PROPER PERS. -Colonel Northrop, the rebel Commissary General, and peculiar prolégé of Jeff Davis, is now living in North Carolina in great distress. Having resigned his office some five months before the evacuation, in consequence of re-peated charges of inefficiency, made against him in and out of Congress, he went to North Carolina, where he applied himself to farming. He was enabled to make a start in this new field of enterprise, through the kindness of some friends; but just as he had planted his crops, Sherman's army came that way and ruined all. He is left without any means for the support of a large family, his property in Charleston, South Carolina, having been either destroyed by fire or confiscation. DEATH OF JAMES DUNDAS, Esq.—James DEATH OF JAMES DUNDAS, Esq.—James Dandas, a distinguished citizen of Philadeiphia, died at his residence, Broad and Wahnt streets, on Tuesday last, after a painful and protracted illness, of which paralysis and heart disease were the prominent features. Mr. Dundas was born at Alexandria, Va., in the year 1788, but has spent the most of his life in this city. He was at one time President of the Pennsylvania Bank, and at the time of his death was President of the Horticultural Society. He devoted much of his time and means to the pursuit of horticulture in its various branches, and possessed a garden and hot-house which contained a larger variety of rare plants then could be found in any other collection, public or private. Mr. Dundas leaves no children. His nearest connections are nicees and nephews.

FATAL RAULROAD ACCIDENTS,—On Tuesday evening, about a quarter past nine o'clock, as the Washington through mail train South was approaching Whitehall, in the Twenty-third ward, four men were observed on the track. The whistle was blown, and the party made an effort to get off the track. One of the mee, maned Dennis Parrah, was caught by the locomotive and dragged under the wheels. The whole train passed over him, literally cutting him in two. Another one of the party, Frank Devlin, late a member of the 121st Regiment, P. V., was struck by the cow-enteller and thrown a distance of fifty teet. He was also instantly killed. His neck was broken, his skull fractured, and his breast mashed in, the steraum and nearly overy rib being fractured in two or more places. Both the unfortunate men reside in Frankford.

The Commonwealth ex rel. Cozzens vs. H. A. Frink et al. This case tame up yesterday as per adjournment from Saturday.

Mr. Gilpin for the Sheriff, Mr. Howell, presented a further return to the writ of attachment in his hands to the critect that the other respondents, three subordinates of Colonel Frink, named therein, were produced by him in court as commanded. It thus appearing that all the parties were at length in court, Judge Thompson directed the case to proceed.

F. C. Brewster, Esq., on behalf of Mr. Cozzens, then read the following in the nature of exceptions to the return to the writ of habeas corpus made by Col. Frink on Saturday.

And now, July 5th, 1855, the relator files the following exceptions to the original return, and additional return to the writ of habeas corpus in this case: that Mr. Cozens and not come whom they of the classes therein enumerated as to whom the privilege of the writ should be suspended. Mr. Browster elaborated the questions raised, and submitted the case. In the matter of the attachment for con-tempt, Judge Knox presented the following: tempt, Judge Knox presented the following:
To the Hon. James Thompson, etc.:
In the matter of the writ of habeas corpus, issued by your Honor upon the relation of William B. N. Cozzens, the undersigned respectfully state that they had no control over the body of the said relator at the time when the said writ was served, nor since that time.

DANIEL P. WEAVER,
JOSEPH A. KAUPPHAN,
H. G. PERRY.
On behalf of Col. Frink, a paper was also presented, embodying substantially his verial explanation made in open Court last saturday, and disclaiming any intentional contentpl of court. and additional return to the writ of habeas corpus in this case:

1. Recause the said returns do not show to the Court as by said writ the respondents were commanded, the cause for or upon which the relator has been arrested and is retained.

2. Because the said returns do not traverse or attempt to traverse any of the facts alleged in the petition on which this writ was issued, and on those facts the President has no authority in haw to order the arrest of the relator.

ject to the caprice of the President. Not so for Congress has the power to declare the re-hellion ended if the President does not see fit FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL. for Congress has the power to accure the rebellion ended if the President does not see fit to do so.

As to showing the cause of arrest, he beld that the moment you are informed as to why a man was arrested—not the "cause"—the arrest was valid. Mr. Binney, so freely and apply quoted, is good authority, but not ultimate. Pouthless if he had framed some of the acts of Gougress, they would have been more perfect. But Congress has the power, and exercises the power, whether wisely or not is not ours to inquire. The speaker contended that the Constitution gave the right of suspension of the writ in certain cases. The late President repeatedly, by his own order, suspended the privilege. Mr. Binney himself wrote an able pamphlet to show that the President had the right. Attorney General Bates delivered an elaborate opinion to the same end, and Congress itself gave to the Presidentthe power, generally, not limiting the general power to him during the rebellion.
It was given him in March, and he did not excreise it until September, and then limited it to specified classes of cases in which he would suspend the writ. Congress declared, at the same time, the necessary procedure. The oath of the officer executing the power was all that was required; the "cause" was not necessarily had adjudged many cases of the suspension of the writ in Pullahelphia. These points settled— With the return of peace begins the revival of Southern trade. Regular lines of steamers, minis-ering to this great commercial want, are com-mencing to ply between our own and New York ports and the several ports of the South, carrying thither the necessaries of life and bringing back the great staple-colton-of which our manufactories have been so long partially deprived. Although when compared with the former prosperity of the two sections, the Southern trade is as yet insigntificant, nevertheless it is already very considerable; cant, nevertheless it is already very considerable; and when proper policy shall be adopted, as we are certain it will be, to foster and develop the resources of the Southern people, we may hope for a speedy revival of our former prosperity. We may half the present indication of activity as sure harbingers of more baleyon days about to be. Already there is a rapid influx of buyers by every stemer. Many are making the amende honorable to their Northern creditors by liquidating their old indebtedness in full; others in part, and all are arranging to fall into their former lines of business. The cotton of Georgia, Atabama, and North Crotlina, which is now rapidly coming into market, is to those States both money and credit—money in that its value to the Northern market is inestimable at the present time; and credit in that it is an earnest of future ability to pay. Upon this basis large transactions are being made, our commercial men acting in a manner particularly liberal in respect to terms, especially with men with whom mercal men acting in a manner particularly moral in respect to terms, especially with men with whom they have formerly dealt, or those whose integrity has been placed beyond a doubt. And thus it hap-
