WAR NEWS!

LATER FROM CHARLESTON Fort Wagner in a State of Slege.

FORT SUMTER DOOMED. A Complete Victory Anticipated.

The U. S. steam transport Arago, Henry A. cladeden commanding, from Port Royal, S. C., this men Monday, August 10th, and Charleston Ear at 8 P. M., same evening, arrived at New-lock at 10 30 A. M. Thursday, August 13th. The Arago brings the usual mails and a large number of passengers, including the 176th kegiment Pennsylvania Volunteers, 600 strong, Cal. Lechler, whose term of service is expired.

By this arrival, we have the following dispatch, containing important news relative to the proress of the siege of Charleston:

CHARLESTON BAR, Monday, Aug. 10, 1863, 5 o'clock P. M. General Gillmore has notified Admiral Dahlgren that he will be in readiness to open the grand assault on Thursday, the 13th inst. The navy is all ready, waiting for the army, so that the fight, it is believed, will commence on that day. The greatest confidence is felt as to

FROM MEADE'S ARMY.

Washington, August 13, 1863. Affairs remain quiet in the army, the enemy trincing no desire to engage the attention of our pickets or to make any hostile demonstraour piecets or to make any most destroated them whatever. The greater portion of Lee's force is south of and in the immediate vicinity of the Rapidan, though a large force is kept between this river and the Rappahannock, precenting our scouting parties from penetrating to any distance within their lines. It is antional that Lee will attempt to respect the came paied that Lee will attempt to re-enact the campaign of last summer, by throwing a corps via the Mountain Gap to Gainesville or Manasses. and attack our rear, while the remainder of his forces operates in front. The gaps are all in their possession, and it would not be a difficult nuter for a large body of the rebel army to cross the Blue Ridge at Manassas Gap and possi-bly reach Thoroughfare Gap, before our com aunding officers could receive intimation of

There is a considerable force of Rebel cavalry in the Shenandoah valley and parties are constantly scouring the country towards Bull Run Mountains. Stewart is at Culpepper Court

No fears are entertained, however, concerning the result of any attempt to flank us. General Meade has disposed his forces in such a manner as to afford protection to our rear as well as the front, and a repetition of Jackson's manœuvering would doubtless result even more disas-tropaly to Lee than did his invading strategy.

number of soldiers gathered on the shore, we not being allowed to leave the boat, who received us with the following salutations: "What troops?" Ninth Army Corps. "What do you want down here?" "We do not want men here who won't fight." Where are your Pontoon Bridges?"
"Where is your 'Little Mac?" "All you are if for is to run and sell wooden nutmegs." I think if we were allowed to leave the boat they think if we were allowed to leave the boat they would have found out a little more than they wished of our fighting abilities. But at this state of the proceedings one of their men, the only sensible one among them, appeared on our boat and told us that the men who were casting these insulting slurs at us had run at Fort Donelson, where Gen. Prentiss and the greater part of them were taken prisoners, and that since then their ranks had been filled with Conscripts and $20 men. Now it was our time to commence, and we did so in right good earnest, knocking their arguments clear into the back ground. Gen. Prentiss, who had been standing by and heard all that was said, he edming in for a good share of the ridicule, thought, I suppose, by and heard all that was said, he coming in for a good share of the ridicule, thought, I suppose, that it had better stop here. He stepped to the front and said, "he wished this stopt or he would send the boat on the other side of the river." The only reply he received for his pains were three groans. Gen. Ferrero told him the boat would not go across the river, that his men did not commence it. In a day or two after this did not commence it. In a day or two after this we arrived at Sherman's Landing, Louisiana. Here we unloaded, after which we marched about three miles to another landing, where we were to cross and join Grant's forces in rear of Vicks-burg. After several Regiments had gone over, the order was countermanded, and we had to again march back to Sherman's Landing, where we once more loaded on steamers and were taken we once more loaded on steamers and were taken about ten miles up the Yazoo River to Snyder's Bluff. Here the Infantry were immediately put to work in building fortifications and rife pits. Our duty was to keep Johnston back while Grant was operating against Vicksburg.

the 27th of June, when we were ordered to move the 27th of June, when we were ordered to move further to the front. We marched about eight miles in the direction of the "Big Black," and encamped at a place called Oak Ridge. Here we remained until the 4th of July, when we were ordered forward again to try, if possible, to overtake Johnston; but as he is rather a fleet-footed gentleman, this was not accomplished un-til he arrived at Jackson, where he halted on to have some hot work to perform. The Infan-try were ordered to unsling knapsacks and moved ferward at a double quick until within four miles of Jackson, when the column was halted. The 45th Penna. Regiment were thrown out as skirmishers, while the rest of our Infantry were formed in line of Battle, the Artillery put into position, ready to open on the "Johnnies," should they make their appearance. But it seemed they were not very anxious for a fight and retreated into their ritle pits and fortifications around the town without firing a shot. At about one mile's distance from the town, is located the State Insano Asylum, in passing which our skirmishers noticed the Rebel colors flying from the flag-staff on its dome. This of course ted the State Insane Asylum, in passing which our skirmishers noticed the Rebel colors flying from the flag-staff on its dome. This of course soon came down, and the colors of the 45th were substituted in its stead. This is called the first day's fight, nothing more being done but moving our Infantry to the front, while the Artillery remained enoamped for the inght in the Asylum mained enoamped for the inght in the Asylum has the commend to their head-quarters at Lancaster city, after routing the enemy at every point. day's fight, nothing more being done but moving our Infantry to the front, while the Artillery re-mained encamped for the night in the Asylum

Saturday, July 11th.—This morning the Infantry firing for about half an hour was pretty severe, and bid fair to terminate in a general engagement before night, but this did not take place, the "rebs" preferring to remain behind their entrenchments, and for the rest of the day, although the two armies lay within a hundred yards of each other, but few shots were fired, except an eccessional constructions of the day are the state of the day are the state of the day. except an occasional one from our sharpshooters who had posted themselves upon trees to pick off some of the most daring of the "Johnnies," who it seems appeared anxious to see how matters progressed on our side. Whenever a head appeared above the entrenchments, there were at least a dozen shots fired groundly bringing at least a dozen shots fired, generally bringing the fellow down. While the infentry firing was going on this morning, the Artillery were asgoing on this morning, the Artillery were assigned their positions, our Battery being placed in a peach orchard near the Asylum. Here we remained all day without firing a gun, our position not being very commanding. In the evening we had a "right smart" shower.

But when daylight made its appearance, this was found to be a mistake, and we were ordered to again unhitch. This evening we had a "General Order" read to us, confirming the defeat and utter root of Gen. Lee's army at Gettysburg, by our forces under Gen. Meade. This was very encouraging news, and was received with load applause.

Tuesday, July 14th.—Very little firing during the day. The "rebe" still kept throwing a noc oasional shell into our Battery. This evening, one of our guns, (No. 3, Serg'. Sailor.) was ordered to the front and put into position. The orders are to fire day and night at the rate of one shot every five minutes. The troops in the field are suffering very much for the want of water. The nearest they have is two miles distant, and even after going this distance for it, it is nothing but good stagnant water.

Wednesday, July 15th.—At 3 P. M. to-day, the Infantry had another pretty heavy engagement, of about fifteen minutes' duration. Our "boys" attempted to take the first line of rifle-pits, and after several unsuccessful attempts were compelled to retire. They have, for two miles in front of their line of battle, cotton bales placed, which when they remain idle answer very well for breastworks; and whenever the command to advance is given, the cotton bales are rolled forward, protecting our "boys" from the singing "Minnies" and the deadly and destructive "grape and canister." This evening, No. 1 gun, Sergt. Bonse, to which I am attached, was ordered to relieve our other piece, which had been firing all relieve our other piece, which had been firing all

When the news reached here that the 42d was in Reading, the friends of those from this place were under the impression that the Regiment had returned to be mustered out; but it appears from late reports, that they will be held some days longer. The boys of the 42d have seen hard service during their march from Reading to Hagerstown, and back again.

Is it can be an excitement took place a few days lene is composed of this sort of material. Is it any wonder that the Western Army is victorious with such poor fighting material to oppose them? The fight at Jackson—a description of which you will find below—is considered by them the hardest engagement they have ever been in, Vickshurz excepted. In my estimation, although it lasted six days, it was merely a skirmish. I have been in skirmishes in Virginis which lasted but a few hours, where heavier firing and harder fighting was done, than in all these six days combined. But to give you and your readers a better idea of the fight, I will now proceed to give the promised description.

Circular | Provost Marshal General's Office, | No. 47. | Washington, D. C., July 17, 'es. | I. Drafted men become soldiers in the service of the United States by the Cat of their names having been drawn in the draft. The notification served upon them by the Provost Marshal, is merely an aunouncement of the fact, and an order for name to report for duty, at a designated time and place. and an order for hem to report for duty, at a designated time and place.

II. The following opinion of the Hon. William Whiting, Solicitor of the War Department, is problished for the laformation of all concerned: Whan a person has been drafted, in pursuance of the enrollment act of March 3, 1863, notice of such draft must be served within ten days thereafter, by a written or printed notice, to be served on him personally or by lewing a copy at his tast place of residence, requiring him to appear at a designated rendezvous to report for duty. Any person falling to report for duty after notice left at his last place of residence, or served one him personally, without furnishing a substitute or paying $300, is pronounced by law to be a deserter; he may be arrested and held for trial by court martial and sentenced to death.

If a person, after being drafted, and before receiving notice, deserts, the notice may still be served by leaving it at his last place of residence, and if he does not appear in accordance with the notice, or furnish the substitute or pay the $300, he will be in law a deserter and must be treated the $300, he will be in law a coserter and must be treated accordingly. There is no way or manuer in which 2 person, once enrolled, can escape his public duties, and when drafted, whether present or absent, whether he changes his residence or absconds, the rights of the United States against him are secured and it is only by performance of his duty to the country, that he will escape liability to be treated as a criminal.
