THE AUGUSTA CONSTITUTIONALIST-AC-KNOWLEDGMENT OF THE REBEL DOWNFALL.

Special Correspondence of The Press.] Nonpolk, Va., January 9, 1865. On Wednesday night last, about midnight, two heavy explosions were very distinctly heard in Newabove the latter point. The sound appeared to be note distinct further interior than at Newbern The explosions are supposed to have been at Wil-mington. I do not know whether the locality has been guessed aright, but give the item for what it is

I extract the following from the Raleigh Confederate of Monday last: IMPORTANT FROM KINSTON.

"At three o'clock yesterday information reached Raleigh that the enemy were advancing on Kinston in force, and were distant only about ten miles. Seven o'clock yesterday morning, after some considerable skirmishing, they had advanced to within one mile of our works. We await the result with much anxiety." ANOTHER ACCOUNT. The Kinston correspondent of the Goldsboro ournal says:

"The enemy numbered about one thousand, and consisted of portions of the 182d New York and 16th Massachusetts Infantry, three companies of the 2th New York Cavalry and one section of Bruce's New York Light Artillery, all under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Hitchcock, of the 182d New York Infantry. They went within two miles of Kinston, where they encountered a portion of the 3d North Carolina Cavalry, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Beard, and a section of Cummings' battery, all commanded by Lieutenant Colonel J. B. Starr. The casualities on our side are three men of the cavalry cantured and one wounded, none B. Starr. The casualties on our side are three men of the cavalry captured and one wounded, none killed. Lieutenant John B. Wooten, of Captain Foy's company, captured a Yankee cavalryman, his horse and accountements, and brought them in."

WRECK OF A PHILADELPHIA VESSEL.

Late arrivals from the North Carolina coast bring der, but the places for signatures are left blank:

"Headquarters, — Regiment,
"Geomber 20, 1864.

"General Orders No. 36.—The Colonel commanding regrets the necessity which urges him to reprove the practice, recently indulged by officers of this command, of appearing on evening parade tricked out in all the gaudy paraphernalis of a masquerade—sporting on such occasions favors, rosettes, and fancy tobacco pouches, whereas the 'rules and articles of war' require only the uniform, sash, and sword. Such evidences of vanity ill become a nation bowed to the earth by debt and poverty as we are, and he takes this occasion to state that such follies will no longer be tolerated.

"Hereafter any officer infringing this order will be placed under arrest, and if the error is repeated, will be proceeded against for violation of orders.

"By command of Colonel —, Acting Adjutant."

The Georgia Constitutionalist of the same date has a most significant editorial, from which I extract the principal portion for your publication. You will recollect that this is one of the ables papers in the Southern States:

"Great God, what are we coming to? Is man dying for lack of the common instincts of patriotism? Is Gen. Sherman to march over and trample us beneath his feet as we formerly did our menials? Wake up, slumberers, or forever acknowledge the defeat which will certainly await you. In the Divine rescript of God to man, it is written that the thing that has been shall be; that which has been cone shall be done, and that there is no new thing under the sun. The experience of every day, and the great anomaly of life, man, prove the word of the quaint preacher Ecclesiastes. Since communities have been organized there has been no change in the animal instincts of man, and therenever will be. The intellectual and spiritual nature can be developed, enlarged, and beautifully refined, but his animal appetites and loves are the same thing 'they were three thousand years ago. Moreover, the same developed, chiarged, and Deautully Fenned, but his animal appetites and loves are the same thing they were three thousand years ago. Moreover, the same means which accomplished the desired objects will to-day accomplish them; and the same thought and and made glad the heart, will to-day pass in their eternal round, julifiling their ends and making up their world's history. The present perilous situation of affairs has led us to this musing, in the trustion of affairs has led us to this musing, in the trustion of affairs has led us to this musing, in the trustion of affairs has led us to this musing, in the trustion of affairs has led us to this musing, in the trustion of affairs has led us to the sumsing, in the trustion of affairs has led us to the sumsing, in the trustion of affairs has led us to this musing, in the trustion of affairs has led us to the seems so. We have been seeking in our own mind to discover the good. The present campaign is a great study; it requires thought and reflection, not conclusions arrived at through the blind and unithinking hate of the partisan proclamations—but the calm conclusions and thoughts of the good and the brave, the hopeful and the unwhipped. Here, as elsewhere through out our land, there are many anxious hearts and wistful ears, and the slightest rumor from either front makes the blood come quicker and the heart beat faster, and for a few days past, with us particularly, the movements of the armies on the Chattahocochie, and those of Sherman and the force in North Caroline, have caused a painful solicitude.

iront makes the blood come quicker and the heart beat faster, and for a few days past, with us particularly, the movements of the armies on the Chattabocchie, and those of Sherman and the force in North Carolina, have caused a painful solicitude. The questions which we hear most frequently on the streets to day are, will Mobile fall and Can Wilmington hold out? We cannot disguise the fact that we will be in a terrible way should either of these places be lost to our arms. There is no use of our feeding on fog; it may blind our eyes, but it cannot strengthen our bodies. Rome, whose history of a thousand years is almost—the history of the world for the same period, furnishes an illustration of Lee's and Hardee's ettrenched retreats, which most approaches the movements and fighting of the two great generals during the campaign. In the year One Hundred and Two, before the Christian era, the Imperial City, that mistress of the world, was suddenly brought to realize a fact which astonished her proud people—the fact that even Italy and Rome were not secure from Invasion, and that by an almost unknown race of barbarians. The restless Germans were migratory; and they came in numbers which made the vaunted Roman legions insignificant. After a series of engagements for more than two years of bloody war, the Romans were retiring on all sides from the advancing hosts. Many of her generals had been defeated, and Rome was alarmed. There was then what was termed for ages afterwards among them the "Cimbrian Panic." Her last hope was centred in Marius and his two armies, as much as the hope of the Comederacy is established in the two armies of Lee and Hardee. Marius confronted the enemy but fought no great battle; the Germans familed him, but he successfully eluded them. He said to his solders: "You fight now for existence, not for trophy." And with this admonition he fell upon the enemy, and victory, unequalled in the annals of war, crowned his arms. The actions of Lee, and especially those of Hardee, find a parallel in that of depend upon bravery, patriotism, and long suffering four own people. We must retreat then untivictory is within our reach. Retreats are but movel leading to success. Our armies must be kept together and unsubdued if we are reduced to the area of A SINGLE STATE."

F. L. STEIN. THE REBEL PRESS.

ORDER OF BRAGG AFTER THE ATTACK ON WIL-MINGTON—A TIBADE AGAINST SHERMAN AND HIS "CONCILIATION," AND AN ACT OF TARDY JUSTICE IN HIS PAVOR. Files of Raleigh, Charleston, Augusta, and Richmond papers, of all dates, from the 1st to the 7th, much attention in Charleston and Augusta. There are, however, some interesting items connected with recent operations among which is the following:

There is no important news from the front to-day-

lowing:

CONGRATULATORY ORDER TO THE REBEL TROOPS
AT WILMINGTON.

HEADQUARTERE DEF T. OF NORTH CAROLINA,
WILMINGTON, Dec. 29, 1864.

The commanding general desires to congratulate the officers and men engaged in the recent operations near this place on their successful termination. One of the most formidable expeditions yet organized by the enemy—an imposing force of veteran troops, supported by a fiest carrying over five hundred guns, has accomplished no other object than a fruitless landing on a parren coast, followed in forty-eight hours by a hasty re-embarkation.

This auspicious result is due, under a merciful Providence to the skill of Major General Whiting, who planned the defences at the mouth of Cape Fear, to the galiantry and endurance of Colonel Lamb and the brave garrison of Fort Fisher, under his immediate command, worthity seconded by Lieutenant Chapman, of the navy, and his devoted seamen, serving battery Buchanan, and the steady coolness with which Brigadier General Kirklands, with apart of his brigade, checked the advance of vastly superior numbers of the enemy.

Thus another gigantic effort of a powerful enemy has come to naught, but not without affording us profit bis lessons. The successful defence of Fort Fishel against one of the most formidable naval armaments of modern times proves that the superiority of land batteries over ships-of-war, at one time threatened by the improvements in artillery and ship armor, has been re-established by the gentudo the engineer; and the weaker party, on the desensive, may still defy the greater numbers and medianical resources of an arrogant invader. Let us hope that the sheek which the enemy has received at the mouth of Cape Fear may prove the harbinger, of a renewed series of Confederate victories.

By order of General Bragg.

Archee Anderson, Assistant Adj. Gen.
THE VANKER CONCILIATORY POLICY IN SAVANNAH. We have already published the proceeding neeting held in Savanrah, which passed a series of resolutions of a highly pacific and sensible character. These resolutions lave come to the notice of the Richmond journals and, of course, they are condemning them in too, with all the fierceness of of a recondite and excited diction. The Augusta correspondent of the Exeminer of the 7th thus dis-

Gen. Sherman is trying an experiment on Savan-nah. Heils permitted to at least begin with elemen-oy and maderation—but on two conditions: First. Neither he nor his Government is bound by any oy and maderation—but the two conditions: First. Neither he nor his Government is bound by any present concessions, nor bound to continue the induspence one day or hour longer than they find it expedients. Second. Gearlys provest guard is to keep good watch and waid, so as to prevent anything valuable from being carried away by its owner. It the meantime they are willing to try whether they can get the principal city of Georgia to accept their rule with some show of contentment, whereby they may gradually detach the other towns of the Stafe from the Confederacy. Yet, even in these first days of the experiment of kindness the inhabitanticare sufficiently warned of what any given morning may bring upon them. If Yankee vessels en the Savannah river are fired upon, all the inhabitanticare sufficiently warned of what any content of Savannah et ob erdered out of the city, as the Atlanta people were. In short, if the city of Savannah be found a serviceable base of operation for debauching the State, then, and so long, the prople will be suffered to dwell in their own houses and regree guards. Meanwhile, as a Yankee correspondentsays, "the plate and linen are safe as high strong, how "which he had a wery citizen fields his existence on suffrance. This Sherman, it will not be forgotten, is the same who wrote the letter of instructions to his adjutant general on the way in which he was to deal with the inhabitants of any district overis the same who wrote the better of instructions to his adjutant general on the way in which he was to deal with the inhabitants of any district overrun by Yankee troops. "Rebels" own nothing—all they have is origited, eyen their lives; if permitted to live, it is only that they may repent, and that, while repenting, they may be made useful to the cause of the "Union," otherwise it would be a mercy to their to put them all suddenly to death. On these principles the whole Georgia campaign has been conducted until this day. The citizens of Atlanta, were ordered to quit their homes and wander into the wilderness, that Atlanta.

Late arrivals from the North Carolina coast bring the following interesting particulars relative to the loss of the schooner "Robort Corson," of Philadelphia, She left Philadelphia about the middle of December for Fortress Monroe, where she safely arrived, and immediately sailed for the Cappe Fear river. On Monday, the 18th of December, the wind changed from southwest to south, twenty miles of Cape Fear; soudded before the wind until 9 A. M. Thesday, and not being far enough in to the windward to clear Cape Lockout Shoals, she ran across them, striking three times. It blowing a gale, and not being able to keep to the windward, the schooner ran across Diamond Shoals on Wednesday night. A sea knocked off her taffrail, store in her cabin, and carried away her wheel, so that she became unmanageable. Accordingly, the anchors were let go in twelve fathoms of water. She remained at her anchors for some time, when she hoisted the signal of distress in her rigging. A schooner passed her, but paid no attention to the signal. A steamer, supposed to be a privateer, fired three guns and sailed away. At 9 colook she went down, and the captain and steward were drowned. The survivors climbed to the mast-head, where they were taken off by the U. S. transport Prometheus, and brought into Morehead City, on Saturday. The following is a complete list of her crew. Joseph Camp, master, lost; Robert M. Cornwell, steward, lost; John High, mate, saved; Heary Ohaye became delirious, jumped into the sea, and was drowned; Alexander Corson, saved; Jerenniah Hampton, saved. This is the sixteenth vessel lost off the North Carolina coast during the last month.

A RIGH ORDER.

A copy of the Augusta Constitutionalist of the 28th, which I have in my possession, contains the following for der. There are no names attached to the order, which have severed the largest of a hundred battles, while the places for signatures are left blank:

"Headquarters," — Regiment."

"Headquarters, — Regiment."

"Headquarters, — Regiment

those eventeen were sleeping soft and feeding high, and speculating higher, know now that you are buried the better. The seventeen ser in a hurry to bury buried in the grave," the sconer you are buried the better. The seventeen are in a hurry to bury you themselves. As you stand now, with arms in your hands, do you not perceive that you are disturbing the era of good feeling? Another resolution requests Governor Brown to call a Convention of the State, to vote on the question of war or peace—that is, on the question of submission to their enemies or resistance; the question of being free citizens or subjugated vassals; and it is very clear how such a Convention would vote if it were composed of such folk as the seventeen. After all, notwithstanding the statement of the gentleman from Savannah, who states in an Augusta paper that, only seventeen persons attended the meeting, it is highly probable that a much leager number of persons was present. There are in Savannah enough of Tews, Englishmen, and Yankees, beside other foreigners, to make seven times sevenieen; and as for the Mayor, and the few other real citizens of the place who attended, they, no coubt, are among the fattest, is eleckest, richest people of the town, having good wines in their cellars, valuable lots in the city, and plantations in the sea islands. If they see presented to them a chance of saving these good things, what to them is the independence of their State trampled under foot; the blood of their fellow citizens poured out on the cold hills of Virginia; their own personal honor lying a bleeding? For what is honor? A word, Who hat it? He that died a Wednesday, Bury the bygones in the grave. After all, we believe that Savannah or any other city in the Confederacy would be wronged and calumnisted if such a meeting as this were taken as the true representation of its spirit. The thing comes through the Loyal Georgian, a new paper, which a builting edicate newspaper of now be published in that city, no Confederate word uttered. In the churches

JUSTICE TO SHERMAN. Some of the rebel journals have still left some of that manliness which should always be one of the attributes of the press. They are printing an emphatic denial [of the outrages with which some of their contemporaries have charged Sherman's army, which reads:

army, which reads:
REPORTED OUTEAGES OF SHERMAN.—The editor of the Fayetteville Observer has seen a letter from a clergyman in Savannah, written three days before the evacuation of that place, in which he was requested to correct the story of Yankee outrages on ladies in Milledgeville whilst Sherman held that place. The writer had been assured by General Wayne that he had letters from ladies in Milledgeville stating that no such violence had been attempted; and that Gen. Beauregard, who was there after Sherman, has stated that it was not true that such atrocities had been committed. The writer says that the story is unquestionably false, intended to excite public feeling against the enemy. He naturally concludes that a contradiction will relieve those who have friends in Savannah. It is one of the disgraceful incidents of this amazing march of Sherman through Georgia, that the world has been treated to lies of all sorts by the people of that State. Besides the newspaper statements of these outrages, we had, says the Observer, verbal assurances of their truthfulness such as led us to believe them unhesitatingly. It is due to truth that they should either be absolutely established by the Georgia press, or as absolutely contradicted.
