

FRMALE SUFFRACE.

The movement in favor of woman suffrage is attracting considerable attention, and many and diverse are the opinions of the press in gegard to the matter. Some of the leading journals, of both political parties, have expressed themselves in favor of the enfranchisement of women, while others either ridicule the iden or bitterly denounce it. Many persons consider that in exercising the right of suffrage women will unsex themsolves, and become tainted with the rudeness of masculine manners, thereby losing their greatest charm of character, that of clinging, caressing dependency upon the stronger nature of the sterner sex.

At the woman suffrage convention in Boston, on Wednesday, Julia Ward Howe spoke at length on the subject, stating among other things the fact that "for a long time she had said and written much against woman suffrage, but when the ballot had been given to the negro she thought it was time that women should enjoy that franchise also."

"There is a point in this truthful remark which is worthy of consideration. It is evidently the intention of the Radicals to force negro suffrage upon all the States by Congressional enactment, and unless the people generally show more determination and less credulity than they have done during the past two or three years, it is possible that the project will be successfully carried out. The Domocratic party, unassisted, is hardly strong enough to overcome Radical frauds backed by Congressional power and the money of the bankers and bondholders, and unless the white women of America come to the rescue, the time may soon come when logalized miscegonation, with all its accompaniments of moral and physical degradation; will reduce our country to the level of miserable Mexico.

The American women may be misled for a time by mistaken enthusiasm, but they are __better judges of right and wrong than men generally suppose; and the time may be near at hand when the fact will be made evident that they are more "competent to hold the balanco of power than those who now possess

THE ALLIES AND PARAGUAY. Fighting still continues between Lopez and the allies. The abandonment of Humaita did not disorganize the Paraguayans, or dampen their courage or ardor in behalf of their separate nationality and independence. Since that event the contest has been of a army was recently attacked by the forces of

Lopez near Angostura, and a bloody battle took place. The latter was obliged to retire, but not until inflicting severe loss on the in vaders, delaying their progress, and crippling them for future operations. The Paraguayans were outnumbered in the proportion of two to one; they were the attack ing party, and yet made a most decided init pression upon the allies, and compelled them to move slowly and with great caution. While the contest was in progress the iron clad fleet of the Brazilians bombarded An gostura, but without doing much damage Following this battle was one at or near Veleta, where Lopez had an entrenched and fortified camp. In this case the allies were the attacking party, and suffered a repulse. Their loss in killed and wounded was very heavy. After this defeat the allied army

As a member of the body, sothe greatest injury upon their opponents. This fact equalizes, to some extent at least, | a right alone, but as an obligation, in every the force of the combatants, and accounts for the wonderful defense that Lopez is making in the present war.

That defense can be properly estimated only by looking at the relative strength of the opposing armies. The allies have on land and water fifty thousand fighting men, well armed-the infantry with improved try. The present is the most favorable oprifles, the cavalry with Spencer's earbines, while the siege and field trains use rifled pieces of the newest and most approved construction. The sea is open to the allies, and they can obtain from Eurôpe and America all that is needed to prosecute the war with vigor, and inflict the greatest amount of injury upon their opponents. The allied navy consists of A fiteen iron-clads, carrying Arm stiong guns of the weight of one hundred and fifty pounders. There are also twenty wooden gunboats, screw propelled, and steam transports to the full limit of the largest demand That can be made on them for warlike purposes. To face this formidable array, Lopez has twenty thousand men of all self-constituted committees for the good is nothing when compared with that which | laboring in the interests of truth and justice the allies can bring to bear upon his army in any contest, or open upon his defenses. In most cases the guns used by the Paraguayans are smoothbores, and almost worthless when matched against the long-range rifled pieces of the Brazilians and their allies. When these facts are taken into consideration, the defense of Lopez is one of the most stubborm and heroic of modern times. The supposition that the new President of Let us appreciate our sublime calling, and the Argenting Confederation, M. Sarmiento, is in favor of a continuation of the war with Paraguay, has produced a revolt in the former country. This shows that the masses are heartily tired of a contest which has already led to such an enormous expenditure of blood and treasure on the part of the allies. In Brazil the war is also unpopular, and both men and money have to be obtained by force. There is no enthusiasm in favor of the contest or the flag. Soldiers are torn from the mass of the people, chained together like criminals, and thus marched to the seene of action and placed in the ranks. Of course an army composed of such materials cannot be depended upon, nor will those left at home have much affection for their rulers. There is no doubt as to the unpopularity of the war both in Brazil and the Argentine Confederation, and that fact inspirits the Paraguayans, and makes Lopez hold out with such unparalleled obstinacy. He may yet conquer a peace.--. Age. THE WORKING PROPLE.-The operative plasterers of New York city report that the several members of the Bricklayers' Society who were working at plastering ten hours a day instead of eight, have promised in future to comply with the eight-hour rule. The Labor Union, first division-composed of hod carriers-have resolved to maintain the present rate of wages, $275 per day, during the winter.

The Woman Question - Appeal for Equal Sullrage

A card in behalf of the woman's suffrage association of America we publish to day in the Revolution, and issue on sheets for circulation and signature, a form of petition to Congress in behalf of equal suffrage throughstill more determined character. The allied out the country for men and women. It will be remembered in August last we made a similar appeal, limited at that time to the District of Columbia. We are now assured that at the opening of Congress, next month. a vigorous movement will be made "for a constitutional amendment providing for universal manhood suffrage in all the States."-We now wish to press our demand that too manhood also be recognized in the proposed enlargement of suffrage and citizenship. Woman's capacity to participate in the affairs of government is no longer questioned among honest and intelligent men. It is a fearful satire and slander to question it in the presence of hundreds of thousands of mule voters, north, south, east and west, of many colors and races, who do not know even the alphabet of any human language under heaven. That woman is taxed equally with man on her property and earnings, and held amenable to every law; that she is punished by fines, imprisonments and death, is equally well known and admitted. And it is masters that they wished to be free. But cial and politic, woman is bound too, not as way to guard its interest and to seek its wel fare. Woman was not always admitted to full membership in the church. Now she is solemnly urged to unite with it as a duty, if not as a privilege. Certainly no less, and for even better reasons, it is her duty to be an active power in the government of her counportunity ever presented to press the obliga tion upon woman, and, upon man also, who by force, withholds from her natural and in alionable and inextinguishable rights. We therefore, present to day with confidence, as well as hope, this earnest appeal. We shall distribute the form of petition as widely as possible. Any persons wishing it, but who do not receive it immediately, are earnestly desired to copy from the Revolution, or send to our headquarters for a supply. Let no time be lost. Let every man, woman and child even, old enough to co-operate, and whose heart is in the cause, lend a helping hand in circulating these petitions. Become

The ballots of the white women of the United States may yet save us from national suicido through negro equality; for we greatly mistake their character if they will give their consent to such an outrage upon the laws of nature's God. If giving the ballot to American women will save our country from destruction at the hands of practical amalgamationists, we say let them have it, and the sooner the better. They are certainly botter qualified to exercise the right of suffrage than the ignoraut and degraded Southern negroes, who have already been enfranchised by act of Congress.

A GURAT CONTRAST .--- While a large number of 'Gopperheads have been arrested throughout the country for perpetrating frauds in connection with the late elections we have failed to note the arrest of a single Republican on a charge of fraud.-Miners' Journal.

Decidedly cool, that, even for the Miners' Journal. Perhaps the editor did "fuil to note" the arrest of some dozens of Radicals in Philadelphia alone for election frauds, and any number of the same "loil" scamps elsewhere. Perhaps he did "fail to note" the condemnation of the illegal action of the Radical Judge Reed by the Philadolphia Morning Post, a Radical paper. But why he "failed to note" these facts he can best explain, perhaps. Radical papers are notorious for "failing to note" anything which exposes the misdeeds of their own corrupt party.
