my22 No 25 South SIXTed St., above Chestaut. ADVERTISING FOR A WIPE, AND WEAT CAME OF IT.—The Toronto Leader gives the particulars of a matrimonial romance, in which a Vermont elergyman was the main character, the denouement of which was, however, anything but romantle to him. It seems that a farmer in McHenry county, Illinois, named W——, had advertised in a Cutcago paper for a wife, which was repide to by a dashing young law student of Toronto ripe for fun, under the name of Helen Christopher. A warm correspondence ensued, "Helen" imitating the hand and style of a lady anxious to make a good match, and describing berself as an orpusa of respectable family connections, and of means, residing in Toronto. The correspondence was finally broken of by W—'s neglect in paying his postage, which in Canada amounts to something, and us married some one in his own neighborhood. But the sequel contains the pith of the story. W—'s father, a minister in Vermont, and a widower, by some means got hold of "Helen's" letters to his con, and, being struck with her style, wrote to her with a view of marrying her himself. He told ner that "I am a minister of the gospel, am unmarried, buried a nice little wife years ago, and have no only direct to tax the attention of a companion. My family is provided for and off my hands. I think sometimes of discontinuing preaching, and of retiring to private life. My sage people judge to be thirty-five, though I am older. I am ahove the middle size of men, though not large; have perfect health, and a fair position in society. My complexion is dark, with dark eyes and hair—hair not tinged with gray in the least. What makes my complexion still darker, I wear full beard and moustache."

May I ask my listle part (if I may be allowed to "May I ask my lister and off my life and an income of the story." If you can sing ally will the option to pay interest in gold be availed would so reduce and equalize prices as that pur-DIED. The American.

The Indian Matrimonial Market.—The chief periodical outdoor show at Calcutta is the arrival of a home steamer in the cold weather, when a cargo of matdens for the matrimonial market is always brought out. Upon these days bachelors who are "ightvering on the brick" of the other state, and are ilred of the loneliness of an Indian flation, go down to the "P. and O," wharf at Garden Reach and inspect the new English faces; sometimes very pretty faces, but oftener bearing such marks of home wear as prove that the East is not tried until the chances elsewhere are rather bad. The picture is an odd one. Each "battery" of fair ones is under the charge of an experienced matron, who answers for their conduct up to that point. As they land, they try to look utterly unconscious of their mission, and of the fact that they are open to au eligible other within ten minutes after their sarrival. Marriage is usually rapid work in India, but the last two old seasons are said to have been so had that it would be an act of good nature on our part to discourage further shipments at present. The fact is that India does not enhance female charms. The plump, round, little figure soon becomes sharp, angular, and stiff. Mosquitoes and Bengalee servants are not good for the temper, and as there is no opera to go to, and nothing particular to talk about, it would be strange if the 'emale nature' old not sometimes get a little sourced and very mund. Yet its in India that the tred courage, self-denial, and affection of a good women are one mover overland consignments to the market. It is a bad time for these lair adventures now, however fair they may be; and as for those who have lost their bloom, they had better content themselves with teaching dirty little boys at home, for the days of promise for them are over.—Saturday Review. who will probably never get a wife by advertising.
