The most interesting and exciting book ever published, embracing Mr. Richardson's unparalleled experience for four years, travelling through the South in the secret service of the Tribune, at the outbreak of the war, with our armies and fleets, both East and West, during the first two years of the Rebellion; his thrilling capture; his confinement for twenty months in seven different Rebellion; his escape, and almost miraculous journey, by night, of nearly four bundred miles. It will abound in Stirring eyents, and contain more of the fact, incident, and romance of the war than any other work published.

Horace Greeley says.

A greatmany books will yet be written concerning this war, in addition to the many already in print; but not one of them will give within a sheltar compass a clearer, fuller, more readible account, entirely from personal observation, of the nature. by going early, JUST RECEIVED, BY CADEMY OF MUSIC. This is one of the finest productions of the celebrated artist, C. Schussele, Esq., and painted to the order of the publisher, without regard to cost, and the last production of the artist before he salicel for Europe for the benefit of his health. It is a subject that well comports with his warm, benevolent disposition, and he has thrown his whole domestic keelings on the conyas.

It represents a Field Hospital, with ladies as volunteer nurses to the sick and wounded Soldiers.

A lady of education and refinement and a wounded here one the principal figures in the centre. She has just penned a letter for him to his loved ones at lonne, which lies open on his couch, and is now offering him the consolutions of religion.

On the right is the figure of a young girl, a farmer's daughter, just bringing in a basket of bread, while out the extreme left is the Matron attending a wounded Cavairyman, and is in the act of handing him a bowl of hot coffee.

The three females represent the three ages of woman—the young girl, the mature woman and the matron.

In the back-ground are seen members of the Chris-AT VERY LOW PRICES.
