WRIT BY ME. Let me kiss her for her father-The bewitching Polly Aun-Let me kies her for her brother.

Or for any other man. Let me kiss her for somebody, Any body in the world, With her hair so sweetly auburn,

And so gloriously curled. Let me kiss her for her "feller," And I do not care a red. If he taps me on the smeller, With his "billy" made of lead.

How that "feller's" lips would kiss her Till his jacket-strings would break, But perhaps he wouldn't thank me, If I kiss her for his sake!

Let me kiss her for her daddy-The pretty, ponting elf-Or, if that don't suit the family,

Let me kiss her for Myself! Which is the best "poem" I ever writ, -owing to the subject .- Logan Gazette.

"Don't CRY, Sonny."-In the absence of locals of interest, relating to our own neighborhood, we are occasionally forced to go beyond the limits even of the Commonwealth, to find that which will amuse or instruct our own readers. Here is an item fresher and better than any of the "old jokes" which Artemus Ward disposed of with so much profit to himself a few evenings since. The Cleveland Herald is responsible for the story :

A few days since the wife of a worthy mechanic in one of our machine shops, was taken very sick, the immediate occasion of the sickness being a design to change the figures of the census. The lady in question is of large stature, whilst her "liege lord" is one of those specimens of humanity that are sometimes done up in small bandles.

Matters were approaching a crisis in the sick chamber, and the pater families that was to be, was scated by the stove, overcome with woe in dread of an unfavorable termination. His face was buried in his hands, and he was sobbing sloud. The doctor, touched with this exhibition of affectionate sorrow, stepped up to the mourner, and patting him on the head, said:—"There, there; don't cry, sonny, your mother will be The chair was kicked over in an instant, and the "boy" started up with clenched fists and wrathful eyes, "Sonny, you impertinent jackass! I'm her husband!"

The astonished "medicine man" rushed around to the other side of the bed, and hadn't a word to say. He had said too much as it was. WHAT DID MARY SAY !--- A correspondent tells a capital anecdote in illustration of the queer occurrences that are sometimes met with in the courts : During the trial of Cogzell, for kidnapping, which took place lately at Hillsborough, an incident occurred which created considerable fur at the expense of bigwigs and counsel. A Miss Slean was testifying, and was requested to state all she knew about a certain transaction. Witness-"I was in the sitting room when

Mary came from the kitchen hurriedly, and Cogsell after her. He caught hold of her at the sitting-room door and said, 'Mary, you have been here long enough, come and go home now.'" Attorney for defendant-" What did Mary

Attorney for the State-" Stop there; Lobjec to the question."

Here a discussion of nearly two hours tool place, in which four or five lawyers participated; after which the judge held a long, serious and excited discussion on the subject, and finally, in a very formal and pompous manner, stated that it was the opinion of a majority of the court that the question should be answered. The courtroom was crowded almost to suffication, and the most intense interest-was manifested at this stage of the proceedings. The question was repeated, "What did Mary say?" and the witness an-Swered:

"She didn't say a word !"

ONE HOT SUMMER DAY, Duke Charles ner came a great multitude of flies all uninvited; but that mattered nothing. They buzzed about ene over another, and alighted here and there making quite as free as if they had been a portion of his princely train. Duke Charles was angry at this, and he then called the hostess :

"Here, old beldame, let the flies have a separate table !"

The hostess, a very quiet woman, did as she was ordered; set out another table, and then seming up to the Duke, said, with a low curtsey : "The table is served. Will your highness now order the flies to be seated ?"

Some WAGGISH SOLDIER, lately of the federal "army of occupation" at Bolivar, Tennessee, has perpetrated a rather clever parody on the popular "secesh" song "My Maryland." The first stanza goes as follows: The Provest Guard is on the street.

Bolivar, My Bolivar I hear the tramp of their vaniel feet, Bollyar, My Bolivar!

With proud contempt thy sone they treat, Jud andle on every gal they meet, The subjugation is complete. Bolivar, My Bolivar!

It is said that the original of "My Maryland" is a German song, beginning with the sentiment --- Don't hug me now-some other time."

THE MAN who makes a joke without inading it frequently amuses us more than the most ingenious of professional jokers,-as when the milkman in a play is charged with putting calves' brains in his milk, he answered: "Brains I never had such a thing in my head !" It was the same sort of a case when a juryman having asked the judge to excuse him from serving on account of deafness, the latter said : "Could'nt you hear my charge to the grand jury?" -I heard it," said the man, "but I couldn't make any sense of it."

WE REAR a good anecdote concerning a soldier laddie on one of our gunboats. The vessel was just going into action, and our soldier Three Excellent Little Publications was upon his knees, when an officer sneeringly asked him if he was afraid? "No, I was praying," was the response. "Well, what were you praying for?" continued the officer. "Praying directions for the hand soft or the hand sows on the wall that the enemy's bullets may be distributed the same way as the prize money is, principally among the officers!" was the quick and ready retort.

BAD SPELLING is sometimes the best, as in the case of the beer vender, who wrote over is the case of the beer vender, who wrote over his shop door, "Bear sold here," manifestly implying that it was his own bruin. Not less ingenious was the device of the quack doctor, who announced in his printed handbills that he could survey the could survey th instantly cure the most obstinate "sguews," thus satisfactorily proving that he was no conjurer, and did not attempt to cure them by a spell. A DOWN EAST EDITOR SAYS he has seen the contrivance lawyers use when they "warm up with the subject." He says it is a glass consern and holds about a pint.

Dar. There is no class of diseases that produce such exhausting effects upon the human constitution as Disbectos and Disseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Passages, and through false modesty they are neglected until they are occurred to the medicine, and we present the CONSTITUTION WATER
