Address of the Democratic National Committee to the Conservative Citizens of the United States.

New York, October 27, 1868. Fellow Citizens:—It is a privilege and duty to address you on the eve of the great battle which we are to fight, and which is to decide whether the government of this Republic is to remain four years more in the hands of the Radical party, or whether by an energetic, united, and just effort you will wrest the power from its grasp, and give to us, under a Democratic Conservative administration, a government based upon principles of justice, economy, and constitutionality and liberty. ... INTERESTING FROM ALASKA

How they live—what they do. A letter dated St. Paul's Harbor, Kodiak's Island, from an officer of the U.S. Revenue steamer Wayanda, says: We examined, on our way to this place, all the harbors of note on the coast; have found several places where coal could be mined at a profit on a small capital. In fact this country is full of coal, but a great deal of it is of inferior quality—the only good feature that I have seen so far in Alaska. Upon the whole, I think the Government has an elephant in this seven million purchase. ... (Interesting from Alaska text)
