The AMMONIA ENGINE.—They are discussing just now in Paris a proposal for propeiling omni-buses and other vehicles by means of ammonia. The engine which it is proposed to apply to this purpose is the invention of M. Teiliter. Ammonia, under ordinary conditions, is a gaseous body, but itere are various methods by which it can be readily condensed into a liquid, in which state, unless it be restrained by sufficient pressure, a tempera-ture below that of the freesing point of water is sufficient to convert it into gas again. M. Teiliter takes advantage of this property of that body as follows : He places liquided ammonia in a suita-ble vessel, connected by a pipe and stop-cock with a oylinder having a piston fitted to work in it. When the stop-cock is opened a portion of the lique-fied ammonia becomes converted into gas, which rushes into the cylinder and raises the piston. When the gas has thus forced the piston to the top of the cylinder, a little water is admitted under the piston. Water and ammonias in scantry aborbs all the gas, thereby causing a vacuum un-der the piston, and so enabling the pressure of the atmosphere to force the piston back to its original position. When the piston is once more at the bod-tom of the cylinder, the stop-cock in the pipe com-municating between the cylinder and the vessel containing the liquified ammonia is again turned, and all proceeds again as before. For obvious reasons there should be at least two cylinders - M. Tellier prefers three—to easing a the the stop of the spling about two simple or hores at the de storb the samonia is again turned, more gas is fust admited be neath the piston, and all proceeds again as before. MISCELLANEOUS. "THE AMERICAN MERCHANT."

HISCELLANEOUS. "THE AMERICAN MERCHANT." This was the subject of a very entertaining lec-ture delivered last evening by John A. Owens, Esq. at the Commercial College of Mesers. Bryant, Stratton, & Bannister, Assembly Buildings, Tenth and Chestnui streets. An intelligent audience of ladies and gentiemen greeted the lecturer, and at times applauded the happy sentiments delivered by him. The large room in the upper atory of the spa-cious building, formerly occupied as the coun-oll chamber of the Sons of Malta, was se-lected in which to deliver the address. This room, we may say, is one of the pretitest in Philacelphia, the walls such celling still being embellished with designs incident to the mystic order. The paintings on the wall ware evidently dome by skilful artists. This epartment is also used as the practical department of the college. The lecture last evening was the cloing one of a series of ten that have been delivered during the past wintsr season. The lecture commended by refer-ring to the rise and progress of trade in the Old World, and then branched out upon the subject in-cidential to America. He alluded to the mean and noble gratuities of men who have become rich, and, in a happy strain, contrasted them as members of society. The late Stephen Girard and Astor, with all theif wealth, were seliain in their social life. There were contrasted with such gentlemen as the late John Grigg, Samuel Moore, and Okners, who grewitch, but left a name that posterity for gene-rations will reverence with them in the grave. In London the names of many men, who lived hun-dreds of years since, an honor to themselves and society, are yet visible on the old sign-boards. To some extent this has been introduced in Philadel-phia. Merchants who have achieved success with homor, have, in some instances, upon retiring from the scive reones of interastive duid heave interview to some one as a representative of the name of the old firm. This the speans of the bue vindices to s

Detendant raised still another point, that as the promise of Douglass to Barber was not in writing, and as the money paid at the time of the sale by Douglass was his own money, the agreement was not binding under the statute of frands. Judge Sharswood took this view of the case and the plaintif suffered a non-soit. The court then adjourned till Monday.
