are more than ever fashionable, for now, with the Russian veste, it is not merely the guimpe, but the Sleeves also which are required. Many white bodies without vestes are worn at small solrees or social dinner parties, and with a light slik skirt look ex-ceedingly, well; but care must be taken that the color of the ribbon placed under the insertion, with which these bodies are, usually trimmed, suits the shirt. Passementerie is still the favorite trimming, and deservedly go, for certainly nothing can be more slegant.

shirt. Passementarie is still the favorite iriminiz, and deservedly so, for certainly nothing can be more elegant. There is nothing new to notice either in the form or the materials for bonnets. It seems to be univer-sally admitted that the present style is much more becoming than the high-fronted bonnets were; yet it must be confessed that the absurd head-dresses made by some, and called bonnets, are quite as ilt-ile becoming, and have, besides, an air of vulgarity. Colfiures for evening costume are becoming more and more varied, and for this good reason, that is dies are beginning to adopt those styles most be-coming to them rather than to wear a head-dress because it is worn by others. Perhaps the colfiure Composed of bands of velvet is the most universally adopted; and, from the fact that it may be fastened simply with silver or jet ornaments, or earlehed with agrafies or pins of diamonds, it is equally ap-plicable either for a quilet dinner dress or for a more elaborate toilette. Those of light-blue velvet should have pearl or silver ornaments, and those of fon-ceau velvet gold or pearl ornaments. Another pretty skyle of head-dress is made with a pouff formed with ends of green velvet, worked with dew-drops in crystal, and fastened with two long ends. A charming Cérés wreath was made of blue-velvet myosoits and silver-corn ears, fastened at the back with grader of silver lace. nyosotis and silver-corn ears, fastened at the back th long bows of silver lace.

Among the many attractions in this city, few present more claims to the consideration of Phila-delphians that the grand and patriotic fair now in progress at Concert Hall, in ald of that great local institution, the "Citizens' Volunteer Hospital," at Broad and Prime streets, organized at a period when the public mind was entirely unaccustomed to war and its attendant suffering. It fully sup-plied a manifest but unavoidable deficiency, and so plan was its utility and usefulness that our citizens and neighbors generously sustained the efforts of its originators. Whenever assistance has been needed they have invariably responded to the sppeal of the board of managers with praise-worthy liberality; and the object of the fair now being held by the ladies of this institu-tion is to replenish the treasury, in anticipa-tion of the impending struggle which will pro-bably end this gigantic rebeilion, and remove the bloody field, and the hospitals receive large num-bers of wounded. Those in this city, owing to their such as they all pass through the Citizen's Hospital, the drain upon its recources will be very heavy. The cantributions that each of our citizens could give will a amount in the eggregate to a sum sufficient to enable the managers to meet any emergency. The attractions at the fair are numerons and va-sent do that the Franklin Steam Fire Hose Com-pany led the van. PHILAD ELPHIA PRESS CLUB. PHILAD ELPHIA PRESS CLUB. An interesting meeting of the club was held yes-terday afternoon, in Independence Hall. An essay was delivered by Mr. E. W. O. Greene, of the Sun-day Transcript, on the life and death of a number of. the newspaper journalists who flourished twenty and thirty years since. The essay was an eloquent eulogium on the brilliant writers attached to the Philadelphia newspapers in days long gone by. A pleasant and instructive debate ensued, in which Messrs. Young, Hassan, McKean, Veetoott, Wat-son, and Dennison were the principal participants. The club is in a flourishing condition. It was a present from a deceased husband, and she nearly fainted at the idea of losing the cherished relic. Recorder Encen happened to be present, and asked her if any part of the chain was left. She said "yes," and the Recorder asked to see it. She took hold of what she supposed to be the broken end of the chain, when lo ! the watch came along with it, she haring slipped it inside her dress instead of in her pocket. She left the office highly delighted at the discovery. FOR THE SUFFERERS BY THE LATE FIRE.
