AFTER.

After the shower the tranquil sun;
After the snow, the emerald leaves;
Silver stars when the day is done;
After the harvest, golden sheaves.

After the clouds, the violet sky;
After the tempest, the full of waves;
Quiet wood, when the winds go by;
After the battle, peaceful graves.

After the knell, the wedding bells;
After the bud, the radiant rose;
Joyful greetings from sad farewells;
After our weeping, sweet repose.

After the burden, the blissful mood;
After the flight, the downy nest;
And the furrow, the waking seed;
After the shadowy river—a rest.

METHUSelah DROWNED IN THE FLOOD.

We make the following extract from an article contributed to the Louisville Journal:

All we know of the origin of the earth or our race we learn from the Revelations. The chronology used by the civilized world is founded on the dates furnished us in the Bible. We reckon the date of the flood from the dates found in the 6th chapter of Genesis. We learn from this chapter that Adam lived before his son Seth was born 130 years; Seth lived before his son Enos was born 105 years; Enos lived before his son Cainan was born 90 years; Cainan lived before his son Mahalaluh was born 70 years; Mahalaluh lived before his son Jared was born 65 years; Jared lived before his son Enoch was born 162 years; Enoch lived before his son Methuselah lived before his son Lamech was born 187 years; Lamech lived before his son Noah was born 182 years. Noah, hence, was born Anno Mundi, 1050.

In Genesis, 7th chapter, 5th verse, we are informed that Noah was 600 years old when the flood of water was upon the earth. Add 600 years (his age) to 1050, the date of his birth, and we have 1650, the date of the flood. We learn from the 27th verse, 6th chapter of Genesis, that "All the days of Methuselah were 969 years, and he died." By reference to the foregoing table it will be seen that Methuselah was born Anno Mundi 687; add his age, 969, to 687, the date of his birth, and we have 1656, the time "when the flood of water was upon the earth." The conclusion is as certain as figures, that the oldest man was drowned for his wickedness. [And it is a remarkable proof of the truth of the Bible figures.]

The Honduras Railway.

In reference to this projected route between the Atlantic and Pacific, it is stated that the Government of Honduras in the autumn of 1867 raised a loan in London, Paris and Amsterdam, for the construction of the road. This loan, it is asserted, was taken in one day, and is now at a premium. The surveys made by the old Honduras Company, verified by a detachment of Royal English engineers, have again been tested and found to be correct. In addition to this, the "plant" material and men for building the first forty miles from Puerto Caballos to Santiago are now in Honduras, and the contractors, after a personal inspection of the line, have undertaken to finish and equip the road before June 1st, 1871. It is predicted that this route will shorten the passage from New York to San Francisco by the space of eight days.

This gold field said to have been discovered near Rhinebeck, Dutchess county N. Y., were recently examined by a party of engineers with satisfactory results. The evidence of the existence of gold is believed to be undeniable. The ore is described as a ferruginous quartz, with the metal interspersed. The veins, it is claimed, are more extensive than those of North Carolina, and form a part of the auriferous deposits extending from Nova Scotia to Georgia. The extensive outlay of capital required to work the gold mines of Georgia and the Carolinas, it is highly probable, will also be demanded in New York.—Philadelphia Ledger.

POLLARD's story about Stonewall Jackson's recommendation of a night attack upon the Federal troops by Confederates stripped naked and armed with bowies, has some foundation in fact. After Fredericksburg he advised that a night attack should be made upon the troops crowded in that town, the assailants naked to the waist as a means of recognition, and using the bayonet alone.

The New York Spirit of the Times says the terms of surrender offered to Gen. Johnson by Gen. Sherman, and for which Gen. Sherman was so ruthlessly assailed, were dictated by President Lincoln, with the concurrence of General Grant!

The Supreme Court of Florida on Thursday decided to order process against Lieut. Governor Gleason, whereupon Gleason presented a petition under the Civil Rights act to have his case carried to the U. S. Court.

ARREST OF CONSUMPTION.

There is no malady which causes so large a mortality as consumption. Statistics show that, throughout the civilized world, an average of one death in six, every six in the lists of mortality, may be attributed to its agency. Though our own city shows a smaller average from this scourge, yet it is computed that even here it is the cause of one death in every seven or eight. It was formerly considered an incurable disease, and was often left hopelessly to run its fatal course unchecked; but modern investigation and science have proved that the tubercular deposits, to which all its dread results may be traced, will frequently diminish under suitable treatment. This is further proved by post-mortem examinations, where death has occurred from other causes, in which the lungs, scarred and puckerod, attested the healthy closing of two and even three large tubercular cavities. Few are aware how much the prevention and even cure of this dread disease depends upon their own efforts. An eminent American physician has recently declared that, with proper precautions, by any one now in health, consumption will be well nigh an impossibility; even though hereditary influences may predispose him to it, and that even those who are already under its grasp may have hope of arresting its ravages. The plain and simple principle, which in this case is the essence of all-wise treatment, is to raise the physical system to the highest possible vigor. In company with this one of the best crutives and preventives is to expand and strengthen the lungs themselves by deep inspirations or breathing in of pure air. These inspirations should be made as slowly as possible through a small tube, or with the mouth nearly closed, and with the shoulders thrown back and downwards. When the lungs or chest are filled, the air should be as slowly and gradually breathed out. By continual practice it will be found easy to take long and deep inspirations, and the chest itself will become permanently expanded, so as to give the lungs fuller play. Where strength has begun to decline, of course the efforts must be proportionally milder. As the air at first enters the lower part of the lungs it only fills the apex after a long and sustained effort, and hence, the necessity of making the inspiration as slow as possible. Six times a day in the open air is not too much for this exercise. Indeed, the great advantage of mild or dry climates to consumptives is the possibility of passing so much of the time out of doors. Much is justly said of the pure and bracing air of Minnesota, but those who go there for lung diseases should remember that only as they breathe the pure outside air habitually can it prove beneficial. A lady with tubercular deposits and as ever cough went there some time since, and a month spent in the ordinary way brought her no improvement. She then joined a camping party of ladies and gentlemen, who started in an open wagon, and slept in tents at night. After three days' exposure to this open air she manifestly improved, and, though frequently exposed in the evening, took no cold. The continuance of this mode of life restored her health and so strengthened her constitution that in two months she could sleep with impunity while the air was blowing freely across her. Many similar, and even more remarkable instances took place among the young men of our army in the late war, many of whom enlisted against the advice of their friends, and returned with greatly improved physical constitutions. The exercise thus induced is most essential to the desired end.

Abundance of nutritious and wholesome food, including fatty articles, is essential in the arrest of consumption. Most of those who have such tendencies reject fat meat, but its place may be supplied with butter, milk or cream. Restriction in diet in these cases is highly injurious. The dress is also a matter bearing strongly on the health of the lungs. Woolen fabrics worn next the skin, and warm covering for the extremities, are all important. So also is the shape of the garment, which should allow full play to the muscles. Relief from care and anxiety, as far as it can be secured, is important, but even where this is impossible, attention to the other requisites, so simple as to be within the power of every intelligent person, will in many cases prevent, and in most incipient cases arrest the progress of this most distressing of all maladies.—Public Ledger.
