A ROMANTIC STORY.

Bayard Taylor's Strange Friend a Verily - Locality of the Incident.

Bayard Taylor in the January number of the Atlantic Monthly tells a story entitled, "The Strange Friend," from which it appears that in the year, 1864 an Irish family, giving the name of Donnelly, settled in the neighborhood of London Grove, in Chester county, Pennsylvania.

The family consisted of the father, mother, two sons and two daughters. All the family except one daughter used the language and wore the garb of Society of Friends. They regularly attended London Grove meeting, and the head of the family, Henry Donnelly, took his seat among the preachers and elders, and frequently preached. They remained in the neighborhood several years. In the course of time the eldest son, DeCourcy, lost his heart to a pretty Presbyterian girl of an adjoining neighborhood, and against his father's wishes, but not his commands, became engaged to her. The natural sequence of this state of affairs was prevented by the young man unfortunately breaking his neck. Alice, the daughter who had conformed in dress and manners of the Society of Friends, appears also to have given her heart into the keeping of a Quaker lad intimate with the family.

One summer day, shortly after the death of DeCourcy, while the Donnelly family were at meeting, a stranger rode up to the meeting house and waited for the meeting to break. As soon as Henry Donnelly came out of the house the stranger darted forward, and seizing him by the hand and falling on one knee, cried "O, my lord my lord! Glory be to God and I've found ye at last." Donnelly was so surprised that he shook the pious Friends by exclaiming, "The Devil Jack O'Neil, can that be you?"

It returned out that the soft-spoken Henry Donnelly, the Quaker preacher, was Lord Danleigh, an Irish lord, who had been compelled to abandon his estate by the embarrassments brought about by his early extravagance, and that Jack O'Neil was his steward, who managed the estate during the self-imposed exile of Lord Danleigh, and by careful management cleared it of its encumbrances, and so interested a relative of the Danleighs in the family that he had, at his death, left them a fortune which enabled them to resume their former life. The family immediately left London Grove and returned to their home, leaving behind them the broken-hearted Joel Bradbury, who still mourns the loss of his Alice, and carrying with them their almost equally broken hearted daughter.

The story is a strange and romantic one, and though somewhat embellished by the pen of the gifted author, who, for the first time tells it to the world, it is, we learn, in the main, true. There are some old Friends still living who remember the nine days wonder it caused in the quiet neighborhood, and around some old Chester county friends the story is still told by old Friends as it was told to them by the ones now dead and gone, who had a vivid recollection of all the events, even of the profane exclamation made by Henry Donnelly when he recognized Jack O'Neil, and which so shocked the good Friends who had sat and listened to his ministry, nothing doubting that the words which fell so slowly and deliberately from his lips were put into his heart by that inspiration, a belief in which is one of the peculiar tenets of their sect.

A TEACHER said to a little girl at school: "If a naughty girl should hurt you, like a good girl, you would forgive her, wouldn't you?"

"Yes, ma'am," she replied, "if I couldn't catch her!"

THE PASSIONATE FATHER.

BY FANNY FERN.

"Greater is he who ruleth his spirit, than he who taketh a city."

"Come here," said a strong, athletic man, as he seized a delicate-looking lad by the shoulder.

"You've been in the water again, sir! Haven't I forbid it?"

"Yes, father, but--"

"No buts: haven't I forbid it--hey?"

"Yes, sir, I was--"

"No reply, sir!" and the blows fell like a hailstorm about the child's head and shoulders.

Not a tear started from Harry's eyes, but his face was deadly pale, and his lips firmly compressed, as he rose and looked at his father with an unflinching eye.

"Go to your room, sir, and stay there till you are sent for! I'll master that spirit of yours, before you are many days older."

Ten minutes after, Harry's door opened, and his mother gilded gently in. She was a fragile, gentle woman, with mournful blue eyes, and temples slightly transparent. Laying her hand soothingly upon Harry's head, she stooped and kissed his forehead.

The rock was touched and the waters gushed forth. "Dear mother," said the weeping boy.

"Why didn't you tell your father that you plunged into the water to save the life of your playmate?"

"Did he give me a chance?" said Harry, springing to his feet with a flashing eye. "Didn't he twice bid me to be silent, when I tried to explain? Mother, he's a tyrant to you and me!"

"Harry, he's my husband and your father."

"Yes, and I am sorry for it. What have I ever had but blows and harsh words? Look at your pale cheeks and sunken eyes, mother!"

"It's too bad, I say; he's a tyrant, mother," said the boy, with clenched fist and set teeth, "and if it were not for you, I would have been leagues off long ago."

"And there's Nellie, too, poor sick child? What good will all her medicine do her? She trembles like a leaf when she hears his footstep. I say it's brutal, mother!"

"Harry," (and a soft hand was laid on the impetuous boy's lips) "for my sake--"

"Well, 'tis only for your sake--yours and poor Nellie's, or I should be on the sea somewhere--anywhere but here."

Late that night Mary Leostole to her boy's bedside, before retiring to rest.

"God be thanked he sleeps," she murmured, as she shaded the lamp from his face. Then kneeling at the bedside she prayed for wisdom and patience to bear uncomplainingly the heavy cross under which her steps were faltering; and she prayed for him.

"No, no, no," said Harry, springing from his pillow and throwing his arms about her neck, "I can forgive him what he has done to me, but I never will while he has made you suffer, don't pray for him; at last don't let me hear it."

Mary Leo was too wise to expostulate. She knew her boy was spirit-sore under the sense of recent injustice; so she lay down beside him, and resting her tearful cheek against his, repeated in a low, sweet voice, the story of the crucifixion. "Father, forgive them, they know not what they do!" fell upon his troubled ear. He yielded to the holy spell.

"I will!" he sobbed. "Mother, you are an angel, and if I ever get to heaven, it will be your hand that has led me there!"

There was a hurrying to and fro in Robert Leo's house that night. It was a heavy hand that dealt those heavy blows on that young head.

The passionate father's repentance came with a word that his boy must die.

"Do kind to her," said Harry as his head dropped upon his mother's shoulder.

It was a dearly bought lesson! Beside that lifeless corpse Robert Leo renewed his marriage vow; and now when the hot blood of anger rises to his temples and the hasty word springs to his lip, the pale face of the dead rises between him and the offender, and an angel voice whispers--"Peace! be still!"

An Italian barber has recently been arrested in Germany, who lived for five years in New York, where he was believed to be an Italian Duke, and gained access to the houses of many of the first families. His good looks assisted him in gaining the affections of some foolish young girls, one of whom, the daughter of a wealthy banker, he ruined. Several hundred letters, mostly from young ladies, were found in his trunk, besides eighty photographs, miniatures, &c. He is a native of Cremona, and was in the penitentiary before going to New York.

An exchange tells this story: "A gentleman travelling through one of the rural precincts of this county, a few days since, rode up to a farm house, and thus accosted a low-headed urchin who was seated on the top of a gate post: "Boy, where's your Pa?" The youngster replied: "Pap is just down there beyond the cow-barn to dig a grave to bury our old dog Towser. The darned old fool killed himself a barkin' at candidates for distict attorney. Be you one?" One friend rode on.

HOOFLAND'S COLUMN.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS, AND Hoofland's German Tonic.

The Great Remedies for all Diseases of the Liver, Stomach, or Digestive Organs.

Hoofland's German Bitters

Is composed of the purest juices (or as they are medicinally termed Extracts) of Roots, Herbs, and Bark, making a preparation of the highest concentration and purity, and free from alcoholic admixture of any kind.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC

Is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters, with the purest quality of Santa Cruz Red Orange, &c., making one of the most pleasant and agreeable remedies ever offered to the public.

Those preferring Medicines free from alcoholic admixtures will use

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS.

Those who have no objection to the combination of the Bitters, as stated, will use

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC.

They are both equally good, and contain the same ingredients, the only difference being a more matter of taste, the Tonic being the most palatable.

The stomach, from a variety of causes, such as Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Nervous Debility, &c., is very apt to have its functions deranged. The Liver, sympathizing as closely as it does with the Stomach, becomes affected, the result of which is that the patient suffers from several of more of the following diseases:

Consumption, Flatulency, Inward Piles, Fullness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disregard for food, Fullness or Weakness of the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Blistering of the Head, Stiffness or Difficulty of Breathing, Fluctuating Chills, or Suffering from Sensations when in a Lying Posture, Dimness of Vision, Dizziness or Vertigo, Headache, Dull Pain in the Head, Pain in the Chest, Irritability, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Lungs, &c. Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constantly Sick, and Great Depression of Spirits.

The sufferer from these diseases should exercise the greatest caution in the selection of a remedy for his case. One that will not only cure, but restore his investigations and inquiries, possess true merit, is skillfully compounded, is safe, and has a reputation for the cure of disease. In this connection we would submit those well-known remedies--

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS AND HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC

PREPARED BY DR. C. M. JACKSON, Philadelphia, Pa. Thirty-five years since they were first introduced into this country from Germany, during which time they have established a reputation for their efficacy, and benefited suffering humanity to a greater extent than any other remedies known to the public.

These remedies will especially cure Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Chronic or Nervous Debility, Chronic Diarrhoea, Disease of the Kidneys, and all Diseases arising from a Disordered Liver, Stomach or Intestines.

DEBILITY.

Resulting from any Cause whatever: Prostration of the System, induced by severe labor, or from any other cause, will find relief in the use of these BITTERS, or the TONIC, an elixir that will instil new life into their veins, restore a measure the energy and vigor of more youthful days, build up their shrunken forms, and give health and happiness to their remaining years.

PERSONS ADVANCED IN LIFE, And feeling the hand of this weighing heavily upon them, with all its attendant ills, will find relief in the use of these BITTERS, or the TONIC, an elixir that will instil new life into their veins, restore a measure the energy and vigor of more youthful days, build up their shrunken forms, and give health and happiness to their remaining years.

NOTICE.

It is a well established fact that fully one-half of the female portion of our population are seldom in the enjoyment of good health, or in the possession of their own exertions, "never feel well." They are languid, devoid of all energy, extremely nervous, and have no appetite.

But a few drops of the BITTERS, or the TONIC, is especially recommended.

WEAK AND DELICATE CHILDREN Are made strong by the use of either of these remedies. They will cure every case of MARABUS, without fail.

Thousands of certificates have accumulated in the hands of the proprietor, but space will allow of the publication of but few. None it will be served, are men of note, and of such standing that they must be believed.

TESTIMONIALS.

Hon. George W. Woodward, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, writes: PHILADELPHIA, March 10, 1867.

"I find Hoofland's German Bitters a good tonic, useful in diseases of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in cases of Debility, and want of nervous action in the system."

Yours, truly, GEO. W. WOODWARD.

Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. PHILADELPHIA, April 23, 1868.

"I consider Hoofland's German Bitters a valuable medicine in cases of indigestion or dyspepsia. I can certify this from my experience of it."
