THE MAN ABOUT TOWN.

Brick Pomroy is coming. See important matter in local columns. Some heavy bets in this city on the election. $1000 reward. (See advertisement.) Birds of paradise will ornament the new-fashioned winter bonnets—so they tell us. The figure that sets most all eyes—$20,000. Weather prophets already predict a steady cold winter.

Lay figure—a hen on her nest. Fall trade is brisk with the burglars—if with no other profession. Summer may have its pleasures, but think of winter—skating!

All of our successful business men advertise. Steel tires are now put on the wheels of passenger locomotives.

All the Sunday papers can be had of Strickland & Bros. See advertisement.

Knecks' concert will be given in the United City, from 8 o'clock in the evening to 2 in the morning, beginning September 22d.

It is said that the shopkeeper at Westgate this winter will be to give the groom presents as well as the bride.

On Saturday night, a Red, near the Keystone House, true to his principles, and true to his taste for "whiskey," ran up against a "colored man" and hugged and kissed him, to the disgust of the bystanders.

Judging from the display of goods on Penn street, we should think that our merchants intend doing a lively business this fall.

Last evening we observed three young ladies run across the railroad track, at Seventh and Penn streets, just about ten feet in front of an engine, coming at full speed. A slip, and we'd had a foal.

Are you assessed? If not go and have it done at once.

A friend in Hamburg sent to this office a lot of fine apples, for which he has the thanks of all hands connected with the Eagle establishment.

Tickets for the Electric Fire Company's picnic at Laurer's Park, on Sept. 10th, are rapidly selling off. This being the last picnic of the season, no doubt many will be present.

A man was run over by a horse, at Sixth and Penn streets, yesterday afternoon, about half past five o'clock. We did not learn the extent of the injuries he received.

On Sunday night, as an officer passed the store of Dietrich & Co., in Penn street, below Fourth, he discovered that one of the shutters was open. It was either left open through an oversight, or burglars had been operating.

There is a beautiful duck pond in South Sixth street, near Laurel, upon which we observed a flock of geese enjoying themselves on Sunday afternoon. It may be all nice enough for the ducks and geese, but anything but pleasant or healthful to the people in the neighborhood, to have such a large pond of stagnant water emitting its fever-breeding miasma, during the hot summer months.

The engine "General Grant" ran off the track at the Walnut street bridge, yesterday morning.

A watermelon picnic will take place at the public house of Jonathan Seidie, Greenock township, on Saturday, September 10th. An old-fashioned frolic will be had in the evening.

Peter F. Seidel, proprietor of the Washington House, in Hamburg, has purchased a handsome omnibus, to be used for the accommodation of his guests.

The sun showed himself resplendent this morning. Flowers, grass, trees, waters—all are ravishingly pretty. Nature reserves her most beautiful robe for the last, she bids a welcome to the chill and ruthless winds of autumn with a smile. The fields were never more attractive—the air more buoyant.

The foundation of the extensive Nut Factory, of J. H. Sternberger, in North Third street, is completed, and the work toward the roof is fast being pushed forward. The building will be 123 feet fronting Third street.

We counted no less than eight women, twenty boys and four little girls, blocking coal from the railroad at and near the new depot. Alas! the poor.

Outfitted has been superseded in making "heller wind" for the Alliance church organ (there will be no more "puffs" and "messerkings" where he sits down on Sunday, hereafter).

There are some heroic natures that can endure without complaint or outcry the heaviest inflictions of disaster. There are others so weak that the mere suggestion of pain or trouble makes them cry more piteously than sixteen squalling babies with the "croup" head.

In passing a lady in the street it is unnecessary to raise the hat as high as the surrounding buildings. A lady does not always reward herself with a compliment in proportion to the absurdities which a gentleman may commit.

The music pots in the street are being repaired with the greatest care. Several cases have been reported within the past few days.
