SONG OF THE TAXES.

Rock a by baby, your father's a slave To the despotic foot and the Radical knave. And even the old-time robber, the poor dear, May be held to pay taxes in less than a year. He works for you harder each day than before, But each night brings him home to a tresserous store.

For, of all that he earns, there's but little he leaves After feeding the pig sties and Radical thieves.

He's been on the hat that he wears on his head, The pocket on his vest, and the shirt on his back; Every rag that he wears; every morsel he eats; His coat and his shoes; his bread, and his meat; The potatoes he cooks in the cup that he fills; Every implement used on the land that he tills; Every log that he works with; the lamp that he burns.

The things that he works on, the wages he earns On the stove in the kitchen, the coal, too—still heighs!

And even the match that he lights to the fire On his pipe of tobacco; his whisky and beer; On the machinery he buys for you, poor little dear.

To the taxes he pays you now let me send— No, not even death, crushed humanity's friend. They tax you his coffin, his shroud, and his grave; And his baby must starve, and his widow must slave.

To hide in the earth he has hopelessly silted, The cheat-broker, husband whom Taxes have killed.

Rock a by baby, sleep on whilst you can, Thank God for the years you grow up a man; For, though your poor father, to-day is a slave To the despotic foot and the Radical knave.

He'll vote for you, baby, that you may be spared The curse and the ruin your parents have shared. And pray that some day you may be saved from his name.

And the North-west of Freedom be more than a name.

Rock a by baby, sleep sound while you may, And your father will work, and your mother will pray; That the Radical sharps, with their Taxes and lies, May be swept as a cloud from America's skies. And a new boy of promise be set in the air, With the conquering banner of Saviour and Star.

Discovery of Relics at Germantown. Some workmen, while digging a few days since in the "lower burying ground," at the corner of Main street and Fifth's lane, Germantown, discovered a military button and a decayed leather pocketbook containing two old copper coins. There were also found, rolled up in a sheet, what was apparently a handkerchief, a mass of copper, which, when separated by the use of acids and a battery, was found to consist of thirty British pennies, in an imperfect state of preservation, bearing dates of 1780, 1781, &c. As these coins were lying within a few feet of the graves of Generals Agnew and Bird, they were no doubt the property of a British soldier, who fell during the battle of Germantown, and were interred with his body. On the morning of the battle of Germantown, as General Agnew was advancing up Main street at the head of his troops, and when nearly opposite the Menonite meeting-house, a lad named Hans Royer, from behind a stone wall, took deliberate aim with an old musket at the silver star upon General Agnew's breast, and fired. The general, mortally wounded, fell instantly from his spirited horse, and was carried to the mansion of John Wistar, Esq., in the front parlor of which he expired. The moment the shot was heard, a platoon of riflemen advanced to the wall and discharged their pieces at the retreating boy, but he escaped unharmed. Hans died in poor circumstances about forty years ago, and the old stone wall, which so effectively concealed him was not long since demolished.

READING EAGLE

"FOR THE GOOD THAT WANTS ASSISTANCE, FOR THE WRONG THAT NEEDS RESISTANCE."

VOL. I—No. 191. READING, PA., MONDAY AFTERNOON, SEPTEMBER 7, 1868.

REMARKABLE CURE.—A Milwaukee paper states that some eight months ago Mr. T. B. Mason, of that city, ascertained that he had a cancer on his face, the size of a pin-head. It was cut out and the wound partially healed. Subsequently it grew again, and while he was at Cincinnati on business it attained the size of a hickory nut. He remained there since Christmas under treatment and is now perfectly cured. The process is this: A piece of sticking plaster was put over the cancer, with a circular piece cut out of the centre a little larger than the cancer, so that the cancer had a small circular rim of the healthy skin next to it exposed. Then a plaster made of chloride of zinc, blood root and wheat flour was spread on a piece of muslin the size of this circular opening, and applied to the cancer for twenty-four hours. On removing it, the cancer will be found burned into and appear the color and hardness of an old shoe sole, and the circular rim outside of it will appear white and parboiled, as if scalded by hot steam. The wound is now dressed, and the outside rim soon separates, and the cancer comes out in a hard lump, and the place heals up. The plaster kills the cancer so that it sloughs out like dead flesh and never grows in again. The remedy was discovered by Dr. Fell of London, and has been used by him for six or eight years, with an unfailing success, and not a case has been known of the reappearance of the cancer when the remedy has been applied.
