Money Markets.

In Philadelphia there is no new feature in the money market which deserves special comment. There is a moderate demand for money, but the banks are so well supplied with loanable funds that no difficulty exists in meeting loans on fair security. Though there is evidently a withdrawal of large amounts of currency from circulation, it is abundant for all business purposes, and in consequence of a less active demand yesterday, is obtainable at a slight decline on Thursday's quotations. It is not for the comparative stringency caused by the Wall street operations in fancy stocks, in the early part of this week, money would have been unusually plentiful and cheap, but the recent movements of the "line" have put a check upon the steady progress of the money market towards a condition of perfect ease, and the superabundance of currency which was anticipated is not such as to affect very materially the rates of discount. There is a considerable amount of currency floating its way South for purposes of permanent investment in cotton, and a large amount is being sent to the West for the same purpose, and the prospect for greater ease is encouraging. There is a fair demand for good mercantile paper on the street, at rates ranging from 7 1/2 per cent. for best names. Call loans on government collateral are negotiated at 6 1/2 per cent., with a fair demand, and at 7 1/2 per cent. on miscellaneous security.

The stock market was less active and prices not so firm. Government loans were, however, State loans were not so popular. City loans of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, for $100,000, at 4 1/2 per cent., and for $50,000, at 5 per cent., were not so popular. Bonds for $100,000, at 5 1/2 per cent., and for $50,000, at 6 per cent., were not so popular.
