In the absence of actual knowledge as to the pros-pective of the situation, absurd and carlous rumors increase and multiply. Thus, we are told that the south bank of the river is to be given up, and the Army of the Potomac united with the Army of the

James for a combined assault on Richmond from the north, and this plan is affirmed to be the true one, on "the authority of an officer of Gen. Meade's staff." Another rumor of a sensational characte is to the effect that Fort Hell has been undermine by the rebels, and the garrison are in momentary expectation of its blowing up. The story is a plausible one in certain respects. If General Lee designed to imitate the idea of General Burnside, he would most likely select this point, of all others on the line, for operations, because our fortifications are here closest to those of the enemy. It was in this vicinity that the Petersburg mine was blown up. Still, the story is not believed generally. Yesterday, in commemoration of the birth of Ire-2d Corps, treated itself to a field-day, as it always does on this anniversary. The celebration yester.

or participating in it. Among the latter, two gen-tlemen—one with a purple cap, and the other with inexpressibly salmon-colored breeches fitting tight to the skin-deserve particular mention for their vivacity and fearless jockeyism. But, in fact, everybody was more or less vivacious, and every one of any consequence rode a horse recklessly. The scene of the festivities was a cleared plat of ground, about forty or fifty acres in extent, a mile and a hair east of Humphrey's Station—the last station on the City Point road. At the south end of the field a stand was erected for the notables, the ladies, and a few other privileged spectators. It was gaily deco-rated with flags and guidons of various patterns that flapped and fluttered in the stiff morning breeze with a very pretty effect. Among those present on the stand were Generals Meade, seemed to enter as zealously into the spirit of up their fiery steeds to a break-neck speed. Quite number of ladies, who went up from City Point in a special train, were likewise present. The scene was a very picture sque one, and a very curious one, considered in its nature and surroundings. There could not have been less than ten thousand persons present, during the day, to look on at the sport. They formed themselves in a ring, so as to engircle the race course, being kept in tolerable shape and subjection by a sufficient guard. The first race came off just before noon, and resulted in a young-looking captain carrying off as a prize a handsome little wilp, with silver handle. The other trials of speed were mostly for sums of from one to five hundred dellars. Many, thousands of dollars, must have changed pockets during the day.

than is necessary to give such an affair due eclat. Once, when four or five horsemen were dashing down the course in a "flat race," one excited, lumpling faced man flung his slouched hat franti cally and struck the second rider full in the face.

whether the act was prompted by exuberance of spirits, or a more pecuniary motive, must be left to his own conscience. After the horse-racing came a foot-race, which, as everybody stretched his neck to see, only a fortunate few succeeded in seeing.

It was after five o'clock, when the smiling-faced trumpeter blew the signal of dismissal and the generals retired to a side tent; bedecked with evergreens, to regale themselves with sandwiches, and the horsemen and men afoot streamed over the hills and down the wearisome

The day itself, bright, sunny, and cool enough to be bracing, was auspicious for the celebration, and it onld not have passed off in a more pleasant man-ner. One or two accidents, however, occurred to mar the pleasure attending it. A colonel of a New York regiment was thrown from his horse and seriously injured, and the commissary sergeant of the took place at noon yesterday, about two miles from this point, just within the first line of breastworks.

It was a most impressive affair, and, including the troops present, must have been witnessed by five or six thousand persons. General Patrick personally supervised the arrangements, assisted by General

Collis, commandant of the post. At 11 o'clock three regiments of troops were drawn up in position so as to form three sides of a hollow square. In the centre of the area thus enclosed, two graves had been dug for the culprits, close by the gallows, which had been erected for a previous occasion, not less impressive. On the right was the 20th New York, fa-ing the gallows was the fist Massachusetts, and ing that many of the firing party were moved to tears. The men then calmly sat down upon their coffins, their eyes were bandaged, and the firing party of twelve was drawn up, apparently within five paces of them. The command was very quietly given to "fire," the muskets were discharged, and the unfortunate men readed basis.

charged, and the unfortunate men recled back in their coffins, dead. After a lapse of half an hour the lids were nailed upon the coffins and the corpses were removed to the dead-house, to be em-

A large number of prisoners were cantured during the raid, but owing to the rapidity of the movements of our troops many of them had to be abandoned, and others made their escape, owing to the relaxed vigilance of the guards, who were glad to get rid of them. The entire cavalry force has crossed to the south bank of the Pamunkey river, and is now engaged in recruiting pre-paratory to new movements. The rebel General Longstreet, with his corps, is supposed to be lurking in the vicinity of the White louse, for on the evening of the arrival of General heridan's army at that place frequent skirmishes courred between his advanced pickets and un-

51R: A few minutes before six o'clock on Monday evening two non-commissioned officers of the United States army, belonging to a regiment now forming at Camp William Penn, stepped, on the font platform of a Fifth street car (near Architect), on their way, to the Berke street depot of the North Pennsylvania Rallicad. It was the last car by which they could reach the train to convey them out to their camp that night. When these well-dressed and well-behaved colored soldiers atepped on the platform there was no one else on it except the driver. They were almost immediately seen by the conductor, who rushed tarough the car and ordered the men to "get off." One of the soldiers replied, "We want to reach the train to get out to camp to night." I can't help that, you can't ride on this car, "was the answer. As the men did not move at once, the sonductor put his

As a the men did not move at once, the conductor put his hand on the one nearest to him, to push him off. The men, without resistance, but with an indignation they could not represe, were forced from the glatform. The conductor, proud of what he had done, and with a chuckle of delight as he exchanged glances with the driver, re entered the ear. I saked him by what right he had compelled those soldiers to leave the platform. Him all we was, "Sach are my orders." I could not assume that he sched whout authority, and had heaven that he sched with the roply, "Then they are breaked set, which force well behaved United States soldiers from the platform of your ear, and especially as this is the only car would not listen to their heing allowed to stand on the vacant platform. I ascertained the number of the car to be "41." We reached the Berke-street station just in time to take the train on the North Pennsylvania Railroad, and the two colders were laft behind.

I have no comments to make, but I deem the publication of the facts of this case only a just continuent. Which, by and by; will compel passenger railroad companies to retrain from issuing inhuman orders.

I have seen choosed soldiers on the battle field. I have seen them defending fortifications, which, a few hours before, they is detarted from Southern rebels, at their wounds recived in our defence, but I never before saw them foroibly driven from the privilege of standing on the platform of a railwaye car.

One thousand will cover the loss of the enemy in killed and wounded, while that of the national forces is reported at three hundred. The enemy claim to have taken eight hundred prisoners in the fight o day, but this is an exaggeration by five hundred. Four hundred rebels were captured by ou foreas in the fight of Friday, which has been called the battle of Wise's Forks." The enemy fied panio africken, and had General Couch's command,

The Times concludes by observing: "Futling all things together, we are inclined to believe that the Government of Washington will not attack us immediately on the conclusion of this present war, and that it will therein show its wisdom: It would, however, be most inconvenient, costly, and disagreeable to have the quarrel hanging over our heads, waiting for american convenience and opportunity. When the time comesour statesmen will have to see that we are not placed under that penance if that indeed is to be our fate; and if we are to live in daily expectation of news that the United States have marched upon our provinces for the satisfaction of some old claims, vamped up for the purpose, then we may be excused if we are less anxious to see the present war over than we otherwise thould be a set of the contract of the General Couch was applied to by a widow to proteet her property during the march. The General replied substantially, "I have protected a great deskiof property in the South during our marches district property in the South during our marches but then the rebels burned my house at Chambers burg, last summer, I swore vengeance. I have not yet found it in my heart to take it, however, and I am afraid I will lose my chance. Your property shall be protected. I keep thinking that if I ever get into South Carolina I will take my vengeance there, but I guess it would be about the same At one time a large barn was found full of corn and other stores. Enough was taken to supply the hts of the army, and a large amoun s house where the men, as usual, were off in the crowd at a respectful distance, and to prevent it from closing in and completing the fourth side of the square, which it would have done at all risk, if Is the South Conquered?

To the Hon. Horace Greeky:

Sir: Is the South conquered? Europe, the press and people, echo yes. I have been firm in the conviction, for years, that the South cannot be conquered—thur my efforts for "mediation," an "International Congress," and "negotiation." Unchanged in this view, I beg leave to add the option that the civil war, under a continued force policy, has but commenced; that the evacuation policy of the South—avoiding battles—Is not forced, but premediated, under a determined upon concentration of forces. Under this policy Richmond will, without doubt, be evacuated, and the greatest battles of ancient or modern times fought, resulting in the snoess of the South and the entire destruction of the American Republic, under foreign dictation. Even acknowledging the desolation of the South, it is their strength in its power to reunite the people, while the late refusal of the Government either to negotiate a peace with the Confederacy, the States, or generals in the field, is additional strength through thereby a returning sympathy of Europe. The success of the South is not, however, alone through a concentration policy and the arming of the slaves who will prove true, but through the policy of Napoleon to control nations. History, as a guide, has secured to Napoleon a controlling power in Europe. Maximilian will secure to him the extension of that power over the American continent, unless we become reconciled with the South. To seek that reconciliation and to check the extension of European power here, I appeal to you as the most prominent sentinel upon the watch-tower of our now threatened Republic to induce the President chance had occurred. At half-past eleven o'clock the troops were called to "open order," and those on the inner line were directed to right about face, thus forming an avenue through which the prisoners were to be marched, allowing them to be distinctly seen by every soldier in the line. In a little while the cortege entered in the following order: Band of the 114th Pennsylvania Regiment (Collis' Zouaves), playing the Dead March in Saul; guard; detail of four men bearing the coffins ; guard ; prisoners walking arm in arm with their spiritual advisers ; guard. Having marched around the lines the party proceeded to the centre of the enclosure, and the coffins were laid cross the graves. The prisoners walked with a form step, and betrayed no emotion. The usual formula was gone through with, the finding and sentence of the court-martial and the approval thereof by Major General Meade. was read, and then, side by side, the condemned men, after shaking hands, knelt in prayer. Reverend Geo. L. Nerde, of Philadelphia, officiated as chaplain on the occasion, by request, and exerted himself to the utmost to reconcile the men to their te and bring them to a tranquil frame of mind. After prayer one of the men made a short speech, admitting his guilt, acknowledging his punishment deserved, and hoping his fate would prove a warning to all who heard him. His words were so affective that warning to all who heard him.

The Inmas steamer City of Loutton, Captain Petrie, which left Liverpool at 3 everous on the siternoon of the 8th, and Queenstown on the 9th March, arrived at New York yesterday morning. In the absence of late news from America, which was ambusly expected, the result of the fall of Charleston continued to be eagerly canvasted.

The London Times of March 6, in an editorial article recounting and praising the operations of Sherman down to the fall of Charleston, says:

"Though Grant'could not take Richmond, he could not be driven away from it, and he improved that far on the achievements of his predeessors, that he retained his footing on Virgitia seil. Instead of with dawing his arms and congratulating his countryten on its 'safety,' as former generals had done, he held his ground with 'maconquerable obstinacy, pushed incessabily at every point of promise in the Confederate lines, and thus het in cheek the hest general of the South. Though he was not successful himself, it was he who enabled Sherman to become so. Lee and his army were neutralized by Grant's tenacity, and Sherman without fear of interviption from that quarter, pursued indefatigably his own designs. These designs have led to the most memorable events of the war. Sherman found that he could go where he pleased, at a cost not beyond his means, and he formed his plan. For the first time in the history of the war a Federal army was marching on with all the ancess that could be desired. Sherman was doing what it was vainly hoped that Modellan, and Pope, and Hooler, and Burnside' would do. The game was all his own, and we see what he made of it. He boldly ventured on that enterprise to which the North had been confidently challenged in the early days of the war, and followed the enemy into the interior. His marked by his next achievement. Relying on his military su periority, and making a wise estimate of the roundres of the soundres of the country, he plunged into the heart of Georgia, and succeeded, almost without molecation, in reach ARBIVAL OF THE BURUSSIA. The steamer Borussia arrived this evening, from Southampton. Her advices are auticipated. CONVICTION OF A MURDERUR,

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL. Festerday was one of intense excitement in commer lal and financial circles, caused by the further fall in the gold premium. The markets were exceedingly "bearish," and the sturdlest believers in high prices and a successful Southern rebellion succumbed to the universality of the opinion that the Confederacy is utterly used up, and peace at hand. How soon matters will assume some settled shape it is, of course, impossible to say. While the gold market continues in its present demoralized state the future is full of doubt, and business must suffer in all its departments. Produce and merchandise are for the present entirely unsaleable, and solders are obliged to mark down their goods much below cost, as an inducement to buyers. Buyers, however, are indisposed to operate, even with this in ducement, in the hope that the further decline in gold will compel still lower asking rates. A new specula-tive movement developed itself yesterday in Governnent bonds, which had the effect for a while of depress-ing them very materially. A combination was formed, of which the nucleus was in New York, the object of which was to send down those bonds to an extent that which was to send-down trose bonds to an extent that it was designed should interfere with the sale of the seven thirties at the regular subscription price. The principal parties in the ring were the most prominent gold gamblers, and operators with secesh proclivities in the two offices. So successful was the operation, that the 5-20 were sold down to 101½. Later in the day, however, the decline was completely recovered, and it was raported was unable to deliver, and had to "go by the board."
We heard also of another failure in our own city. The rimary object was not attained. The sale of the 7.30s continued to a very large extent. The confidence of the people in this popular loan grows day by day. Experience has shown that the only effect or seloned by the fall in gold is similar to that which a victory occasions. namely, to attinulate the subscriptions of the people in all portions of the country.

The decline in all stock securities is very marked. Reading sold at 43%, a decline of 2%; Pennsylvania at 53, a decline of 5, and Catawissa preferred at 21%, a deline of 2%. Other rativoad stocks were weak, and buyers could only be tempted by very material concessions. Oity loans show a continued depression; the municipals declined 4; the new sold at 30, Monday's price. The City Treasury is reported to be in such a condition that the Treasury is reported to be in such a condition that namely, to atimulate the subscriptions of the people in thy Treasurer was allowed by law to self-sity loan at market rates holders of warrants could obtain their money without having, as now, to submit to the rainous discount of 9 and 10 per cent. Councils, however, do not see fit to repeal the law on the subject, and the creditors of the city are defrauded of their just dues. Oil stocks are particularly blue, prices having fallen off considerably, with very light sales. There was little said in ompany bonds, the sales being confined to Lehigh Valev sixes at 95: Camden and Amboy mortgage sixes at
