SLIGHT FIRE.—Yesterday afternoon be-tween three and four o'clock, the roof of Shaaber & Johnson's Machine Shop, at the corner of Eighth and Chestnut streets, took fire from aparks flying out of the cupola, while casting in the Foundry. The alarm was given, and the firemen all over the city responded by turning out with their usual alacrity. However, before they reached the spot with their apparatus, the foundrymen had put out the fire by pouring water on it with buckets.

The allegation of the defence was that at the time of the execution of the instrument purporting to be a will, Tobias Clouser was not possessed of the sound and disposing mind. memory and understanding necessary under the law of Pennsylvania for the execution of a valid will.

It appeared from the evidence, that about a year preceding his decease, he had been suffering with disease of the lungs, but its inroads did not prevent him from microading to business until a short time before its fatal termination. Mr. Hawley went up to see him on business, upon Monday, the 27th of January, at which time it was arranged that Mr. Hawley should come up again on the Thursday evening following and write his will. He accordingly went to his house at the time appointed and the evening was devoted to the writing the will. Mr. Hawley in his testimony gave a minute detail of the occurrences that transpired upon that occasion. He stated that Mr. Clouser spoke clearly upon all matters of business and of iracine in the contents of the will, giving his reasons for the manner of disposing his property.
