The Late Visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to Sweden.

The Late Visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to Swedex. Trom the London Illustrated News. 1 The Royal Palace at: Stockholm is a building for which we have no parallel in England, and those who have never seen it must throw their minds back to the giant structures of Assyria and Babylon if they would obtain a proper conception of its dimen-sions. Upon the interior decorations, either mow or at some recent period, an amount of wealth must have been lavished which England, wealthy as she is, is seldom in the humor to expend upon her pa-lace. A satite of apartments of axterme magnifi-conce, adjoining the sumptious ball-room of the pa-lace, had been prepared for the Princes and Princess. A large entrance room opens, on the right from the statrase landing, into a waiting-chamber, which leads into a saloon beautifully fitted in peculiar plux chnits pattern still coverings, and soft carpeting, sinking under the feet, beyond which is the magnifi-cent aber drawing-toom of the Princess. Her Royal Highness' bedroom is the next apartment, and in beatty of proportion and splendor of fittings and decorations, is the gem of the whole suite of rooms. The pathemets, one of Charles XII, the other of Bernadotte. Farther still than this ohmber of the Princess is a room elegantly fitted up for the lady in attendance upon her Royal High-ness, and opening on the right is a most or when they were one blaze of light, the attrase of which mays raneour. There are two statues of white mar-hen the door the rooms compled by the Prince of Wales are to the left of the grand statrases, which shows the amount of accommodation in this im-mediate doors thrown open as at the moment of the prince and Princess arity at the contrast the more inder the regiment." The house is much larger and of a more ornamental character than the onesh to the quiet Danish palace, where they had so ceen-ty resided, must have made the contrast the more attrast. The following morning was devoted to viewing tero the man towns which have not a title of its attractions. Most assuredly the tourist public of Great Hritin has not done justice to this noble diy, which has not anywhere a rival in its own peculiar style of beauty.

In the evening of the same day the royal party and invited guests were entertained by the King of Sweden with a grand dinner, at his favorite Castle of Uirkstal, which is about six milles from Stockholm, on an arm of the sea. A drive through riching vooded parks reaches it. * * The effect produced by the fitting up of the dining room in this castle is singularly pleasing. A mahogany parelling, about's feet in height, with a deep ledge round the top, skirts the room. This ledge is filled with ourious ware of every description, principally drinking horns or mugs, ranged as dlasely together as possible; many of them being of pricoless value, from the fact that they are relies of antiquity, discovered in various parts of the King's dominions. Above the panelling hunting swortds, daggers, medalions, and other souvenifs of the chase, may be said to drape the walls. Massive sliver candelabra on the tables, small chandellers of gold suspended from the colling, and clusters of light in the recesse gave to the scene all the brilliancy that it needed without necessitating the moxious heat of gas. At the principal table no one had a seat who was not either a member of the royal family or directly stached in some cauacity to those having places there as of right. The general company, however, included about one hundred of the Swedish nobility and other persons of rank. The subject of the plate and china were magnificent; the dinner shale a choice selection of music. As dinners, the Patecor Drottinghoim. This building stands on the edge of the Misar Lake, and is approached from Stockholm. The substration of the swedish nobility and other persons to valke a ther residence, the parts of the rink entresidence, the plate a choice selection of music. As dinners, the played a choice selection of music. As dinners, herces, the time may soon come when the blessings of Union and peace, founded on the principles. of justice and freedom, shall crown the efforts now so nobly made. That our country may come forth from the terri-ble ordeal stronger, better, purer, and freer, is our earnest wish, and to this end we pray that God may long spare your valuable life, and continue your invaluable services for our National prosperity and peace. On behalf of the subscribers, Very truly yours. GEO. H. STUART, E. C. KNIGHT, A. C. BORIN, DAVIE PEARSON, WM. C. KENT, GEO. WHINNEY, JAMES GRAHAM, Committee.

About half past one o'clock on Monday morning fire was discovered in a carpenter shop on the south side of Little Pine street, below Seventh, in the Fifth ward. The building is two stories high, built of brick, and runs back nearly to Lombard street. It is owned and occupied by Edward Kelley. The rear portion of the building was totally destroyed. The interior of the remainder was pretty well da-maged, and the contents were consumed. There was not much lumber or finished work on hand. The origin of the fire is a mystery, and is being in-vestigated by Fire Marshal Blackburn. The shop is surrounded by dwelling houses occupied by color-ed families. Owing to the stillness of the wind, the rain which was prevailing at the time, and the snow on the roof, none of these sustained asy damage. The loss on the building is estimated at $1,200, and that on stock, tools, &c., at $300, making a total loss of $1,500, upon which there is no insurance. BAD WEATHER. Being fifty per cent. heavier than the common Chimney, they may be headled with much lees care. A. The oval sharps is an adaptation to the flat flame, the Chimney being at all points the same distance from the heast exitat the danger of cracking by unequal ex-pansion is svoided 3. The material of which these Chimneys are mann-factured is unequalled by any other glass as a rapid conductor of heat; and, practically, it is found that the combination renders them almost entirely free from liability to destruction by the heast of the flame. Hence the obstacle in the way of the universal use of Carbon oil, found in the urreasonable expense for Chimneys, has been met and removed by the introduction of DITHRIDGE'S FIRE-PROOF OHIMMETS. The popularity of these Chimneys has induced some uny rincipled perions to make use of our anneasd trade-marks, and their reputsion call mays, sold asours. It is alleged that the defendant, while in custody of the officer, struck him a violent blow in the face. The accursed was held in the sum of $1,000 to answer. THE BOUNTY AND SUBSTITUTE BUSINESS. Some of the amendments to the enreiment law which will be advocated in the military committees of Congress are the following: The payment of half of the bounty at the expiration of the term of service, and the other half in quarter yearly instal-ments during the term; one making principals ra-sponsible for the good conduct of their substitutes, and liable to immediate service in the army if the substitute deserts; another abolishing the substi-tute system entirely, and establishing a few exemp-tions, with power to provost marshals to grant others in certain cases; another holding the pro-perty of drafted men subject to confiscation if they run away, and still another to forever disfrancing deserters and drafted runaways. The Secretary of War is known to favor some of these changes, and each has its supporters outside of the military com-mittees, though neither of the more radical ones seem at present likely to be incorporated into the law.
