VELOCIPEDES.

Velocipodes have become very fashionable in Paris, and we hope the time will soon come when they will be brought into general use in this country. It is stated that very little practice is required to learn the use of the vehicle, and while it is of great assistance to those who travel long distances, it is also a healthy and pleasant method of taking oxercise for persons of sedentary habits, as it brings into use the muscles of the breast and arms; as well as those of the lower limbs, and bence is preferable to walking. In view of the high price of horses and the expense of keeping them, the velocipede will no doubt come into general use. We long for "the good time coming," when brain wearied husiness men, editors, and clerks, and wearylimbed reporters, messengers and foot-travelers, can mount their velocipedes and rattle off along the streets on trips of business and pleasure.

In France, the three-wheeled velocipede is generally used by ladies; thotwo-whoeled one, which requires some skill and practice in balancing, is used by men. An exchange gives the following account of the performances of the French velocipedes:

"The speed attained by the swifter kind of French velocipedes averages from twelve to thirteen miles an hour; adepts find no difficulty whatever in accomplishing fully fifty miles within five hours without once alighting from their vehicles. A couple of amateurs making a tour through a part of France challenged each other as to which could perform the greatest distance within four and twenty hours. One gave in after having accomplished eighty-seven miles; the other went on an additional six and thirty miles, making one hundred and twenty-three miles in all. On the 21st of last September a party of nine quitted Rouen early in the morning mounted upon velocipedes, and arrived in time for dinner the same evening, having performed the distance of eighty-five miles, exclusive of stoppages; at a rate of speed averaging ten and eleven miles an hour. It should be understood that, in impelling a velocipede, the limbs are not constantly in motion; as on level ground, when the impetus is at an average rate, or when the machine is descending an incline, the feet may be removed from the pedals, and the legs be placed on the bar fixed in front of the velocipede for this purpose. A slight impulsion given to the vehicle from time to time suffices to keep up the speed. The ascent of any incline greater than 1 in 25 is said to be im-When the rider, therefore, encounters a hill of more than average steep. ness, he has to dismount and lead his velocipede with his hand, which we are told he can do with almost the same case as he can carry an ordinary walking stick."

* Gen. Schofield announces that a reunion of the officers of the western armies will take place at Chicago on the 15th and 16th of the present month. The private soldiers, who carried the muskets, carbines, and ammuni tion pouches-who fought the battles and did the rough work-are not invited. Aristocracy advances with rapid strides under a military government. 'Rah for the Empire!

Gurrency has discovered that the negroes in the colony of Liberia encourage slavery among the inferior tribes they have conquered, and the fifthy philosopher luments the dreadful demoralization of the men and brethren. If he could be banished to Liberia it would be a good thing for this country and a fitting punishment for himself, though it would be rather bad for the darkeys.

Unitto with Indians-35 Regulars and 103 Savages Killed and Wounded.

Fore of Braven and Wolf Rivers, I. I., via Four Donus, Dec. 1. On November 23, before daylight, in the midst of a violent snow storm, General Custer, with eleven companies of the Seventh United States Cavalry, left this point under orders to move against hostile savages in the direction of Wachita river and mountains, and attack them wherever found.

After a severe march of five days, General Custer struck a village of hostile Indians, consisting of forty-seven lodges of Black Kettle's band of Cheyennes, two lodges of Arapahoes, and two lodges of Sioux. These were afterward reinforced by the Kiowas, who were near by.

The attack commenced on the morning of the 27th ult., and lasted until afternoon, reaulting in the destruction of the entire village, and the killing of 103 warriors. The capture of supplies is immense.

The casualties are Major George L. H. Elliott, Captain Louis M. Hamilton, and nineteen enlisted men; and the wounded are Brevet Lieut, Colonel Albert Barnitz, Captain Seventh cavalry, supposed mortally; Brevet Lieut. Colonel T. W. Custer, and Second Lieutenant J. M. Marsh, slightly, and eleven enlisted men. Colonel Benton had his horse shot under him.

Gen. Custer returns here, will refit and again take the field.

Another despatch says: "The battle commenced on the morning of Nov. 27th, and lasted until the afternoon, and resulted in the total destruction of the village. One hundred and fifty Indians were killed and fifty-three taken prisoners. 'An immense amount of stores, consisting of 1000 horses and mules, arms, ammunition, horse equipments, robes and provisions were captured and destroyed. The Indians, including the women and boys, fought desperately under the cover of the bushes and grass, and many of the wounded are reported to have escaped."

That Box-The Truth About It. Jacobin papers are making very merry over the recent story in the New York Tribune reporting the discovery of a tin box, in possession of Treasurer Spinner, which was handed him some time since by Marat Stanton, and which, upon being opened the other day, was foolishly said to contain the disguise in which Hon, Jefferson Davis was captured, in the spring of 1865.

This story will do to tell, but there are facts which indicate that it is all bosh.

The box in which those clothes were found was handed to Stanton some time ago, containing $30,000 in gold, belonging to a quartermaster, and the very next thing known about it, it is opened and found to contain some old clo's!

Wonderful transformation!

And these old clothes are said to have been worn by Hon. Jefferson Davis at the time he was captured.

Shades of the government widgy i. was there ever such impudence practised be-

.. Instead of these being the clothes of Jefferson Davis, they were the toggery' of one Stanton, who used them as a disguise at the time when Ad interim Thomas was after him. The cowardly villain dare not go into the street in shape to be recognized; houce he sought to cloak his filthy carcuss in the raiment of woman.

One night a gentleman of color attempted o commit an outrage upon the poor old woman of the war office, so Stanton wont back, alarmed and disgusted-took off his feminine clothes-

"Presto !" They were snugly ensconsed in the mysterious tin box, and the inquiry is now raised: "Where are the thirty thousand dollars?" ---New York Demogratio -

Mrs. Harriet Decelier Stowe Converted. We hear from Florida that Mrs. Beecher Stowe, the authoress of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," who a year or two ago bought a place on the St. John's River, near Jacksonville, says she wants to live long enough to write another book to correct the mistakes of "Uncle Tom," and show that a great blunder was committed when slavery was abolished. From her original condition of sentimental attachment to the negro, she has relapsed into a state of unconquerable dislike and aversion. She will not have them about her, either indoors or out.

She turned them all off her place, and allows no one with a black skin to approach her. We are told that an acquaintance of ours sought to send her a message by a black stewardess on board a steamboat, but she refused to allow the negro to approach her. Her mind, as we have been credibly informed, is very much inflamed against the negro; and this, probably, from comparing their inefficiency and aptitude as laborers and servants with that of the Northern whites. Her fancy picture of the African has been spoil ed, and her sentimental affection has turned in consequence, to violent aversion. Like Squeers, the milk of human sympathy in her bosom has all turned to curds and whey

Great Libel Suit. Chicago, December 2.- A suit has been commenced by the individual members of the firm of Carson, Pierce & Co., of this city, against the Tribune, for damage done to their characters in a report of a $2,000,-000 fire, wherein it was intimated that they | tion met at Boston yesterday. Ex-Governor had committed arson. The suit was first instituted by the firm, and $50,000 damages claimed. The defendant answered that a firm could not commit arson, and thereupon to introduce in Congress a bill regulating the plaintiffs quashed their declaration.— The members of the firm, four in number, have each commenced a suit against the Tribune, laying damages at $25,000 each.

Frand-Dienppearance of an Albany

Alderman. Albany, Dec. 2. - Alderman A. W. Smith is reported to have disappeared from this city on Saturday last, on account of financial embarrasments. It is asserted that a few days ago he bought of a Chicago drover.300 head of cattle, giving him a check for $17,000; that the cattle were sold in New York for $15,000, and that the check was protested. It is further asserted that another gentleman holds a promissory check for $8,065, given him by Mr. Smith, and that he was indebted to his brother $18,000. His creditors have attached his property.

Importint Decision by Chief Justice Chase at Richmond.

RICHMOND, Dec. 2.-Among the most mportant cases decided by Chief Justice Chase at the present term of Circuit Court is one establishing the right of stockholders in the loyal States to dividends declared during the war upon stock held by them in the Southern railways, notwithstanding the confiscation of such stock or dividends by the Confederate Government. It explains clearly what is meant by the term of "defacto governments, it and promulgates the rule that Confederate notes received in the Confederate States, on account of parties in the loyal States, innocent of acts violating the interdicts against commercial intercourse, must be accounted for in lawful money, equal in value to the Confederate notes at the time of the receipt.

WYONING.—There is now living in Westchester, Massachusetts, the last survivor of the Wyoming massacre, Mr. Amos Adams, born in the Wyoming settlement, near Old Kingston, August 16, 1778. He was not quite five years old at the time of the massacre, which occurred in July, 1778. The lives of those in the fort where his family was, were spared, but they were stripped of clothes and food and turned in the wilderness. The Adams family consisted of five members-the father, mother, and three children-Amos, five years old, one three, and the other one year old. The mother carried the babe, the father the next, and the eldest had to walk the journey of 150 miles, and he scarce five years old, in constant dread of the Indians, to Fishkill, New York, on the North river. They lived on roots and berries. He is now very active, and is a hard worker; his sight; hearing, and general health are excellent. He is now a widower, having had two wives and ten children.

An Old Man Thrashes a "Carpet Bag" General,

[From the Vicksburg Herald, 15th.] When W. Jerusalem Smith-who lately ran for Congress on the Radical ticket, and was beaten by Lestwich (Dem.) in the Momphis district—was robbing the citizens of Hardeman county during the war, and on the plea that he was a United States soldier, he went to the home of Mr. E. J. Trice, "and demanded his money from the family, and on their refusal he took a son, aged about seventeen, and hung him until he was nearly dead, and on his still refusing, he took a daughter about fifteen years of age, and treated her in the same way; but as neither would give him the information, he then, with three of his ruffians, rifled the house of verything valuable.

Lately Mr. Smith went to Jackson, Tenn., to a political meeting, and old Mr. Trice went to the same place to meet him, but, not knowing Smith personally, missed him, but learned he was going off on the cars. The old man then went to the cars and passed through with one who pointed Smith out to him among the passengers, when the old man went for him, and gave him a most terrible thrashing. This is all the satisfac tion we suppose he will ever be able to get out of the rascal.
