The Tribune asserts that while Captain Fox was in New York arranging the details of his expedi-tion to Sumpter, an order was extracted from the President, on the recommendation of Sec-retary Seward, detaching the Powhatan from the Sumpter expedition and sending her to Fort Pickens; that when President Lincoln signed this order at the instance of Mr. Seward, he (the President) did not know that it was to apply to the Powhatan, or that it would in any way interfore with the expedi-tion under Captain Fox for the relief of Fort Treasers and the Seward of interfore. He also instructed Lieutenant Porter to com-municate this order, his object and destina-tion, to no person whatever, until he reached the harbor of Pensacola. The other order of the same date was in-tended for exhibition to such officers as had control of the vessels. It authorized him to take command of the steamer Prowhatan, or any other United States steamer ready for sea, which he high tdeem best fit for the service which he had been assigned by confidential in-structions of the same date, ist of April. Set the order itself in the Times of the lith of Sep-tember, 1865. All this was three days before the President informed Captain Fox that he had decided to let the Sumpter expedition go, and the official documents show, therefore, that the Powhatan was not taken without the knowledge of the President, since she was ta-ken under an order signed by him before he authorized the Sumpter expedition, in which order she was expressly designated by name for the Pickens expression. The orders of the President in relation to the Powhatan, and to the whole Pickens ex-pedition, were not known to the Secretary of the Navy. The success of the expedition to relieve Fort Pickens depended upon secrecy, Washington and New York were full of per-sons ready to transmit the first intelligence of such an intention. This simple and hare statement contains within it the hope of the speedy inauguration of a complete and vital change in the system which has led the Old Dominion to the very brink of ruin. With a vast domain embracing every variety of surface, from pine-topped mountain to river meadow, and with a soil of wonderful native richness, both in yegetable growth and mineral wealth, she has been steadily declining from her primal fertility, year by year, until the war, that has made her its battle-field, merely completed the work, and marked in stronger lines the ruin already wrought out by her own system of folly and wrong. But the "dark and sinful burden" has been removed, and we will no longer see her fruitful lands fading into barrenness under the ban of unwise and exhaustive tillage, and her low, rich river-bottoms, warm, luxuriant, moist, and becoming mere dreary reaches of swamp and thicket, sending forth in their very richness miasma and death instead of fruitfulness and health. The most ignorant Virginian will be forced by such an example to respect the work through admiration of the workman, and will soon learn the utter folly of that old conceit that has almost ruined his country. In our old peaceful days it enjoyed a semiromantic fame as serving as a kind of Gretna Green, to which, by long-established custom, all runaway lovers from the neighboring States fled for that matrimonial halm or band that they expected to end all their sorrows.

That sturdy pioneer, old John BROWN, here antedated by but a few years the impending conflict which was to be the deathblow of the national sin that he so hated; and history has since (as it always A gratifying proof of the feeling of some of true-hearted visionary into fact, and shown again that every grand advance in the march of mankind must be preceded by a NELL, M. martyrs of the future ! By a strange coincidence, one of the ear-liest events of the war was another seizurc of this grand mountain gateway by another "traitor;" but the cause was changed, and it was held by mad Southern fanatics as a key to the capital of their endangered coun-try. These first days of terror passed, and again the grand old ferry was held by a loyal leader—a man who had learned well loyal leader-a man who had learned well his lesson of fealty on the bloody border lands of Kansas. To round the story into poetic fullness, beside him stood one to whom the very ground beneath his feet was sacred to liberty, for there he had fought a harder battle when he sought a convict's body, wrapped in the opprobrium of the gal-laborers to resist the Liberals, and makes the said proprietors responsible for the acts of the Juarists. This is only giving arms and re-cruits to the Liberals. The correspondence from Tampico is of the most discouraging kind. It has been three months since communication has been had with San Luis and the interior. No merchan-dise can be transported, and trade is com-pletely blocked. There has been no movement of the Imperi-alists in Sonora, Chihuadua. Gerrera, Tobasco, Chiapa and Calima, which States are entirely in the hands of the Liberals. [The special despatch we printed two weeks

[The special despatch we printed two weeks ago, and the letter from our special correspond-ent at Chihuahua, which will be found in another column of to-day's issue, prove this lat-ter statement to be both fabricated and false.

Gen. CONNER is on the war path in search of the hostile tribes of the North and North-west, with fair prospects of accomplishing important results. A GROWING FEELING in favor of a high protective tariff is evident in the tone of our Western exchanges. Numerous arti-cles, characterized by great ability, appear in their columns. ter was on the evening of the join of March. The President did not inform me that he in-tended to attempt to, relieve Fort Sumpter, but questioned me as to the possibility of doing it. I advised in general terms that I could find him plenty of officers of the navy willing to try it. He then asked me whether I thought Fort Pickens could be reinforced. I replied that it could be, provided the re-lieving force reached there before it fell, and with the maps before us the mode of effect-ing this object was discussed. I advised that, if the attempt was made, a fleet steamer, under a young and enterprising officer, should be despatched immediately, to run the batte-ries, enter the harbor, and prevent any ex-pedition of Bragg's crossing the harbor in boats to assault Fort Pickens. The President said he would see me again if he concluded to go further in the matter. I quietly made in-quiries, and learned that the Powhatan had just returned from the East, and that she was in New York and able to go to see. On the morning of the Sist of March, I was again sum-moned and directed, in conjunction with Col. Edward keyes, and with the approval of Gen. Scott, to prepare a project for the relief of Edward Reyes, and with the approval of Gen. Scott, to prepare a project for the relief of Fort Pickens. The instructions to Licutenant Porter were signed on the 1st of April, and the President on that day signed, at my re-quest, a telegraphic despatch to New York, directing that the Powhatan be made ready for sea instantly. This despatch, as we-learned, reached the navy yard only an hour or two after the Powhatan had been put out of commission, and ber spars learned, reached the navy yard only an hour or two after the Fowhatan had been put out of commission, and her spars taken down and erew detached. Great exer-tions were made to prepare her for sea, but, instead of sailing on the 2d, as intended, she did not leave until the 6th, by which time the steamer Atlantic, with stores, supplies, and some seven hundred men, had also been made ready and sailed the same day. Licut. Porter, as 1 understand, did not produce the order to assume command of the Powhatau until the last moment, as it was considered better not to awake attention by changing the command-er until the vessel was about to sail. The or-ders in relation to the two expecitions were communicated only to the officers engaged in each. We were not advised of the prepara-tion for the Sumpter expedition, and, at the moment the Powhatau was ready for sea, the sign manual of the President was produced, and Captain Mercer, after some hesitation, in consequence of conflicting orders from the Navy Department, gave up the ship. The positive order of the President, defaching him, and placing Licutenant Porter in com-mand, over-ruled the order of the Navy De-partment. The conflict was the result of the secresy with which the whole business was conducted; and to that secresy, in a great mea-sure, was due the relief of Fort Pickens, and the retention of this finest harbor in the South by the United State. From this statement, and from a comparison of the dates of the official orders, it will be plain, 1 think, that the Secretary of State is not lible to the elevent of faving de-ceived the President, or of having de-ceived the President, or of having caused the Powhatan to be diverted from the purpose to which the twe diverted from the purpose to
