FRIDAY, JUNE 23, 1865. The Cattle Disease. To the Editor of the Press:

Sis: Chancing to find an article headed "A Sis: Chancing to find an article headed "A Singular Cattle Dissess," copied into a Battimore Singular Cattle Dissess," copied into a Battimore paper from the Philadelphia Press, it occurred to paper from the Philadelphia Press, it occurred to paper from the following extract from "Kitchy and me that the following extract from "Kitchy and Spence's Entomology" might not only oxplain the Spence's Entomology" might not only oxplain the Spence's Entomology's might not only explain the disease you speak of, but also convey some interesting information to your numerous readers:

"Another quadruped contributing to our domestic of another quadruped contributing to our domestic comfort, from which we derive our animal food, and shift is often used by agriculturalists as a sab situte for the horse, is not exempt from insect domination—I mean the co. whether male or female.

"At certain seasons the whole terrified herd, with their tails in the sir, or turned upon their hadrs or "At certain seasons the whom their backs, or their tails in the air, or turned upon their backs, or their tails in the direction of the spine, stiffly stretched out in the unestoned the space gallep about their pastures, making the country regallep about their lowings, and finding no rest till they acho with their lowings, and finding no rest till they at into the water. Their appearance and motion at this time so grotesque, clumsy, and seemingly al, that we are tempted rather to laugh the peer beasts than to pity them, though evidently in a state of great terror and distress. The cause of all this agitation and nestlessness is a small gad or bot-fly (cw. bovis) less than the horse-bee, the object of which, though it be not to bits them, but merely to oviposit in their hides, is not put into execution without giving them extreme pain.

"When exen are employed in agriculture the attack of this fly is often attended with great danger, since they become perfectly unmanageable; and whether in harness or yoked to the plough, will run directly forward.

"Resumur thus describes the organ by which these insects deposit their eggs beneath the skin of the animals: The anus of the female is furnished with a tube of a corneous substance consisting of four a time of a control statement of the pieces, which, like a telescope, are retractile within each other. The last of these terminates in five each other. The lass of sales of ministes in the points, three of which are longer than each other, and hooked; when united, they form an instrument and hooked, he gimlet; only, having these points, like an auger or gimlet; only, having these points, it can bite with more effect. From the semblance of temporary madness in oxen when pursued and of temporary madness in Oxfor the partitude horse by the oxfors, the Greeks applied the term to any fit of sudden fury, or violent impulse in the human species, calling such ebulitions an cestrus. The semale fly is observed to be very expeditious in performing the operation, during which time the animal attempts to lash her off with his tail. The animal accompose to lead ner on with his tail. The circular opening made by the auger always con-tinues open, and increases in diameter as the larvaincrease in size. But though these insects thus torment our cattle, they do them no material injury; indeed, they occasion considerable tumors under the skin, where the bots reside, varying in number four to thirty or forty; but these seem unat tended with pain, and are so far from being injurious that they are rather regarded as proof of the goodness of the animal, as these files only attack oung and healthy subjects. The tanners prefer bides, as being always the best and strongest. EVR ISLE, OR THE LAST VOYAGE OF THE CA-LYPSO.—This is the title of a new romance, just commenced in The Saturday Evening Post of Philadelphia. It is very exciting, and full of interest. Eve like herself is a singular creature, overflowing Eve Isle neter to a suspense cleanly, vest one of the mysterious about her. We think any one who begins "Eve Isle" will find it difficult to refeats from perusing to the end the varied fortunes of this singu girl, and of the varied characters with whom fate has connected her. The Post can be procured of the news dealers, or from the publishers, 319 Walnut street, Philadelphia. Price five cents a single number, $2 50 a year, or $1.25 for six months. ber, $2 50 a year, or $1.25 for six months.

The Governorship of Idaho Territory.—
The spirited contest carried on for a day or two to secure the Governorship of Idaho between the personal and political friends of Mr. Wallace, the present member from the Territory, and Jacob Balley, a Democratic ex-member of Congress from Pennsylvania, threatens to degenerate into a squabble. A Mischleyous element has been thrust into the criticoversy, which, if disregarded, may ultimately compel the friends of both to unite on another candidate to defeat a common enemy. The friends of Major General Benjamin F. Butler endeavor to make up in industry what they so lamentably lack in numbers, and are now tigorously olowing his horn and urging his claims and peculiar fitness to govern Idaho. The place is desired as a steppingstone to a United States Senatorship, and a new lease on place and power. No one expects his appointment; but his name may prove an apple of discord in the councils.

Governor Lyon has not as yet been officially removed. He canles having been run out of the Territoria. discord in the control of the Termoved. He denies having been run out of the Territory, as published in a New York paper, and claims to be here on official business connected with the control of the Termover of the Termove its interests, by virtue of a three-months' leave of absence granted by Mr. Lincoln. The Legislature absence granted by Mr. Lincoln. The Lexislature ordered the removal of the Capitol from Lewis to Boyce, and the dissatisfaction with Governor Lyon is represented to be confined to the citizens of the former place, because of his refusal to voto the bill.

New York Herald. METHODISTICAL THEP.—Yesterday afternoon a reverend gentleman of the Methodist persuasion, named John Molleish, got into trouble by stealing seventy deliars from a sailor, in a low house in clark street. The man fobbed had been serving in the navy, and having just recurred, indused himself in a sailor-like spree. He went into a saloon on clark street, nere Lake street, and became there so sippy that the landlord consented to let him lie down upon a couch in his parior. The reverend old man was seated there, reading the newspapers, and after the sailor iell asleep it appears that he had in a Christian and reverend way, taken a survey of his pockets. Finding there two bills—one for fifty and the other for twenty dollars—he naturally concluded that it must be the possession of such filtry lucre that was rubbing the young man's soul, and leading him into the ways of wickedness. He exordsed the empter by relieving him of both bills, but made the mistake, in passing out, of presenting the twenty-dollar bill at the bar, in liquidation of a small score he had, in a sacred way, run up. It was recognized by the unregenerated landlord, who, though evicating hor yet having had the fortune to be born 44 ha, has lacular assistance in the form of Detective Kenny, who found it his unholy duty to carry the reverend gentieman to the central station. He will likely have to make his appearance this morning at that uncancuifed place, the Armory, where it is to be bored his presence will be beneficial in inducing Captain Nelson and the other benighted officials to be encountered there, to think with care of their future state.—Chicago Times, 20th. George Wilkes and Judge A. D. Hussell.—
There are several rumors affoat in regard to Judge A. D. Russel's appearance on the witness stand before the military commission. On last Friday morning George Wilkes called at the War Department, and as he entered Secretary Stanton's room, the latter informed him that he was just about telegraphing to Gen. Dix to send to Washington some person acquainted with Ban. Wood's handwriting. While they were in conversation Judge Russel was announced, where upon Mr. Stanton held out a piece of paper, on which was Ben. Wood's name, and asked him if he knew that signature. On replying in the affirmative, he was asked if he had seen Wood's signature often enough to identify it in any place. The Judge replied that he had, whereupon Secretary Stanton called an officer and directed him to take these two men (Wilkes and Russel) into custody, and they were immediately taken to the room where the military commission were in session and placed on the witness stand, —New York Herald.
